Mrs. Lula Howard Given Prison Term For Manslaughter

Slayer of E. P. McKinney Is Sentenced To Serve From Five to Ten Years on State Farm.

LAWYERS TO HOLD CONFERENCE TODAY

Will Discuss Appeal to Higher Court—Plea of Self-Defense Is Made by Prisoner.

Mrs. Lula Howard, 28, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court Friday night and sentenced to serve a term of from 5 to 10 years on the state farm at Milledgeville. She had been on trial since noon Thursday on charges of murder growing out of the death on May 9 of E. P. McKinney, 30.

Charges of murder against Mrs. Alma Collins, who was jointly indicted with her, were dismissed by order of the court, following the jury's verdict.

Mrs. Howard wept softly and her 11-year-old son rushed to her to comfort her as she received the sentence. She told the court she had nothing to say.

Appeal Is Expected.

Attorneys stated that a conference, to determine whether an appeal for a new trial will be filed will be held this morning. It was intimated, however, that this course would be taken.

The jury considered the case three hours and fifteen minutes. Judge Howard completed his charge at 4:15 o'clock and the verdict was announced as ready at 7:30 o'clock. Some delay was experienced in getting the court together, however, and it was 7:59 before sentence was passed.

Mrs. Howard, who is a pretty brunette sat between her attorneys and Mrs. Alma Collins, as Judge G. H. Howard delivered his charge to the jury. Her dark eyes flashed with interest and she nervously watched the faces of the 12 men who were to decide her fate.

Woman Breaks Down.

Earlier in the day she broke down and her form shook with emotion as she related the circumstances under which she said she shot McKinney as he advanced on her. She claimed McKinney had beaten her in her apartment at 252 Courtland street, and that she had fled, taking a pistol with her, as she feared he would follow and attack her again.

He did follow, she said, and after she screamed to him not to come any closer, she was forced to fire to save herself, she said. McKinney was under the influence of liquor at the time, and was crazed, according to other witnesses.

Attorneys William Schley Howard and Walter LeCraw, for the defense, appealed to the jury to save the woman who had been forced to save herself as a rum-crazed man attacked her. They claimed Mrs. Howard was justified in the killing.

CANDLER IS HEAD OF EMORY BOARD

Bishop U. V. W. Darlington Elected Vice President — W. D. Thomson Is Secretary-Treasurer.

Asa G. Candler, Sr., was reelected chairman of the board of trustees of Emory university at the annual meeting held on the campus Friday. Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, vice president, and W. D. Thomson, secretary-treasurer, also will retain their respective offices.

The annual meeting was begun Friday in order to allow ample time for conclusion on Saturday, the scheduled time of the session, but the business was transacted in time for adjournment late Friday.

In addition to approving the award of diplomas to 189 students at commencement exercises next Tuesday, the board voted to confer honorary degrees on three distinguished southern educators. They are: an L.L. D. degree to Dr. William Simpson Elkin, retiring dean of the Emory School of Medicine; L.L. D. degree to Dr. Guy Everett Snavely, president of Birmingham-Southern college, and a D. D. degree to Dr. Lewis Davies Lowe, D. D., of Tallahassee, Florida, prominent minister and scholar. Resolutions praising Dr. Elkin for his long period of service to the medical school also were adopted.

At the request of the student body of the university, the board voted an increase of $3.50 in the student activities fee paid by each student at the beginning of the school year. The athletic council is to receive $2.50 of this amount, or about $3,000 in all, to provide better equipment for the various forms of athletics at the university, and the student lecture

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

As Seen by—

Pierre Van Paassen

New York, June 5.—There is a little studio in Greenwich Village where four or five high-cheeked, yellow-haired young men turn out some of the most gorgeous of Russian lithographs.

You have to sit down a minute and catch your breath after climbing the five stairs, but it's worth the trouble. And then you may lose your breath again for the color schemes employed by these Muscovites are nothing less than startling and staggering.

Some rich philanthropist has set them up here and paid the rent for a year in advance, with the advice: "Now go to it. See what you can do."

Between endless cups of coffee and innumerable brown-paper cigarettes they discuss their hopes and ambitions. But there are also times when they do serious work. They had their first order last week. And I was invited to come and watch the quartet execute a Russian peasant dance and drink some New York vodka in celebration of the event.

I accompanied Gerard Geller, the famous Flemish playwright, to the pier yesterday. "Was there anything in America that struck you as remarkable?" I asked him at the gangplank. "Yes, I noticed that too many faces carry expression of worry and tiredness. The Americans are in a fair way to master all the arts, with the exception of the simplest one—the art of being happy and contented."

At the risk of being called a mouther of banalities, I still think New York one of the most provincial towns in the world.

It is cosmopolitan in so far as the variety of its population is concerned. But the different groups have not merged and are functioning independently.

Gotham is really a collection of towns and villages. And if the small town's distinguishing sign, gangs of boys and loiterers in front of the neighborhood drug store still applies, Broadway is really the mainest of main streets.

They may be flaunting the latest and most risque Parisian illustrated magazines in the visitor's face, yet that is about all the French atmosphere you can detect in those Bohemian cafes in the Village. Some fellows loll around in voluminous painter's blouses and Belgian caps straddling their flowing locks, but the vivacity of the Latin Quarter is absolutely lacking.

Things are put on for show here. Like the Dutch girls who pull on their old skirts and wooden shoes for the tourist, so these fellows make up for the visitor.

The young lady models who pose in the nude for about a dollar an hour and who loiter around with cigarettes dangling from their lips, seem tired and "fed up" with life. Many of them once had high ambitions of an artistic career. The glamor has worn off and the freshness of youth has been changed for layers of rouge and eye-brow pencil.

One old, rusty, long-barreled pistol found on a Civil war battlefield draws long and lingering looks from young and old in front of a shop on Eighth avenue. Two doors down the street there is a whole arsenal of modern, up-to-date, shiny new revolvers and not a soul paying attention.

Corned beef and cabbage has been voted the most popular dish in a ten-day balloting by a million restaurant patrons. The inseparable twins ham and eggs, were among the also rans.

Lord Northcliffe told me once that he thought the trains in America were "flying ovens." He hadn't traveled in the subway on a middling warm day. That's more than an oven. It approximates my idea of hell.

Push cart peddlers must keep going with the traffic. I asked one of them on Park Row if he could make a sale. "Won't the cop interfere?" "Naw, he won't do nothing. He knows that I know what I know," explained the merchant.

No sooner have the first drops of a shower hit the ground but umbrella vendors rise from that same ground like magic. They sell their wares at a dollar apiece. The wholesale price is 12 for $10. A sudden downpour at the time the theaters go out is a godsend for these merchants. The afternoon rush caught in a good sense isn't bad picking either, one told me.

WHOLESALE LIQUOR SELLING IS PROBED BY GRAND JURORS

The federal grand jury Friday began an investigation of wholesale whisky selling in Atlanta and several men recently arrested by federal prohibition agents have been summoned to appear as witnesses before that body.

In the meantime prohibition officers, working under the direction of Fred D. Dismuke, prohibition director, are continuing their crusade against liquor dealers four arrests being made late Thursday night, and 30 gallons of liquor being seized.

Since the campaign against bootleggers was launched Wednesday 2[illegible] arrests have been made.

EARLY RELIEF FROM WEATHER VERY SLIGHT

BUSINESS REDUCED BY NEW YORK HEAT

Five Deaths in Philadelphia—List of Dead in Pittsburg Advances to 11 in 24 Hours.

Possibility of slight relief within the next 48 hours from the grip of an unprecedented period of drouth and hot weather over this section, was indicated late Friday in changing conditions in the region of the Dakotas which holds promise of lower temperature and showers over the section east of the Mississippi river.

This announcement was made Friday afternoon at the local office of the U. S. weather bureau by A. H. Scott, in charge in the absence of C. F. von Herrmann.

Water Supply Falls.

In the meantime Atlanta and the southeast continues to simmer in the heat wave and drouth, the city's water supply is dropping to an alarming low point, with East Point already on the verge of a water shortage. Reports from other sections of the nation indicate intense heat, the total of deaths from heat during the present wave reaching a total of 167 Friday.

There is no immediate relief in sight today, according to the forecast. A break in the high pressure must come before any drop in the mercury or rainfall may be expected, the forecast reads. This pressure has been rising steadily since Sunday and is thought by local weather office officials to have about reached its breaking point.

Mercury Climbs.

In Atlanta Friday the mercury started its climb from 69 degrees at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, reaching the 85 mark by noon and just short of 91 degrees at 3 o'clock, the high mark for the day. Little change in this is indicated for at least 18 or 20 hours, and possibly longer, according to the prophecy.

Light showers were reported at points Friday along the seaboard, but these are without significance to Atlanta, Mr. Scott said in a rather crestfallen spirit, explaining that such light rainfall was natural along the coast.

City water officials Friday again emphasized the necessity for sparing use of water and explained that the city's supply is at a very low mark just now. East Point citizens also were advised of the low supply of water for that section and admonished against waste of water.

ALL JUNE WEATHER RECORDS ARE BROKEN.

Washington, June 5.—These six days of heat, with a high cost of life in many cities have broken all June weather bureau records. Furthermore the mercury is booked to stay at the peak for two or three days more.

Washington, which has taken the hot weather championship for two days running is in a state approach-

CHALLENGE HURLED IN COIN CAMPAIGN

City's Vaunted Spirit Faces Supreme Test as Closing Hour of Drive Draws Near

Atlanta's vaunted spirit faces its greatest test in many years in the closing stages of the memorial coin sale drive, leaders pointed out in spirited messages at group meetings Friday. With little less than 80,000 coin certificates of the 200,000 quota remain to be sold before next Wednesday, the date on which coins will be released to certificate holders, workers are faced with the task of selling an average of 20,000 coins daily in order to complete the campaign as per schedule.

Alfred C. Newell, chairman of the city drive, and other leaders in the intensive drive underway here for the past several days, Friday placed the "situation squarely up to workers," a statement from headquarters said.

"What Atlanta does within the coming three days will have a tremendous bearing on the memorial project plans underway at Stone Mountain," one worker said. "The city must complete its quota and the news must be flashed to other sections of the nation next Wednesday that 'Atlanta is over the top' and bid them speed in the nationwide move to secure funds necessary to complete the gigantic memorial."

GENERAL WARFARE IN CHINA IMPENDS, CAPITAL INFORMED

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, June 5.—Information from authentic sources of the swift approach in China of general warfare, which promises to dwarf present disturbances in Shanghai, Canton and Changsha, is in the hands of the Washington government.

The purport of this information, which also has reached the Associated Press, is that a clash for military mastery of China is impending. Whether it will come immediately, on the heels of the trouble in the coastal regions, or break later, is held problematical, but authorities on ground declare it is inevitable. Chang Tsao Lin, Manchurian war lord, with his force of 200,000 armed men, and Feng Yu Hsing, with a following of 175,000 are being watched by observers. Friction between them already has developed to the point where armed struggles may be precipitated at the least provocation.

Soviets Aid Feng.

Chang has the sympathy and probably some form of substantial aid from Japan. Feng, the so-called Christian general, admittedly is receiving active and material assistance from soviet Russia. Unquestioned sources have reported a continuous supply of arms, rifles, machine guns and ammunition to be reaching Feng's troops from Moscow and Urga.

The munitions and arms are filtering through Mongolia, largely under soviet domination to Feng, despite Chang's control of the Chinese Eastern railroad, the direct route of supply between Moscow and central China.

President Coolidge is being kept advised of the situation in China. He intends that the American naval craft now in Chinese waters as well as the marines landed in Shanghai, the legation guard at Pekin, and the other American detachments shall be utilized for the protection of American lives and properties.

U. S. to Stand Aloof.

At present, not including the additional ships and men now en route to Shanghai, the American forces of the army, navy and marine corps in China comprise the 841 officers and men under the command of Brigadier General W. D. Connor at Tient Tsin, the Pekin legation guards and the marine detachment landed at Shanghai with two companies of volunteers, one infantry and one cavalry, serving as part of the Shanghai volunteer corps. In addition to these and excepting the emergency detachments now at Shanghai, there are 940 British, 604 Japanese, 1,622 French and some Italian troops in China for the protection of their nationals and interests.

The Washington government has no intention that its forces in China shall become involved in the situation there unless faced with actual necessity of protecting American lives and property. Should future developments in Shanghai, Canton, Pekin or other centers disturbed by the present anti-foreign demonstrations make it necessary to alter the administration's policy in this regard, it is probable that concerted action on the part of all governments to protect their citizens would be agreed upon.

There is no attempt on the part of Washington authorities to disguise

Versailles Treaty Violated 13 Times, Germans Are Told

GLOOM AND DISGUST PERVADE GERMANY

Cologne Not To Be Evacuated Until Terms of Treaty Are Fulfilled, Allies Declare.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, June 5.—Germany has failed in 13 conditions to comply with the disarmament requirements of the Versailles treaty, declares the allied note to Germany, the text of which was given out here tonight.

In order to obtain the evacuation of the Cologne area, Germany must, among other things, suppress the present "general staff and reduce the number of German police from 180,000 to 150,000."

The strength of the Germany army must be reduced to 100,000 fighting men.

"The military character presented today by the German security police must entirely disappear," says the note.

The note demands alteration of certain factories in order to make impossible the manufacture of war materials. All existing munitions in excess of amounts to be stated by the allied control mission must be surrendered, including spare parts for small arms, both throwers and machine guns. Blank cartridges also must be surrendered.

Reserve Training Banned.

Legislation must be enacted to do away with short-term enlistments in the reichswehr, the training of reserve cadets, military activities of associations and the import and the export of war material. The note specifies the following as Germany's defaults:

Organization of police, failure to carry out certain required destructions and transformations of factories and workshops, deliveries of certain surplus war materials and failure to change the organization of the German army as laid down by the Versailles treaty; failure to control the import and export of war materials.

Germany had also defaulted in the possession of and traffic in and in the illicit manufacture of war materials; she has engaged in wrongful activities in the forbidden zone and has failed to comply with war requisitions.

Change In Fortifications.

The note further specified Germany's failure to make the necessary changes and alterations in the fortress at Koenigsburg, Prussia; failure to make necessary changes in fortifications and coast defenses; failure to make the plans necessary for accurate files and statistical returns regarding fortifications; failure to deliver documents relative to existing stocks of war material and regarding the production of German factories during the war and after the armistice.

The note stated that the allies "consider it of capital importance to place in the foreground of their argument the general observation that the defaults noted, unless promptly ceased would in the aggregate enable the German government eventually to reconstitute an army modelled on the principles of a nation in arms."

The note declared "this would be directly contrary to the treaty of peace under which the German army was to be used exclusively for the maintenance of international order and for control of the German frontiers.

"It is this circumstance, while it demonstrates the importance of each individual default, that renders the totality of these defaults so serious a menace to peace." the note declared. The note concluded:

"The allied governments are convinced that it merely requires good will on the part of the German government and German authorities to insure that rectifications of these defaults . . . are carried out in a relatively short period. In fine, it now

8-Year-Old Boy Is Indicted

:-: YOUNGSTER UNAWARE OF ENORMITY OF CRIME :-:

For Killing Girl, 18 Months

BY CARL HUBER.

Cambridge, Mass., June 5.—An 8-year-old boy, John Veres, of Lowell, unattended by any relatives, pattered into Middlesex county superior criminal court here Friday and faced a formal charge of manslaughter.

But a few moments before, the grand jury had returned an indictment against the lad—the youngest ever to face such a charge in Massachusetts—naming him for the murder of Vivian M. Hudson, 18 months old.

According to the indictment, young Veres, "all boy" and patently unaware of the enormity of the crime with which he is charged, took the Hudson baby to a brook in Lowell, cast her into the water, and then stoned her until she was dead. Her body was taken from the brook by a passing worker, who reported the affair to the police.

As the charge was read by Greel Dean, veteran clerk of the court, who was visibly moved by the unparalleled scene, young Veres counted over a handful of pennies which had been given him by Deputy Sheriff Bishop. The prisoner manifested boyish interest in what was taking place, but gave no indication of appreciating the seriousness of his predicament. At the direction of Judge Brown, a plea of not guilty was entered by Deputy Sheriff Bishop.

Veres was then ordered held in the custody of the deputy sheriff until an examination by alienists could be made. On the way out of court, the young prisoner slipped out of the grasp of the deputy sheriff and scooted playfully on ahead. He was quickly corralled and held by the hand of the officer. There were no handcuffs small enough to fit his wrists.

Maximum penalty in Massachusetts for conviction of manslaughter is 20 years in prison. Between the ages of 7 and 17 a minor has the benefit of a presumption of incapacity. In order to be found guilty, it will be necessary for the state to prove that Veres was "mentally capable of committing the crime, knowing it as such."

Just before arraignment, a barred cell was pointed out to young Veres. He was asked if he knew what it was.

"That's where they put the bad men," he replied.

BAN UPON USE OF POISON GAS IN WAR VOTED

BURTON THRILLS PARLEY BY PLEA

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Geneva, June 5.—Thrilled through and through by eloquent appeals from Representative Theodore E. Burton, head of the American delegation, to the conference on traffic in arms, and Paul Boncour, France, the conference at a memorable session tonight went on record in favor of the immediate framing of a special protocol by which the use of asphyxiating gas in war time henceforth would be outlawed.

The protocol will be open to signature by all nations.

Burton Takes Initiative.

American initiative, courage and enthusiasm made the decision possible. Mr. Burton laid stress on the urgency of doing something definite now to register condemnation of the barbarous posion gas warfare, but he said that if this was found impossible, he was authorized to announce that the president of the United States would be glad to extend an invitation for the convocation of a special conference in Washington.

Mr. Burton, however, proposed the elaboration of a special resolution, based on article five of the Washington agreement, with a view to its immediate signature by all who could sign it, but with the understanding that it would be left open for a reasonable time for signature by all world governments.

Held Impossible of Operation.

The general committee of the conference had reported interdiction of traffic in asphyxiating liquid as practically impossible, and as certainly inoperative for countries possessing great industrial resources.

The committee had recommended the convocation of a special conference to extend to all nations the principle of the Washington convention, but Mr. Burton was unwilling to let the question go over to a later date. His plea for immediate action in Genexa plainly made the deep impression on all the delegates.

His alternative suggestion that President Coolidge stood ready to summon a conference in Washington produced something like a sensation. It was interpreted generally as the American president's first concrete move toward a later general conference on disarmament, and was received with gratification by many of the delegations, including Great Britain aand Canada.

M. Boncour pictured humanity as pathetically striving through countless ages to do away with war; he sketched vividly the horrors and sufferings of the world war and the

Loeb Suffers Bad Collapse Of Mind, Body

One of Bobby Franks' Slayers Tries To Leap Out of Hospital Window.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Joliet, Ill., June 5.—Richard A. Loeb, youthful son of a Chicago millionaire, who, with Nathan Leopold, thirteen months ago kidnaped and killed little Robert Franks "for a thrill," has suffered a serious mental and physical collapse in the state penitentiary here, where he and Leopold are serving life sentences, it was revealed tonight.

Young Leopold recently underwent an operation for appendicitis and at about the same time Loeb developed the measles. His condition became serious while he was convalescing, and since then he has become delirious and today was strapped to his bed.

Reports that Loeb was feigning illness were scouted by both prison physicians and Warden John L. Whitman, who said he had been a model prisoner until he was taken ill. Physicians said that the mental disturbance was not unusual following an infectious disease, and that it is still too early to determine whether the prisoner is the victim of a serious mental illness.

At the time of the hearing, after the youths had pleaded guilty, defense attorneys and alienists predicted that Loeb would become mentally deranged in a short time if confined to the penitentiary. Loeb and Leopold entered the prison last September.

Young Loeb made several attempts to leap out of the window of the hospital, threw articles at a prison guard, and became involved in an impassioned argument with a trusty just preceding his mental illness, it was disclosed.

BOARD OF EXPERTS UPON EDUCATION IS RECOMMENDED

Survey Commission Would Clothe Proposed Board With Rigid Enforcement Authority.

Creation of a special commission of experts on educational organization, armed by the legislature with power to enforce its rulings, is recommended in the report of the special survey commission which was turned over Friday morning to Governor Walker in its final form.

The governor stated that the report and recommendations did not contain anything sensational. The commission, which was headed by C. Murphey Candler, made a careful and thorough survey of the state's educational institutions and found that there was overlapping and lack of coordination in some cases, the governor said.

For instance, there are cases of two state-supported institutions teaching the same curriculum within 10 miles of each other, it is stated, and in other cases courses in study which properly belong to one institution are taught in another of totally different type.

To remedy these conditions the committee of experts is recommended, the governor said.

Budget Is Planned.

On Friday also, the budget committee, created by the state legislature, met in the governor's office to begin its work of preparing a budget for the state's finances to be recommended to the incoming legislature. While the committee was in session all day Friday, its work was largely of routine character. It will be called together for another meeting some day next week.

The committee is composed of Governor Walker, ex-officio chairman; Comptroller General William A. Wright, Attorney General George M. Napier, George W. Lankford, of Lyons, chairman of the senate finance committee; E. M. Mason, of Hartwell, chairman of the senate ways and means committee; Howard Ennis, of Milledgeville, chairman of the house ways and means committee, and J. W. Culpepper, of Fayetteville, chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Eugene R. Black, president of the Atlanta Trust company, also called a meeting Friday of a statewide steering committee which has been appointed to work with the legislature during the coming session on revenue measures which will come up. A copy of the report of the governor's survey commission was furnished this committee, which met and outlined plans for its work at the Biltmore hotel.

Members of this committee include, in addition to Mr. Black, chairman: Wilmer L. Moore, J. M. B. Hoxsey, Harold Hirsch and Thomas K. Glenn, of Atlanta; T. D. Tinsley and Walter A. Harris, of Macon; Mills B. Lane and C. M. Cunningham, of Savannah; Graham Wright and L. A. Dean, of Rome; Hugh H. Saxon and Enoch Callaway, of Augusta; J. W. Morton and E. R. Hodgson, Jr., of Athens; W. C. Bradley of Columbus; Lee Council, of Americus; W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie; Victor Allen, of Buford; Elisha Wilcox and Paul Brown of Albany.

ATTACK CAILLAUX FINANCE PROGRAM

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Paris, June 5.—The cabinet crisis, apparently threatened earlier today, was postponed later when President Minister Caillaux partially surrendered to the socialists' attacks upon his fiancial program.

The attacks were conducted by former Finance Minister Louis Loucheur and by socialist leaders at a "peace conference" with the government and the left bloc of the chamber of deputies, called by Premier Painleve to harmonize opposition to the Caillaux financial program.

At first the attitude of M. Loucheur and the socialists seemed irreconcilable with that of M. Caillaux. Finally, when M. Loucheur took the floor the finance minister weakened and compromised.

Financial Reforms.

M. Caillaux insisted that the balancing of the budget came first, while M. Loucheur and the socialists maintained that financial reforms must precede a budget equilibrium. M. Caillaux emphatically rejected the socialists' demand for a capital levy.

One of M. Caillaux's main arguments was that "the United States is just now greatly interested in our situation" and that the best way to secure a satisfactory settlement of

36 HOLES REQUIRED TO DECIDE WINNER

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Worcester, Mass., June 5.—Willie MacFarlane, "finest of men and a great golfer," in the words of America's greatest amateur, Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, tonight is the open champion of the United States, a victory by a single stroke today ending the greatest tournament in history.

The final score was 72 to 73 at the end of the second 18 holes of play-off to decide the deadlocked open tourney.

Jones' opinion of the victor is of weight, for he it was—national amateur and former open champion—who fell before the other's prowess in a history-making play-off that required two full rounds of 18 holes before a decision was reached.

Smiles as Defeat Stares.

Four strokes away from the crown at the ninth hole of the deciding round, with Bobby fighting his hardest to obtain the victory, MacFarlane worked coolly, steadily along toward the goal he had set. He deigned to smile as he faltered. He smiled as he scored well. And, step by step, he forced himself to even terms with the remarkable southerner, who sought his third title in three years.

Only after a throng of several thousand had boiled in the terrific heat through 36 holes did the end come, and then it was at the final green. They had come up to the seventeenth all even. They had scored birdie fours on the long, down-hill hole. At the eighteenth, both drove well to the top of the hill, and the green was only 40 yards away. Jones' second went to the trap. MacFarlane's went to the smooth surface in front of him and only five feet from the final pin.

Falls Eight Feet From Hole.

Desperate, and knowing full well that failure on the shot would set aside all the gruelling play he had undergone for three days, Jones tackled his niblick and took his position in the sand. He struck and a roar arose from the watchers as the ball started on a line for the cup.

But masterly recovery that it was, he still was eight feet from the hole and a par-4. He saw MacFarlane's ball go down after two putts and his features formed a smile. An eight-foot putt he had made many times, but this to him was the greatest of all.

Bobby measured and considered the line he must follow as MacFarlane, sure of a tie that would force still another round, stood at the edge of the green. Although it was but a few seconds, it seemed a long time before he drew the putter from the bag and took his stance. Again he looked up and along that imaginary line that would take him to another chance for conquest.

Then he crouched and tapped the ball. Straight it seemed to go until within two feet of the end, when suddenly it fell from its path, that imaginary line that Jones had laid down, and rolled to one side—the champion-

POSTER PRIZE AWARDS TO BE MADE FRIDAY

Prizes in the recent safety poster contest conducted by the Atlanta Safety council will be awarded next Friday at the regular weekly luncheon of the council in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Winners of prizes in the contest, numbering among them students in many Atlanta schools, will be honor guests at the luncheon. George Diebert, secretary of the council, will preside.

Two new reflex warning signals are to be erected at Snake curve on Peachtree road, near the Seaboard Air Line bridge, Mr. Diebert announced Friday following a meeting of the council. Signals will guard the curve where two bad accidents happened on successive nights recently, in one of which two men died and a third was seriously injured.

The two signals are of the red glass type, reflecting warning rays when automobile headlights strike them. They are donated, together with eight others, by the Southern Signal corporation to the safety council.

T. S. Florence, general superintendent of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, was the speaker at Friday's meeting of the council. He outlined safety methods and employee organization at the mills, showing how accidents are prevented. The mill has a complete dispensary and hospital staff, he said, and the machinery is cleaned with compressed air, preventing injuries to workers in the cleaning process.

HOPPER IS ARRESTED; BLACKMAIL CHARGED

Hopper formerly lived in Marietta. He is alleged to have mailed a postcard to the Atlanta man in September, 1923, demanding $25, and threatening arrest of Sailor unless he complied.

ALLEGED TIGER HELD UNDER $1,200 BOND

After nine employes of the American Can company had testified that they had purchased whisky from Lewis Dickerson, negro who runs a pressing shop on Marietta street across from the can company, Recorder Pro Tem Murphy M. Holloway, Friday held the negro to the state court under bonds aggregating $1,200.

Judge Holloway directed that charges of violating the prohibition law be docketed against C. J. Hayes, 48, proprietor of the barbershop in the rear of which the pressing club is located. Hayes was present in court and furnished $300 bond for his appearance next Friday. He was granted a continuance of his case when he stated that he had not had the opportunity of employing an attorney, not anticipating hat he would be made a defendant in the proceedings.

The prosecution was directed by City Attorney James L. Mayson and Attorney Ellis B. Barrett, the latter appearing at the request of the fifth ward civic league, he said, in an effort to make an example out of Dickerson, who, according to the attorney, has been flagrantly violating the law.

Bond of $100 was assessed in each of nine alleged sales at the request of Attorney Mayson, who urged the court to treat each sale as a separate case and put the negro under bond sufficient to guarantee his appearance for trial in the state court. In addition Judge Holloway held the negro in $300 bond under a charge of possessing whisky.

Foremen J. E. Bowdon and W. R. Cowan, of the can company, and two employes, George Arrington, 310 Sells avenue, and John Allen, 18, of 50 West North avenue, testified that they had seen the negro pour whisky from a gallon can into pint bottles last Tuesday.

Attorney V. H. Gaddie appeared for the defense.

DYING WOMAN'S LETTER OPPOSES GLOOMY FUNERAL

"I do not want my funeral to be gloomy," a letter written shortly before her death said.

Her letter, giving many details for the ceremony to those who may arrange the final rites, asked that there be no eulogy. "The world thinks me much better than I am," she wrote, "so I want no eulogy."

The directed that "How Firm a Foundation" and "The Sweet Bye-and-Bye" be sung, the latter as the mourners leave the cemetery, "if the weather is good," and at the church if the weather "is bad."

Pews on one side of the pulpit are to be reserved for negroes, her letter directs. "I want the pews on one side of the pulpit to be kept for any negroes who may choose to come," she said. "The negroes have done much for me: have waited on me and kept me from drugery all my life, and I have never received an act of unkindness from one of them. So I feel that I owe them a debt I can never repay."

She closed by urging her children who were at her bedside at the time of her death, not to "mope and stay at home," but to "go out and brighten the world."

$30,000 JEWELRY IS FOUND BURIED AT CONEY ISLAND

New York, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Diamonds and jewelry estimated to value $30,000 today were found buried in the sands of Coney Island by investigators searching for missing assets of the bankrupt jewelry firm of Morris Sieger and Son, which failed for more than $200,000 last month. Morris Sieger, head of the firm, jumped to his death from the roof of a 15-story building in Times Square shortly before the bankrupt condition of the concern became known.

Slayer To Face U.S. Army Board At Fort Tuesday

Private James Herndon, company I, Twenty-second Infantry, who shot and killed James O. Stapp, 22, ex-soldier on the night of May 20 in the guardhouse at Fort McPherson when Stapp is alleged to have advanced upon him in a threatening attitude, will be given a hearing at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter before a court-martial at Fort McPherson.

Herndon will be defended by Major Gilbert Marshall, assisted by First Lieutenant Seward W. Hulse, of the quartermaster corps. Colonel Charles H. Danforth will be trial judge advocate, or prosecuting attorney, and will be assisted by First Lieutenant Fritz J. Sheffler, of the medical administrative corps.

The court-martial board will be composed of the following officers: Col. Melville S. Jarvis, infantry, president of the court; Colonel Paul Giddings, infantry; Lieutenant Colonel James D. Watson, coast artillery; Lieutenant William P. Stockey, corps of engineers; Lieutenant Pat M. Stevens, infantry; Major James C. McGee, medical corps; Major William Denton, medical corps; Major Richard F. Cox, coast artillery; Major Floyd C. Hecox, infantry; Captain Philip P. Green, medical corps; Captain Glenn A. Ross, quartermaster corps, and Captain Thomas E. Guy, infantry.

The trial will be open to the public. There will be considerable interest attached to the case, particularly as it is the first of the kind to be held before a court-martial in Atlanta in many years.

Herndon, witnesses testified before a board of military inquiry shortly after the killing, fired five times at Stapp with an army automatic when the ex-soldier is alleged to have entered the guardhouse, where Herndon was on duty. There had been bad feeling between the two men, it was testified ,and when Stapp approached Herndon with his hand in his hip pocket as though about to draw a revolver, Herndon drew his own gun and fired.

contended that Mrs. Howard took the pistol with her as she left the house in a spirit of revenge and that she killed McKinney as he was leaving the apartment. He denied that McKinney was crazed with liquor and charged that Mrs. Howard had been drinking.

One of the most dramatic scenes of the trial come when Mrs. Howard completed her statement and sat in the witness chair weeping, and her 11-year-old son rushed into her arms crying. Many of the witnesses and the jury were affected noticeably by this.

Mrs. B. H. Collier, of 254 Courtland street, last witness offered by the state, testified that he heard a thud in the Howard apartment and saw Mrs. Howard rush out of the house.

As she did so, he told the jury, he heard her say: "Get back; don't come any closer."

McKinney kept advancing and replied: "I don't believe you are game," he testified.

There was a flash and a wail: "I've killed him. He made me do it."

Then turning to the lifeless form of McKinney, she said: "You beat me, and you made me do it," the witness testified.

ATTACK CAILLAUX FINANCIAL PROGRAM

Refunding of Debt.

M. Caillaux after hearing the arguments of M. Loucheur, agreed to attempt to balance the budget in order to "rehabilitate" French finances simultaneously. This "rehabilitation," although described in general terms, was taken to mean the inauguration of various measures in the refunding of the internal debt and the stabilization of the franc.

M. Caillaux told the cabinet that he expected the French treasury would have to pay on July 1 in cash 1,600,000,000 francs to holders of treasury bonds maturing then. Similar payments of 3,500,000,000 francs on September 1, and of four billion francs on December 1 would have to be made, he estimated. A total of 22,000,000,000 francs of treasury bonds will mature on these dates but the figures M. Caillaux gave represented the amount of cash payments that will be required by the holders of the bonds, according to M. Caillaux's estimate.

Herriot Criticized.

He made no explanation of how he arrived at his figures of the cash proportion of payments but it was supposed he made an estimatae based upon the proportion of cash payments required by holders of treasury bonds that matured last February.

In discussing the situation with the cabinet M. Caillaux criticized severely the financial policies of the preceding Herriot government. He said telegrams from the French ambassador at Washington showed that the issue of paper money to relieve treasury embarrassment during the Herriot regime had a bad effect upon French credit in the United States.

SLIGHT HOPES HELD FOR EARLY RELIEF

ing suspended animation. Many government offices are closing at noon, school children have been excused, even President Coolidge has capitaulated to the extent of removing his vest, which for him, is considerable capitulation.

Records of the weather bureau show no such period of consistent hot weather spread over so large a portion of the country in the month of June. Three other heat waves stand but in recent weather history and went this one some better, but they were in July and August. In July of 1901 and 1911 and August of 1918.

Mercury Hits 99.

For the third time in as many days, the thermometer climbed Friday to 99 in the capital. Numbers of other cities in the belt from the Atlantic coast to the middle west have trailed close behind, with scores of temperatures above 95.

The weather bureau had to dig back to July, 1887 to find a three-day period with temperatures which eclipsed those for the last three days. The string of 99's, which reads like a business man's golf score, was surpassed in that year by this score—100, 99, 103.

The temperature jumped nine degrees from Sunday to Monday here when the heat wave settled down for its long stay and similarly in other sections of the east.

Crops Are Suffering.

Crops that were not damaged by the frosts of the recent cold wave are suffering from the heat and drought of this record-breaking week. Grain crops are withering under the merciless sun in the middle west. The department of agriculture here is receiving pessimistic reports also from many other sections.

The worst heat wave in history was in July, 1901. The entire month was excessively hot in the whole country east of the Rockies, with the thermometer sticking around 100 day after day in many places. The heat wave in 1911 was as bad while it lasted, with the century mark reached numbers of times but it was only half as long extending through the first 13 days of the month.

For the first five days of this week the temperatures here have been 94, 97 and three 99's. With a prospect of the next two or three days registering over 95, this will go down in history as the "hot June week" for future comparisons.

Sufferers throughout the country are wondering about this "summerless" year that was boldly predicted by certain meteorologists.

New York, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Some freak ocean current is giving rum row a cool, snappy spell of autumnal weather, while the land-lubbers, especially in the east Atlantic states, are sweltering under a record heat wave.

Two trans-Atlantic liners arriving today reported their passengers wore overcoats and furs until almost in sight of New York. The steamship Arabic logged "a rough and cold passage," with steam heat in all cabins until she neared quarantine, and the Lapland recorded that the crew as well as the passengers wore their winter apparel up to the sighting of Nantucket.

MAXIMUM OF 88 REACHED IN FLORIDA.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Semi-tropical Florida where old Sol reigns in his majestic splendor throughout the year, has refused to suffer the heat wave that has swept with fatal torridness over the east and middle west.

Loal thundershowers abetted by cooling breezes from off the peninsula almost surrounding and inland bodies of water have kept the state in its usual more or less peaceful mild temperature condition all through the seemingly non-vacillating and gradually spreading activities of the heat wave.

Maximum Is 88.

Yesterday while the official thermometer soared to extremely high points in other sections of the country, Florida's maximum was an 88, Apalachicola, Bartow, Sanford and Hastings giving that mark, according to the report of A. J. Mitchell, meteorologist of the United States department of agriculture, weather bureau, Florida division.

An 80 was registered here as Florida's "gateway city" high mark yesterday, while other highs were an 82 at Miami, 84's at Fort Pierce, Orlando and Titusville and 80's at Tampa and Key West.

Today, as of yesterday, local showers accompanied by thunder is forecast.

Rain Is General.

At Titusville, .48 inch of rain fell during yesterday while according to the records Bartow had .34 inch, Tampa .24 and Orlando .06.

At 8 a. m. today Florida temperatures bested as to low readings reports from other sections, with indications, Mr. Mitchell predicted, that this would be the state of atmospheric conditions throughout the day. At that hour Jacksonville, Tampa, Titusville, Apalachicola and Pensacola were running neck and neck with 76's while Fort Myers appeared to be the low medalist at 74. Boston and Washington at that hour, according to reports reaching the local bureau, showed an 82-degree thermometer reading. Toledo, Ohio, an 84 and New York, Pittsburg and Chicago 80 each.

SEVEN MORE DEATHS IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston, June 5.—Seven more deaths were caused in Boston and Massachusetts by the heat Friday.

In Boston one man committed suicide, another was found dead in bed, and an unknown woman dropped dead on the street. The other fatalities due to the heat were reported from Lawrence, Bradford, Worcester and Lynn.

All public schools here were closed, and Mayor Curley issued orders to throw open the city parks for sleepers at night.

THREE WOMEN GOLFERS COLLAPSE FROM HEAT.

Montclair, N. J., June 5.—Three women playing in the one-day tournament of the New Jersey Women's Golf association collapsed Friday from the intense heat.

FIFTEEN ARMY HORSES ARE KILLED BY HEAT.

Baltimore, June 5.—Fifteen army horses taking part in a carnival at Timonium, Md., died from the heat and more than a score soldiers were prostrated.

MARK OF 96 REGISTERED BY HEAT IN NEW YORK.

New York, June 5.—Drained of resistance by 120 hours of unbroken equatorial weather, New York's sweltering millions tonight welcomed even the few degrees of relief afforded by the disappearance of a brazen sun. Holding consistently in the 90's, the temperature set new records as the daylight hours passed until at 4 o'clock the weather bureau's thermometer registered 96, an advance of 5 degrees over the previous high for June 5, set in 1898. Scores of business houses announced a holiday over Saturday.

Although few deaths directly attributable to the heat wave were recorded during the day, the incomplete police record listed between 30 and 40 heat prostrations.

The situation was not without a comedy touch. A group of chorus girls, after an arduous rehearsal atop a sundrenched building, donned one-piece bathing suits and ran to the pool in Columbus circle. They had caused a crush of sight-seers before they were dispersed by police.

THERMOMETER REGISTERS 100 AT PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, June 5.—The heat wave here reached its height today at 3:45 p. m., when a temperature of 100 degrees was registered by the United States weather bureau. This shatters all records for the month of June during the 54 years of the local bureau's history. Schools closed at noon and many industrial and business establishments suspended early in the afternoon.

Nine deaths from heat and many prostrations were reported during the day, making a total of 15 deaths since last Monday.

SHIPPING BOARD ASKS BIDS FOR 200 SHIPS

Washington, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bids returnable June 30 will be asked immediately by the shipping board for sale of 200 of its ships for scrapping.

It is expected that Henry Ford among others will submit tenders.

The ships will be offered in any numbers up to the maximum of 200. Offer will also be made to sell them at practically scrapping prices for operation in the event that the purchaser agrees to equip them with diesel engines.

CHALLENGE HURLED IN COIN CAMPAIGN

Atlanta's quota. Leading citizens, men and women, have laid aside other duties in the past week to lend their services to the citywide drive.

The Debutantes' club joined in Friday afternoon with a benefit tea-dansant at the Biltmore hotel in the interest of the coin sale campaign; civic clubs, various women's clubs and other organizations are showing a similar interest in the drive here.

With the division of the city into 23 sections, late Thursday, with each division alloted a large number of workers headed by a colonel, the campaign took on new interest and sales through Friday indicated that the plan was working splendidly, according to Mr. Newell.

"The campaign has reached the point where everyone must be given a chance to buy a coin and everyone must contribute if the drive is to be the success it should be," Mr. Newell said.

FIGHT ON PISTOL INDORSED AT ROME

Rome, Ga., June 5.—Disregarding the protests of the men honored, the Georgia County Officers' association, in convention here, today re-elected officers by acclamation. The election result was: William L. Grayson, clerk of Chatham superior court, president; W. C. Walton, clerk of Bartow superior court, vice president; J. C. Cooper, clerk of Baldwin superior court, secretary.

The convention today adopted resolutions favoring the limitation of business sessions to one day and entertainment to one day, as well as changing the time of meeting to the last week in May, instead of the first week in June. Both were referred to a committee for action.

Resolutions were adopted in memory of the late D. L. Sanford, of Milledgeville, and the late W. D. Whelchel, of Hall county, who were members of the association. Other resolutions adopted expressed appreciation for local hospitality and other attentions show the convention.

Another resolution favored the repeal of the permanent registration law as a means to the elimination of the names of non-voters. Other resolutions condemning pistol-carrying and inddorsing a proposal that more liberal appropriations be made for the maintenace of state training schools for delinquent boys and girls were adopted.

IT SPANS THE WORLD

Last of Shattuck Robbers

:: LONG SEARCH BY VICTIM RESULTS IN REVENGE ::

Finally Is Sent to Prison

New York, June 5.—Albert R. Shattuck, the elderly Monte Cristo of Washington square on the border of New York's famous Greenwich Village, may now resume the peaceful way of his life. He avenged himself Friday on the last of four men whom he set out to get three years ago and walked out of the court of general sessions with the knowledge that all of the robbers who left him and his household to smother in a locked wine-cellar of the Shattuck mansion, had been put away, probably for life.

Paul Camillieri, a Paris apache with a criminal record in his own country, was sentenced to serve from 45 to 65 years in Sing Sing, and unless he should escape, or win the clemency of some future governor, he will remain in the dungeon on the Hudson until 1959. Then he will be eligible for a parole.

Thus closed the Shattuck robbery case, a classic crime in the records of New York, the investigation of which extended around the world with the elderly banker, aroused from the placid existence of a retired financier, pursuing the robbers with the implacable zeal of a Scotland yard man.

Camillieri and two partners in the robbery, Eugene Diazet and Maurice Bagnoli are in Sing Sing. Diazet and Bagnoli serving terms of from 40 to 60 years. The fourth man, Gabriel Mourey, was caught in Paris and sentenced to be beheaded but his punishment was changed to life imprisonment on the plea of Shattuck himself, who relented when Mourey was at his mercy.

The Shattuck case, as familiar to New York as the Elwell murder case of Harry Thaw's assassination of Stanford White, "broke" on a dull Sunday morning in the city rooms of the morning papers, when the banker, using the edge of a dime as a screwdriver, after hours of patient work in a stifling atmosphere, removed the lock of the winecellar and stumbled into the fresh air, releasing his wife and the family maid, who had been locked in the vault with him. Treachery in the household was the basis of operations of the Mourey band, for Mourey was the leader of the enterprise. One of the robbers had obtained a job as butler in the large, gloomy mansion on Washington square and he buttled so perfectly that the Shattucks were utterly surprised when the accomplices were quietly let into the house and the whole band herded them into the wine-cellar.

Mrs. Shattuck fell on her knees before the robbers and begged for a few moments' grace in which to compose her soul for death, as Judge Rosalsky narrated Friday in passing sentence on Camillieri.

"But you responded, 'do not ask God to prolong your life but to forgive our sins'" the judge thundered at Camillieri. "You have evinced not only a depraved mind, but a reckless disregard for the lives of these persons. You laughed as you seized her, threw her into the vault and slammed the door. The worst punishment I am allowed to give you will be inadequate. Mrs. Shattuck believes you should be put out of the way, deprived of your life."

As soon as the alarm was spread and Mrs. Shattuck was revived that April Sunday morning in 1922, Shattuck closed the mansion and set out after the robbers, directing the search himself, and vowing never to rest or reopen the home until they were punished or dead.

Judge Rosalsky said the pursuit cost about $50,000. Some of the jewelry that was stolen from the dressing room of Mrs. Shattuck was recovered, but this was a minor consideration with the banker whose motivating idea was revenge.

Cruel as the crime was, it was not much, if any worse than a daily routine of cases in New York police records. But Shattuck's money and influence were such that in one of New York's crimes at least, the robbers got the utmost limit of the law, whereas ten years in Sing Sing is the average term for burglars who endanger human life.

GENERAL WARFARE IN CHINA IMPENDS

their anxiety regarding the Chinese situation. While declining to comment publicly, they have realized for months that the trend of the nationalist spirit in China and the lack of central government in Pekin portend difficulties of an intricate and delicate sort that would have to be solved sooner or later.

Feng already has withdrawn from Pekin, which he took in 1924 by a coup executed while he was a subordinate commander of the Chihli military party, then headed by Wu-Pei-Fu, who was thrust out of the political picture in China because of Feng's defection. There has been no open clash as yet between the forces of Chang and Feng but observers on the ground have been predicting for months that it must come, and recent direct reports indicate that the old break of hostilities can not be long delayed.

In view of these circumstances, the disturbances in Shanghai and elsewhere precipitated by Chinese students, the only central objective of which is the stripping of special rights from foreigners in China, take on new significance. The demands made by students and other discontented elements, printed in hand bill style and scattered through the streets of Shanghai, Canton, Changsha and even in Pekin, synchronize exactly with soviet propaganda which has been broadcast in China since the arrival in Pekin of the soviet ambassador, H. Karakhan as well as with statements reported to have been made by him in addresses before student bodies which aroused the protest of the diplomatic corps in Pekin.

SHANGHAI SITUATION REMAINS UNCHANGED.

Shanghai, June 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—The situation in the international settlement resulting from the strike following the students' demonstrations of protest against the arrest of Chinese strikers in Japanese cotton mills remained unchanged this morning, but the shops in the adjoining French concession were generally reopening.

Hotels, cafes and similar establishmens were drawing on Shanghai's hitherto huge horde of unemployed Russian refugees to fill the places of the striker.

The house boys, cooks, and other workers have formulated a list of extravagant demands ranging from abolishing extra territorial privileges to a 40 per cent wage increase.

The food control staff is gradually stocking huge quantities of supplies and preparing for emergencies.

Widespread alarm was caused in the American residential section of the French concession this morning when the continued patter of machine-gun fire was heard. This, however, was caused by volunteer units at target practice.

The weather is overcast and misty.

awfulness of gas warfare. He committed France to any intiative ending combats with poison gas, but he uttered a solemn warning that international morality could not be effective against poison gas unless accompanied by penalities.

"We must make war impossible," the speaker exclaimed, "and the only way to do this is to make any aggressor state realize that it will find arrayed against it the armed forces of the civilized nations of the entire world."

BURTON'S STATEMENT CONFIRMED AT CAPITOL.

Washington, June 5.—It officially was disclosed tonight that Representative Theodore E. Burton, chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva arms traffic conference, had been authorized to announce President Coolidge's willingness to call a special poison gas conference in Washington if that quetsion was not agreed upon at Geneva.

Mr. Burton was authorized to say that if the powers at the Geneva conference, as well as other powers, felt it opportune to take steps in the matter of a poison gas agreement, President Coolidge would be disposed, under certain conditions, to extend an invitation to the powers interested.

E. J. YOUNG FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

Quitman, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) Funeral services for E. J. Young here Thursday were attended by perhaps the largest assemblage in the history of the county. All business houses closed as a tribute of respect.

Mr. Young was a leading figure in this section in a peculiar sense; born just at the close of the war, he began life with little except courage and native intelligence, and the fortune he amassed was based strictly on farming. He was one of the truly successful farmers in south Georgia, investing the profits of his farm in real estate in town, but building his beautiful home on the site of his father's first home and giving his close personal supervision to every detail of farming.

He was a director of the Bank of Quitman for 16 years and gave that the close attention characteristic of him, but permitted nothing else to divert his energies from his farm. He was a leader in every enterprise for the development of the county and it was to the native genius of him and others like him that the county gained such precedence agriculturally. For many years the marvelous displays the county made at state fairs excited the wonder of all who saw them. The four pillars of prosperity on the Young farm, Kingfisher plantation were meat, grain, hay and syrup and all other crops were details of the superstructure.

Strict business integrity and a painstaking sense of duty to all obligations marked all his dealings. Mr. Young's last public service was as chairman of the board of county commissioners. In all his public relations and his family life he was a model of those virtues that enrich community life.

DISGUST AND GLOOM IS BERLIN'S REACTION.

Berlin, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Disgust, mingled with ridicule and gloom, may be said to characterize the sentiments in German official quarters over the allied disarmament note.

Now that the document, which has been long in the making, has emerged from its diplomatic recess, semi-official comments are not lacking. They are frankly candid, without aiming to minimize the seriousness of the contents of the note, in so far as they are likely to produce fresh embarrassments in Germany's foreign relations.

Internally, the note is viewed as providing the nationalists with much welcome grist for their reactionary mills, and the government leaders frankly point out that the prospects of negotiating a security pact have been materially vitiated by the allied indictment of Germany for alleged disarmament defaults.

For the time being, official quarters are confining their observations to informal discussions of the situation. The Luther government will take its time to draft a reply, and in all probability will dissent from the note in such a manner that its various accusations will constitute subjects for individual treatment.

Next week the government will confer with the reichstag committee on foreign relations and with the premiers of the federated states, who must be consulted with special reference to the demand of the allies for reductions in Germany's policing forces.

BUCKNER ADDRESS FEATURES MEET

Savannah, Ga., June 5.—Emory R. Buckner's address before the Georgia Bar association in session at Tybee was the big feature, not only of the day, but of the entire convention.

Speaking extemporaneously and largely in the vernacular, with a use of vigorous, direct, graphic English, Mr. Buckner presented the association with an annual address very different in style, manner and spirit from the usual "annual address" of these meetings.

For the first 20 minutes he just talked, wittily, delightfully, vividly, about things in general—such things as why state bar associations exist and why visiting speakers from other states are asked to come and address them. It was a talk full of the flavor of personality, with the background of ideas and original thinking which have helped to make the United States district attorney of the southern district of New York famous in the three months that he has held office.

Won Friendship.

Before he got into the main part of his address, which lasted a brief half hour, he had completely won the friendship and interest of his audience. When he suggested then that he might stop, there were shouts of "No, no! Go on. Go on!" and an outburst of spontaneous applause, which showed how genuine the enthusiasm was for his ideas and his way of presenting them. For five or ten minutes longer he talked, as one lawyer to another, talking in direct, straightforward style the best ideas and ethics of the profession and his own convictions about them, illustrated with dramatic gestures and story, easily suggested how successful he must have been as trial lawyer for the firm of Root, Clark Buckner and Howland, of New York, a position he left to take up the onerous work of United States district attorney.

That problems of the federal court in New York are typical of such problems everywhere was a point which he sustained convincingly, his idea being that every federal problem is in a special sense a local problem everywhere, affecting not merely the city in which it develops but in all other cities. Mr. Buckner fulfilled all expectations.

Atlanta Men Speak.

Two other addresses of importance were heard during the day. One of these was by Judge Alex Stephens, who spoke on "the advocate at the bar, as illustrated by the career of Lord Erskine," and the other was by associate justice of the supreme court of Georgia, H. Warner Hill, who spoke on "the menace of lawlessness." Both were heard with interest by large audiences.

First of the committee reports to be considered, the report of the committee on jurisprudence, law reform and procedure, occupied almost the whole of the afternoon session and was discussed and amended. Only minor changes were made in the report as presented by the committee, Judge A. B. Lovett, chairman; F. T. Moon, Graham Wright and Zack Arnold.

Mr. Arnold, who is vice president from the third congressional district, conducted this session and the report was presented by Judge Lovett.

That the topics were live ones was proved by the animated discussion, the differing views, and the frequent call for a division.

The first section, providing that rules of practice and procedure should be made by the courts, was adopted without change. This was also true of the second and third sections. One provided that exceptions to the court's charge to the jury, given or refused, should be taken befoe the jury retires. An attempt to amend this provision so that such exceptions should be taken without the presence of the jury was lost, after a division had been called for.

Vote Was Close.

The third section recommends the substitution of a writ of certiorari for a bill of exceptions except in cases involving capital punishment, constitutional questions and perhaps a few others. The vote was close on this matter, and after a division was called for the section was adopted. Section 4, regarding judgments at appearance terms, was amended by eliminating the words "on unconditional contracts in writing," and substituting "when personal service is obtained," and by adding a provision making the recommendation applicable where demurrers, pleas, answers or other defense have been overruled, dismissed or otherwise disposed of.

Sections 5, 6 and 7 were adopted, no amendments being offered.

Section 8, with regard to disbarment proceedings, was amended to make the question of moral turpitude one to be defined by them and not by a jury.

Attention was called in section 9 to an inconsistency in the law which makes it unlawful for one to permit another to locate distilling apparatus for intoxicants on his premises, but does not make it unlawful to have such apparatus in one's own possession. The committee recommended either that it should be made unlawful or that the prohibitory law should be repealed. This caused some joking and considerable discussion. A motion was made to adopt the recommendation that it be made unlawful for one to have distilling apparatus in his possession with a valid penalty imposed. A tie vote, 21 to 21, resulted. The chairman declined to cast the deciding vote, but the secretary, Harry Strozier, did so, voting with the affirmative.

Other sections were adopted with no changes or minor technical ones.

Provision Adopted.

The committee also submitted a supplemental report. The provision with reference to the power of the superior court to renew charters more than once was approved. An amendment was offered by Robert C. Alston, of Atlanta and approved after some debate, by which a charter would be granted without the present required advertising or with less or no advertising, and by which corporations would be authorized to issue no-par value stock. In discussing the matter Mr. Alston said that while he does not question the legality of the issuance of no-par value stock the securities commission of Georgia will not recognize it.

The provision regarding the constitutionality of the banking act was adopted. The last section of the supplemental report was defeated.

A conference on local bar associations was held at the concern of the general meeting, with Paul H. Doyal, of Rome, chairman of this committee, presiding. Mr. Doyal submitted his report first to the general session, with definite recommendations as to improving the relationship between state and local associations and bringing about a closer affiliation.

The nominating committee, of which Judge Arthur G. Powell, of Atlanta, is chairman, reported at the morning session and all officers nominated were unanimously elected. They follow: President, Lee W. Branch, Quitman; first vice president, Graham Wright, Rome; secretary, Harry Strozier, Macon; treasurer, Logan Bleckley, Atlanta; executive committee: Marion Smith, Atlanta, chairman; J. R. Philips, Louisville; John B. Gamble, Athens; Millard Reese, Brunswick.

Vice presidents by congressional districts: First, J. Ferris Cann, Savannah; second, Jeff D. Pope, Cairo; third, U. V. Whipple, Cordele; fourth, R. O. Jones, Newnan; fifth, Charles B. Shelton, Atlanta; sixth, J. N. Talley, Macon; seventh, Graham Wright, Rome; eighth, Noel P. Park, Greensboro; ninth, John S. Wood, Canton; tenth, P. B. Johnson, Thompson; eleventh, Foster Memory, Blackshear; twelfth, W. S. Mann, McRae.

Volunteer Honor Needed

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

Volunteer honor to the memory of the old south is what is needed to raise Atlanta to the height from which she can look proudly about her and acclaim to the world that she has kept the faith—that she has purchased 200,000 coins of the 2,500,000 minted as a tribute to the valor of Confederate soldiers.

Soldiers of the south did not wait for some one to come and ask them to fight for their homeland; they did not close their eyes and ears when the call came. They flocked to the Stars and Bars and fought until there was nothing left with which they might make another effort.

As an individual citizen can you afford to sit and wait for the man who may never come to request that you buy a memorial coin? Is it keeping the faith if you do? Why not be as good a soldier as the men who once defended the south? The banks have the certificates on sale.

Atlanta and the south will not fail to support the great monument which more than any other single thing will attest the greatness of the region in which we live. The fact that a southerner led the revolutionary armies, the fact that a southerner wrote the Declaration of Independence, and that a southerner guided the destinies of the nation throughout the world war, are things of imperishable memory. They say to the world that here is a well of valor, a fountain of intelligence and courage.

But if we fail now to carve in everlasting stone the story of those men who will live forever in memory as the bravest who ever strove for a principle, history will have been ashamed, and we ourselves will regret it.

Less than a week now remains. Only a few days to prove to the north, which so graciously said "these were our valorous foes, and here are our valorous brothers," that we are as great in heart as they.

Let us not fail in the task.

JURY FINDS MISSING COUNTERFEITER GUILTY

Chicago, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—A jury in the $1,000,000 war saving stamp counterfeiting case today, after nearly 68 hours of deliberation, found Santo Jemalli, a missing defendant, guilty, and disagreed as to Anthony Volpe.

Originally there were 14 defendants charged with the conspiracy, which had ramifications in Cleveland, Pittsburg, New York and Chicago. Charles Leach, who turned government witness, was given a separate trial. He testified that he made the plates for the counterfeiters. Eleven other defendants pleaded guilty, and a week ago, on the eve of the guilty pleas by the majority of the defendants, Jemalli disappeared. His bond of $20,000 was forfeited.

The case has been marked by the assassination of Antonio Bambara, one of the accused men, and the attempted assassination of another, Daniel Perry, a former court bailiff.

Ben Newmark, former assistant state fire marshal, and one other, were granted separate trials. Later the jurors were questioned by Assistant District Attorney Daniel Anderson in connection with rumors of jury tampering in the federal building.

CALIFORNIAN IS NAMED MEAT STORY CHAMPION

Chicago, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Frances Erdman, of Turlock, Calif., has been chosen national champion in the second national meat story contest, the National Live Stock and Meat board announced tonight. Requirements of the contest, carrying prizes totalling $2,500, were that contestants write the message on the subject of meat, accompanying them with three practical meat recipes.

Winners of other national prizes include Emily Scott, Memphis, Tenn., third, and Dolly Potter, Ocala, Fla., fourth.

50-ROOM HOTEL BURNS AT VIDALIA

Vidalia, Ga., June 5.—The Barwick hotel, a two-story 50-room brick structure, was burned to the ground early this morning at 4 o'clock, many of the guests being forced to flee in their night apparel to escape the flames.

The fire started on the ground floor and spread all over the building before it was discovered.

RAIN GIVES RELIEF TO CROPS AT LYONS

Lyons, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Rain here yesterday afternoon came as a welcome relief from the long drouth that has prevailed here for several weeks. Cotton has not been suffering but has been almost covered with lice. Corn, sweet potatoes, especially the early varieties, and tobacco were suffering, though it is not thought any serious damage was done. The big-stem Jerseys are looking fine now and one early Porto Rican grower reports sweet potatoes the size of a man's fist.

The family is widely connected in south Georgia and relatives and friends from Valdosta, Thomasville and other cities attended the funeral.

Mr. Young is survived by his widow and the following children: Mrs. George Wood, of Abbeville, La.; Everett Young and Mrs. Henry Lumpkin, of Quitman, and Mrs. Terrell Fender, of Valdosta.

New Grant Park Bus Line Begins Operation Today

SERVICE on the new Grant Park bus line begins today as a part of the coordinated trolley and bus system now being developed to give Atlanta a greater and more adequate transportation service. The new route, a mile and a quarter long, will serve a section now without any regular transportation service and will enable visitors to Grant Park to reach conveniently sections of the park distant from the car lines.

ROUTE—From the terminus of the Grant Park street car lines at Augusta and Cherokee avenues, the route will be south on Cherokee avenue to Atlanta avenue, thence east on Atlanta avenue to South Boulevard, then south on South Boulevard to Home avenue, then along Home avenue to Confederate avenue, thence north on Confederate avenue to the terminus of the East Fair-White City car line at Confederate avenue and Ormewood avenue, returning along the same route.

SCHEDULE—The first bus will leave Cherokee and Augusta avenues at 6 A. M., and from Confederate and Ormewood avenues at 6:10 A. M., and thereafter every twenty minutes throughout the day, the last bus leaving Confederate and Ormewood avenues at 11:44 P. M.

The fare on the Grant Park line will be the same as on the Morningside and Sylvan Hills busses now operating. Fare on the bus will be ten cents with free transfer to the street cars. A street car passenger desiring to transfer to the bus line will be given a special transfer which, with three cents additional, will be accepted as fare on the bus.

BEGIN RIGHT IN YOUTH:—Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them. Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man.—Ecclesiastes 12:1, 13.

PRAYED:—Dear Lord, Thou hast said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Make us all Thine own little children, and then it shall be our joy to do Thy will daily.

JANITORS AND TEACHERS.

There are 15,000 janitors in the schools of the United States who receive more than the average salary Georgia pays her teachers. Will the Georgia legislature let this condition continue?

What is a trained mind worth? What is leadership worth? In business both command high prices. The head of almost any big business is ready and willing and anxious to pay well for either. In the business world a man or woman who has special training coupled with imagination and leadership ability can rise high. Vision, initiative, the ability to think and plan, the ability to influence the minds of others favorably, can almost demand their own price among the leaders of industry. There is always a good market for them.

Yet these same qualities are demanded of the good teacher who gives the young mind the kind of training it should have. The imaginative brain of the child requires imaginative illustration in teaching. The proper guiding of a spirited child demands the best in leadership. Lessons must be visualized to a mind that has had no contact with the subject. The teacher is constantly being called upon to meet special conditions by initiating new methods, and must not only think, but must be able to train others to think. All good school work must be carefully planned. The whole work of teaching is the influencing favorably of the minds of others.

In 1,165 cities of 2,500 people or over in the United States there are 17,837 school janitors. Of these 15,423 are paid $700 or more. Half the nearly 18,000 janitors receive salaries of $1,308 a year or higher. Fourteen of them are paid over $3,800.

Under such rules of economics one would judge that sweeping out the school was of more value to the world than the teaching of the young mind and laying the foundation for the development of character; for 15,000 of these 17,837 janitors receive from $100 to $3,200 and over a year more than the average salary of Georgia's teachers.

When conditions like these exist, is it any wonder that it is hard for Georgia to get able teachers; that the good ones last only a term or so, and then drift into the business world; that too many of Georgia's schools lack leadership, therefore, efficiency; that the good leaders we have are a small band of devoted people who place duty and service above mere economic welfare. Is such a condition to continue?

THE WOOD APPEAL.

General Leonard Wood, who was a great physician before he became a great military man and statesman, makes a stirring appeal for a $1,000,000 American contribution to the work of stamping the dreaded disease of leprosy off the face of the earth.

General Wood has been instrumental, during his service as governor-general of the Philippine islands, in bringing about such a change in treatment of patients and understanding of the disease at Culion island, the great leper colony, that hope is now bright that a cure for leprosy, with the concomitant wiping out of the disease all over the world, is in sight.

General Wood is quoted as saying:

"I believe we are on the verge of great results in the treatment and care of leprosy. We are working, not only for the lepers here, but for lepers all over the world, and our success will be theirs as well. In other words, we can, if allowed, render a great service at Culion to stricken humanity throughout the world, by demonstrating that this dread disease can be controlled."

It apparently is firmly established that leprosy can now be cured by the use of the X-ray, violet ray and a coordinated electric-medical treatment. More than 100 cases have been cured in recent months and the patients, who but a short time before awaited only the grave as a release from their mental anguish, have been sent to their homes to take up again the threads of life. Among them were representatives of the professions, teachers and young people of beauty and culture.

Why is this not a most appealing opportunity for one of the great foundations, like the Carnegie, or the Rockefeller, or the Sage, to contribute at least a large portion of the needed funds? Would not Henry Ford feel better if he, too, helped?

Assuredly no human service could pay better dividends in the satisfaction of having abetted a great undertaking for humanity.

CANADA'S ARCTIC CLAIM.

It now appears that Canada claims all the lands which lie north of the dominion between Alaska and Greenland, even up to the north pole.

In the meantime, however, Washington dispatches make it clear that should Captain Donald B. MacMillan and Commander Byrd, who will head the Amercian aerial expedition to the unknown areas in the arctic circle, find land and actually place Old Glory upon it, then this government will officially resist the claims of Canada or any other government to such land.

It is very obvious, and certainly precedental, that American explorers will claim American sovereignty over all new territory visited.

The theoretical continent now known as Harris Land or Crocker Land, which the MacMillan expedition will try to explore this summer, lies clearly within the limits claimed by Canada. It was this territory which MacMillan referred to last week when he announced his intention to place the American flag on all land found and claim it by right of discovery.

As the MacMillan expedition is under the joint auspices of the National Georgraphic society and the navy department, it is at least semi-official.

THE TRADE DECISION.

The supreme court has approved the trade practices of the Maple Floor Manufacturers' Association and the Cement Manufacturers' Association in pooling their knowledge of market conditions, sources of supply, trade practices, price data, etc. It based its approval on the broad statement that such practices do not constitute "restraint of trade," which is prohibited under the Sherman anti-trust law. The majority decision had a minority decision signed by three members of the court.

The New York World, thus commenting on the decision, suggests that—

"The decision, therefore, should not be hailed with undue delight by concerted producers who are hoping to dictate prices as they please. The big industries of the country must still take care not to cross the line of exchanging information and enter the field of actual combination to present a united front to consumers. The problem of the situation is the familiar one in which worthy devices may be used for unworthy ends."

There was something absurd in the decision in the hardwood case three years ago, when it appeared that the Sherman law required producers to act in ignorance of the kind of information which the government gives with regard to cotton, corn, wheat and other commodities. The so-called open competition plan then condemned was one which enabled business men to acquire the sort of knowledge assumed to be characteristic of that imaginary economic man who stood in the forefront of our older economics. It looked as though the supreme court as then constituted regarded ignorance of market conditions as an essential factor of desirable competition.

There is not the slightest doubt that the decision does open the door for the use of these devices—held as legal—in order to maintain prices "above those necessary to make reasonable profits."

The decision is such a potential warning, however, that the course of wisdom on the part of business is to prove that the privileges conferred by the decision not only shall not be abused, but shall be used wisely in a cooperative spirit that may redound to the benefit of the consumer as well as the dealer.

There's little hope for the innocent pedestrian, for when airplanes are thick above him, they'll probably land on him while he's sidestepping the street traffic.

Good Mornin'!

Good mornin' to the mornin'!—
They're short o' rain on high,
But it's nothin' that's uncommon,
An' it's comin', by an' by.

The valley, hill an' plain—
They can wait a while for rain,
For they know they'l hear the rumble
Of the welcome thunder-train!

Good mornin' to the mornin'!—
What's there to growl about?
It's bright as if the angels
Turned heaven inside out!

Shall weather make us sigh
With such a painted sky?
They're short o' rain up yonder,
But it's comin', by an' by!

Took No Chances.

Talking about the need of good roads, The Butler (Mo.) Times tells this one—

"A man who had evidently heard of the bad mud holes near Butler passed through town recently. He was driving a Ford truck on which were two fine-looking horses. Hanging to the sides of the truck were two sets of harness. All that was necessary when getting stuck in a mud hole was to unload his team of horses, harness up and pull the flivver out of the mud."

"A Little Too Previous."

Speaking of the bill which was introduced in the Florida legislature to change the name of the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of Florida, Editor McIntosh said in The Albany Herald:

"A good portion of the state of Florida borders on the gulf, but this doesn't give Florida ownership or title to the whole pond! It will remain the Gulf of Mexico and will be so known and called by the world for all time, regardless of any act of the Florida legislature."

Of the Birds.

I guess they've got their troubles—
The birds—an', not a few;
But still they keep a-singin'
All their sweetest songs to you,
Still welcomin' the mornin'
Across the fields of dew:

They have their storm an' sunshine,
And bear a wounded breast.
Their little ones forsake them,
And lonely is the nest;
But still they keep a-singin',
And all the blooms are blest!

Today's Talk
BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INCENTIVE.

To keep our heads up and our hearts warm, there must be a bright light or a glowing fire within us somewhere, somehow.

We can't just desire to rise. We must have something about us that makes it impossible for us not to rise. I am thinking of this something as incentive. If this lives within us, then there is great hope. There is a reason for everything.

But with incentive dead, there is reason for nothing, not even life.

I often think of those whose names have become great in the world and wonder what brought them out—out of themselves out of sordid conditions in many cases, out of situations that many would have thought too heavy with odds and difficulties.

And I have found this to be true: those who have achieved for themselves have always achieved for others. Their greatest incentive has been to make this world better while they were around and then leave it with something accumulated as a heritage to those who follow.

Incentive amounts merely to this—an unselfish vision, clothed with a desire to make that vision real in as many forms as possible.

Incentive in a selfish person is like the sparks that the blacksmith's hammer throws off—only to show light for a few brief seconds and then to die in dust about the great task of the artisan. Whereas the blacksmith himself, having incentive in his heart, produces something useful from his blows.

If you have no incentive you are as much out of life as the tree that has just been felled. Others must take up your abandoned task and build from it.

We are all guided by stars of some sort or other.

Even our failures, resulting from honest effort, are an incentive to try again and the next time not to fall down so easily.

For incentive is that spark within us that keeps lifting us up until we are made strong enough to stand alone and accomplish our task in the world.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Intellectual Germany.

Frau Bertha Sprung, delegate from Austria to the International Council of Women, gives out the assurance that: "from intellectual Germany the world never need fear danger." The world indeed expects no different from intellectual Germany. If any men should be able to escape from the tyranny of the herd instinct and avoid enslavement by the revengeful, jealous and authoritarian mentality of the crowd, then it is the man of science and the artists, the spiritual leader. It is deplorable that in the past such great and luminous spirits as Gerard Hauptman and Professor Haeckel immediately subscribed to the popular frenzy in Germany and refused to accept the outstretched hands of men who wanted to place the cause of justice before that of the fatherland. Instead of lighting the darkness with their mighty intellects, they extinguished the last flicker of reason and left humanity in a night in which brother did not recognize brother. Yet that is of the past. Frau Sprung gives new hope for the future. And there is voluminous evidence that her prediction will become a fact to be relied upon. There are more and more people in Germany who feel with Goethe "that the fate and destiny of other peoples is a matter of deep concern for the whole of humanity." It is true that these sentiments are not yet the property of all. But it cannot be supposed that reason will ever become popular. But another saying of Goethe is applicable there, namely; that "everything great, and everything most worth having comes from a minority."

Rights of An Artist.

Jacob Epstein, the English sculptor, who created a storm a few years ago with his statue of "Jesus" is again the center of a violent controversy. This time it concerns a memorial to William H. Hudson, the naturalist. The controversy has been carried to the floor of the house of commons. Premier Baldwin unveiled the statue in Hyde Park and praised Epstein's work. In the commons Colonel James suggested that the sculptor thought he had to make a piece of sculpture with birds and had produced a scarecrow." As in the case of the Jesus statue, Epstein is condemned because he has not reproduced the image that existed in the popular mind. But he has been true to the right and duty of every artist to recreate his subject as he conceived it in his own mind. The charge of irresponsible creation in the case of Epstein holds no ground. For there is no irresponsibility in art. Even a thing that is lightly undertaken may prove exceptionally beautiful.

Were Wolves And Faery.

A German missionary writing from his post on the outskirts of the Gobi desert tells of cases where old Buddhist priests go into a trance and remain in a sort of semi-conscious state the rest of their lives. This phenomenon is not restricted to Mongolia. There are plenty of instances in the peasant districts of Flanders where a man or woman is suddenly brought home from the field very ill and put to bed and stays there for a short or even a long time, in a sort of dazed condition, like the trance of a spiritualist medium. The peasants believe that the person is gone on a journey in Faery land. They say the priests know where they are but they won't tell. In some sections it is even the belief that the body in bed is not that of the person, but something resembling it closely and that the onlookers are also bewitched into believing it is the person. The afflicted one may die and it is generally believe dthat faery folk have fetched him away. W. B. Yeats is the authority who has collected hundreds of stories on similar cases in Ireland. But in Ireland the peasants go the Flemings one better. Yeats was told again and again that faery folk, mermaids, old men and women, nymphs and miniature funerals had been seen passing through the meadows or over the moors. All they have seen in Flanders is the werewolf and that only on stormy nights. Considering that most girls stay indoors on such nights the werewolf, (nothing but a disguise of the devil, according to the peasants) finds it impossible to do a great deal of harm and beyond setting the dogs a-howling his roamings do not upset anyone's peace of mind.

Watch on De Jordan.

Lord Plumer, Britain's man of emergencies, the "guardian of the marshes of Flanders," who stopped the breach when General Gough's Fifth British army was annihilated in March, 1918, and who on another occasion raced to the aid of the Italians, who were being battered into submission by the Austrians, goes to command the British forces in the near east. In addition, he will be the high commissioner of Palestine. There are explanations a-plenty given for this change. But Lord Plumer does not go to protect Jews against Arabs, nor does he go for the specific purpose of aiding in Zionist reclamation work. Lord Plumer goes to command a new watch on the Jordan. He will be within striking distance of the Mesopotamian oil fields and not too far away from the Suez canal. When war with Turkey threatened three years ago Winston Churchill sent out his flamboyant manifesto to the dominions calling upon them to stand by the mother-land. Mr. Lloyd George appointed Lord Plumer to take command of the armies on the Dardanelles. There have recently been signs of unrest in the Arabian hinterlands. The Turks would prefer to keep Mosul. The case has been reported at police headquarters and John Bull has sent a cop.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

WATER IS NEXT TO AIR.

One hundred pounds of the body weight of a person weighing 150 pounds is water. Man is two-thirds water and can live longer without food than without water. There is a constant daily loss of water, through the kidneys, the skin and the lungs, amounting to an average of three quarts, or say 5 1-2 pounds, and this is ordinarily made up by the water intake. There is a very small amount of water excreted through the intestine (only two or three ounces) and in such secretions as saliva or sputum, tears and the like. How long a man may live without water is a question, perhaps not over a week. An animal deprived of water dies when one-tenth of its water has been excreted from the body. Man ordinarily excretes one-tenth of his water in three or four days when deprived of water.

The daily excretion of five or six pints of water occurs through the various excretory organs in about this proportion: Through the kidneys, three pints; through the skin, 1 1-2 pints; through the lungs (in the form of aqueous vapor in the expired air) from a pint to 1 1-2 pints. These are only average figures and apply to an individual at rest. The amounts of water excreted through the skin and the lungs increase greatly with muscular activity and with increased atmospheric temperature. The amount excreted through the kidneys ordinarily diminishes when the skin excretion is increased, and vice versa.

The five or six pints of water necessary in the daily intake is not all drinking water, but includes also the water in foods, such as milks, fruits, fresh vegetables, and the water formed in the body from the oxidation of the hydrogen in carbohydrates, proteins and fats. Nutrition chemists estimate that on an ordinary mixed diet a man thus manufactures by oxidation, about four ounces of water for every 1,000 calories of food metabolized. So here is nearly a pint of water newly formed in the body every day.

Old theories or prejudices aside, the uses or purposes of water in the body are (1) the surface of the lungs must be moist before the exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxid can take place. (2) circulating water (in the blood) makes possible the regulation of the body temperature, the equalization of the warmth of the body; (3) the evaporation of water from the skin keeps the body from becoming overheated; (4) water is essential for the maintenance of function in all the mucous membranes of the body; (5) the secretion of bile by the liver and the excretion of urine through the kidneys depends upon an adequate supply of water; (6) sufficient water is necessary to maintain the normal movements of the joints—the natural lubricant of joints and tendon sheathes is mainly water; (7) plenty of water is necessary to enable the stomach and intestine to absorb the products of digestion; (8) peristalsis (the rythmic wave movements by which the intestinal contents are propelled) fail to be effective if there is not a sufficient supply of water; (9) a liberal drink of water not only stimulates peristalsis but stimulates the secretion of gastric juice in the stomach and improves digestion.

Contrary to an erroneous notion, the liberal drinking of cold water in hot weather does not cause excessive sweating but rather tends to diminish such trouble because it cools the body.

It is more important to make sure of an adequate supply of water than it is to get enough food. Indeed, water is next to air in importance. Nobody can get too much fresh air for health, and rarely if ever does anybody take too much water for health.

Questions and Answers.

J. Hancock.

Suppose, folks, old John Hancock, who, as every schoolboy knows, contributed to the Declaration of Independence, had signed it J. Hancock. By this time most of us wouldn't know whether it was Jennie, Jules or Jeremiah and we wouldn't care.

If there is anything—or rather one of the numerous things that makes me mad is the noncommittal of asexual form of signature affected by some folks. Until some one invents a noncommittal or asexual title with which to address such folks they may expect to be neither mistered nor missused but only missed by me. Of course if they never write to me any more at all, they won't be missed.

Calories.

The insertion after each item of the number of calories in the items in the following list will be greatly appreciated for the Wisenheimer club in our shop. (O. V. E.)

Answer.—Chocolate (the cake or powder, 2,800 calories to the pound. Cocoa (the powder), 2,300 calories to the pound. Corn syrup, glucose syrup, 1,800 calories. Cane sugar, 1,800 calories. Beet sugar, 1,800 calories. Honey, 1,500 calories. Peanuts, 2,560 calories. Almonds, 3,030 calories. Rice, 1,630 calories. Potatoes, 400 calories. Gelatin, 1,700 calories. Butter, 3,600 calories. Oleo, 3,500 calories. Lard, 4,000 calories. Limburger cheese, 1,675 calories. Cottage cheese, 510 calories. Swiss 1,675 calories. Cottage cheese, cheese, 2,000 calories. Buttermilk, 165 calories. Sweet milk, 325 calories. I suppose the essential qualification for membership in the club is chronic pernicious Billings trouble. It is a good idea—let 'em just tell each other and thus save the world from infection.

Heat Prostration and Sunstroke.

Please give your version of the difference between heat prostration and sunstroke. (A. E. N.)

Answer.—I have no version. Heat exhaustion is simply shock or collapse or fainting, to be treated as any other form of shock or fainting or collapse. Heat stroke or sunstroke is loss of consciousness with flushing of the face and stertorous breathing and an elevation of temperature. So called heat exhaustion or heat prostration is generally a coincidence—the fainting or collapse is due to other causes, but happens to come when the weather is very warm and everybody likes to blame the weather. Of course excessively warm weather is harder for sick people to bear.

Questions and Answers On Safety and Traffic

Prepared for The Constitution By The Atlanta Safety Council.

Q.—Why should the duty of being cautious rest with the driver at crossings? A.—Because trains cross crossings on schedules that require such speed that quick stops are not possible.

Q.—Why is it to the interest of the motorists to stop rather than the trains at railroad grade crossings? A.—Because trains would obstruct traffic less by not stopping at grade crossings than they would if they did stop.

Q.—Why should automobiles not be parked close to railroad crossings? A.—Because their presence may interfere with the view or operation of another machine.

Q.—What four essential things should anyone do before crossing a railroad grade crossing? A.—Because they will then have time to be sure they will not lose all of the time they have left in this world by colliding with a train over which they have no control.

Q.—Why should a motorist wait for a clear view after a train has cleared a crossing of more than one track? A.—Because a train on the other track may have arrived while crossing is being cleared by train on crossing.

Q.—When a train blocks a crossing for five minutes how far away must a train coming at 60 miles an hour be, to reach the crossing it has cleared? A.—Five miles.

THE EGYPTIANS.

The Beggar is taxed
—Lowell.

All the land of the Egyptian empire was under the control of the Pharaoh, and he allotted it to those whom he desired to enjoy the use of it. To cope with the problem of supporting the church the king turned one-third of all the land over to the priests, requiring them to obtain their support from working or renting the property. The king retained a portion of the land to be worked by peasants under the supervision of royal stewards. The nobles, who were in reality "little kings" also shared in the division of the territory. Thes enobles and high officials were chosen by the king from the priests who composed the scholarly and refined class of Egyptian society. The actual tilling of the soil was done by the peasants, as is the case in practically all countries. The average peasant rented a small tract of land, usually abou ttwo acres and here he sowed and harvested his crop and paid rent with one-third of his produce. A man could hardly support a family on such a small income and so the peasants hired out to the nobles who paid them so much per day for their labor, but this pay was in kind and not in money.

These farmers of Egypt did not live out in the country upon the land which they worked, but dwelled in the towns and villages and journeyed forth to their farms with the morning and returned with the night. The majority of these people lived in wretched mud hoves which were stuffy, dirty and thoroughly unfit to live in. Nevertheless, this class of people seemed to enjoy life to the utmost, they were gay and carefree, fearing only the burdens of taxation. And this fear of taxation did not die with the ancient world but lives today and haunts no ta few people of the present time. In Egypt a man was responsible for his taxes with all that he owned and if he was unable to pay them and his property proved insufficient to satisfy the king he was immediately transported to the royal mines were the pay was extracted in labor.

In the towns of many trades and professions were practiced. There wer emerchants, physicians, notaries, who were in a way attorney-at-law, master builders and numerous other artisans. At the end of the industrial ladder we find the most wretched class in Egypt, the unskilled laborers. They were little more than slaves and they really might have been far better off had they been slaves. Their eyes of their master lives amounted to nothing in the eyes of their master, they were nothing more than anaminate machines of energy to be used and pushed to their task with the barbed-lash until worn out and then killed and thrown aside much as we junk worn out machinery today.

Another Egyptian class was composed of the soldiers. They paid no taxes; they were given a farm consisting of about six acres, three times as large as the farm of the average peasant.

The scribes who have previously been referred to were recruits from the lower and middle classes of the people. Th ebrightest and most energetic boys of these classes were selected and given clerical work and sometimes the most ambitious ones rose to high position.

No form of currency was known in Egypt until the seventh century and this necessitated the paying of debts in kind. Even the tax collector received his revenue in cows, pigs, swine and so on.

What was the first American newspaper?

The earliest attempt to set up a newspaper in North America, or indeed in the western hemisphere, was made at Boston by Richard Pierce, who employed Benjamin Harris to print it. The journal was 7x11 inches in size and consisted of a folded sheet, three pages of which were occupied with printed matter, two columns to a page, the fourth being left blank. From the prospectus we learn that it was the publishers' intention to issue the paper monthly. But it so happened that the colonial authorities cast an evil eye upon the sheet, deeming it contained "reflections of a very high nature" and forthwith suppressed it.

Federal Trade Commission Puts Business on Its Honor Under New 'Friendly' Policy Industry Asked To Police Itself; Anti-Hog Cholera Industry's Code of Ethics Is Approved.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, June 5.—Business is being put on its honor under the more friendly policy now pursued by the federal trade commission. Industry is asked to police itself, instead of requiring the government to patrol it for petty graft and commercial porch-climbing.

Under the sponsorship of the commission, the anti-hog cholera and virus industry has drawn up a code of ethics which 39 firms, comprising 80 per cent of the industry, have agreed to accept. Similar voluntary codes will be sought in other industries.

These practices are declared by the industry and the federal trade commission to constitute unfair methods:

Practices Considered Unfair.

1. Inducing violation of contracts of employment by employees of competitors, or enticing them away.
2. Advertising falsely and misleadingly as to the nature of sales outlet, making untrue claims as to quality, source and method of preparation of commodities.
3. Disparaging officers, employees, or products of competing concerns; circulating false rumors as to financial standing of competitors.
4. Obtaining business by threats or coercion.
5. Discriminating in price where prohibited by Clayton act.

Practices That Are Condemned.

The industry also condemned the following practices, but the commission disagreed as to indorsing them:

1. Direct or indirect lavish, excessive or prearranged entertainment of customer.
2. Excessive personal gifts to customers.
3. Giving of accessories without extra charge.
4. Promising unearned discounts not allowed to general trade.
5. Donating funds or providing banquets or other entertainments for associations.
6. Payment of specific advertising expenses to some customers and not to others.
7. Giving premiums with sales.
8. Making of contracts which require delivery of specified quantity within specified time if demanded by purchaser, but which does not require such purchaser to accept such quantity within the same period.

Commission Divided in Opinion.

Majority members of the commission—Chairman Van Fleet Hunt and Humphrey, declared that these practices are forms of better terms or service, and cannot be condemned.

"On the contrary, an agreement not to compete in these particulars is contrary to law," the majority held.

The minority, Thompson and Nugent, said these practices are unfair, because they will drive small concerns out of business "and enable the financially powerful to dominate and exercise control over the industry and place at their mercy the ultimate consumers."

Jobs Asked for Students During Summer Months

Atlanta business men Friday were asked by Prof. W. A. Sutton, school superintendent, to assist in finding vacation positions for 15,000 of the 43,000 students who have just completed the school year.

"Approximately 15,000 of our school children are old enough, and have received sufficient education to hold positions this summer," Mr. Sutton said. "Of that number, almost 3,000 are graduates of our senior high schools, night schools, or opportunity schools. Approximately 6,000 have completed courses at junior high schools, while the remainder are from the higher elementary grades.

Beneficial to Both.

'As I see it, employing these children should be beneficial to employer and employee. It gives the students a vacation educational program that is invaluable, and also is a powerful factor in building up their character. On the other hand, merchants who hire them may find the type essential to their business, and everyone concerned will be greatly aided.

"Finding employment for children during summer months is one of our most difficult problems. We maintain a school employment service in the Chamber of Commerce building, but to a large extent are forced to rely on merchants themselves."

All Atlanta schools closed for the year Friday afternoon, with the largest closing day enrollment in history. Mr. Sutton stated that the past year has been eminently successful, not only from the viewpoint of attendance, but also from every standpoint.

Leave on Vacations.

Many students plan to leave on vacations immediately, others will enter business colleges and similar institutions, while a large number of boys already have obtained positions for the summer on Georgia farms.

M. E. Coleman, director of the census and attendance, issued a statement Friday urging all new students to enroll as early as possible. New pupils and those who desire to reenter school may register at the school department in the city hall at any time during the summer, as the attendance department will be open every day.

BURGLARS LEAVE DEBRIS IN WAKE

Daring burglars left a topsy-turvy trail in a series of robberies during Friday, in one instance holding a woman at bay while they ransacked the house, taking money and clothing. In another home they demolished light pieces of furniture and scattered furnishings over the house in their search for valuables.

At the home of Mrs. H. C. Wells, 320 Holderness street, burglars almost wrecked the interior of the house, smashing dresser drawers and literally covering the place with clothes and furnishings. Mrs. Wells was away from the house at the time and said she hardly recognized the place upon her return. A small amount of cash, expensive clothing and other valuables were taken.

Mrs. Gustav Guggenheim, of 22 Orme circle, was aroused early Friday morning as she lay sleeping by a masked bandit who menaced her with a pistol and warned her against making any outcry. "I only want money," she told police the man said, "but you better keep quiet."

She was alone in the house at the time except for her eight-year-old son, but fortunately had deposited a large sum of money Thursday afternoon in a downtown bank.

Among other burglaries reported was the theft of a quantity of household linen and clothing from the home of Mrs. Frank Orme, 15 Fairview road. Burglars entered the home some time Thursday night while the family slept. The theft was discovered Friday morning.

John Knox, of 1168 Peachtree street, reported the theft of a valuable platinum bar diamond pin, and T. J. Collins stated that an expensive diamond scarf pin had been stolen from his room at the Y. M. C. A.

Frank Cole, of 148 Forrest avenue, and J. W. Medlin, of 245 Lawton street, reported the thefts of gold watches.

Husband of Former Atlanta Woman Dies In New York Hospital

New York, June 4.—William A. E. Moore, once a manager of Kid McCoy, and one of the most spectacular of the old-time confidence men, died today in a local hospital at the age of 62.

After serving six years of a 19-year sentence in Sing Sing prison for extortion, Moore was appointed consul to a South African town through the influence of Mark Hanna, but was recalled by President McKinley.

Moore jumped into the limelight years ago when he married Miss Fayne Strahanmore, an Atlanta society girl. They came to New York, where, in 1898, Mrs. Moore, then a chorus girl, was said, according to later court testimony, to have lured Martin Mahon, part owner of the Amsterdam hotel, into her room, whereupon Moore entered and forced Mahon to sign a huge check at the point of a gun. Mahon complained to the police and Moore was convicted and sentenced to serve 19 years. Mrs. Moore gained a mistrial and escaped a second trial when Mahon fled jurisdiction of the court to avoid further publicity and later died.

The wife of William A. E. Moore, reported in dispatches as having died in New York, formerly was Fayne Strahanmore, who is remembered here as one of the city's most beautiful young women in the early nineties.

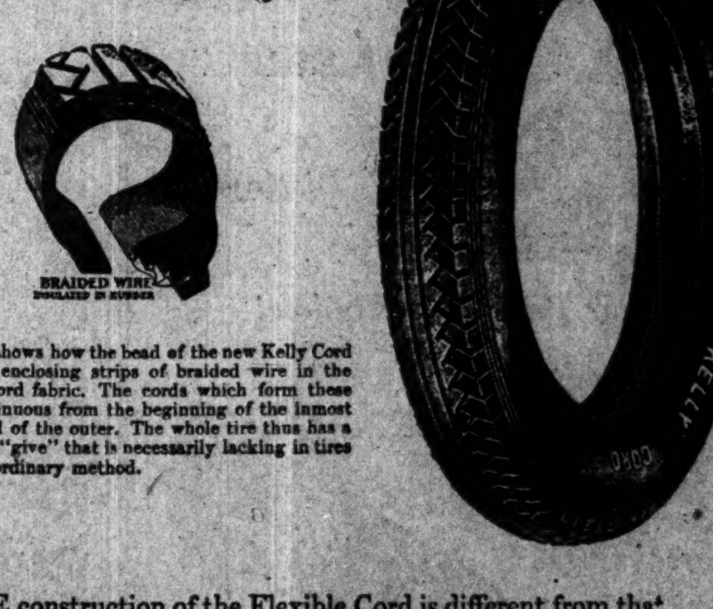
Kelly
Flexible Cord
The best tire Kelly ever built
The New Kelly Way



The drawing shows how the bead of the new Kelly Cord is formed by enclosing strips of braided wire in the loops of the cord fabric. The cords which form these loops are continuous from the beginning of the inmost ply to the end of the outer. The whole tire thus has a flexibility and "give" that is necessarily lacking in tires made by the ordinary method.

THE construction of the Flexible Cord is different from that of any other tire. The bead is built in as an integral part of the carcass, making a stronger and yet less rigid construction which also makes possible the use of a flexible tread. The Flexible Cord is sturdier than the former Kelly Cord and at the same time is more pliable. To the car-owner this means a combination of mileage and easy riding that hitherto never has been equalled, either by Kelly Tires, or so far as we know, by any others.

MacFarlane Defeats Jones For Open Golf Crown

It was with a smile, however, that Bobby looked up, straight at his conqueror, and stepped forward and grasped the hand of the Scot who throughout the three days had made followers of the game marvel at his attainments. The handshake was wholehearted.

Sand, more than he had seen in many days, and the marvelous tee shots of the champion on the short holes defeated Jones.

Confidence Is Unshaken.

Trap after trap drew his ball despite terrific driving, and his explosions came on about every hole of the morning round. But his confidence in himself was unshaken, and he fought the uphill contest of the morning that MacFarlane was destined to fight in the afternoon.

The test might have ended much earlier. Jones and MacFarlane approached the end of their 18-hole morning round all even. But the Scot had a chance to win—the chance being a three-foot putt on the final green. While the gallery waited breathlessly, he putted and missed. Jones and he were deadlocked at 75.

This pair had come out of the scheduled competition deadlocked at 291 strokes for their allotted 72 holes, and a play-off of one round was necessary. Jones had met such a situation two years ago at Inwood, when he was compelled to face another professional, Bob Cruickshank. But that round of 18 holes ended differently than that of today, and Jones was the open champion in 1923.

MacFarlane Is Newcomer.

MacFarlane, on the other hand, was a newcomer to this sort of competition, although he has won the Metropolitan title and last year was runner-up to Mike Brady in that event.

Few were willing to believe that the middle-aged Scot could hope to stand the strain of a final tilt with stocky Jones, who finished second in 1922 to Gene Sarazen and second again last year to Cyril Walker.

At the start in the morning, the followers knew that they had come to witness a great test of link skill, but they were not prepared for the developments that unfolded in rapid succession. The first hole was reeled off in par.

MacFarlane In Trouble.

But at the second, MacFarlane encountered trouble. His brassie was trapped so securely that his pitch sliced and lay in tall grass within a yard of the stone wall that guards the fairway. The professional took an iron to cut through the grass to the green, but with four strokes gone, he fell short on his putt a foot and was down in six to a par five for Jones.

A sensational birdie three was awaiting him on the third, however, when he dropped a 60-foot putt from the edge of the green and a par four for Jones gave him an even break. His mashie on the short fourth left him only five feet from a two, but his putt rimmed the cup and hopped out. Both were down in par.

Jones faltered on the next, when a 35-foot putt failed to fall by an inch after he had come out of his first sand of the day and MacFarlane gained a stroke with a four.

Loses Stroke on Seventh.

MacFarlane lost a stroke on the seventh, despite the fact that he received the first break of the round—a bound to the green from the corner of a trap, instead of into the sand on his second. But he took three putts and was over par with a five, while Jones made a beautiful recovery from a trap and was down in four.

The professional's lead became one at the ninth, when Bobby struck a futile blow in a sand trap and just managed to reach the green with a second niblick.

Thus they started the home-coming that was expected to decide it all with Jones one in arrears—a 37 for MacFarlane, a 38 for Jones. And before the tenth had been played, the amateur had all but lost the title for another sand trap caught him and he finished with a four to his opponent's par three. They played the next two holes in established figures—a situation that worried the Jones adherents, who predominated in the gallery.

Bobby in Sand Again.

Again the trouble—the same old trouble—Jones was in the sand at the short 13th. He had not given up, however, and with a powerful explosion set his ball down 20 feet from the pin and then proceeded to drop the putt for a par three, while MacFarlane, reaching the green from the tee, took three to get down.

The 14th brought the greatest shot of the day and would perhaps be termed lucky, yet Jones must be credited with aiming for the pin and having every intention of sinking the approach if possible. The Atlantan's drive was short, his worst of the day, and he failed to reach the fairway. From the thick grass he used a spoon, which sliced, and he was in the rough 40 yards from the hole and to the right of the green.

Bringing his niblick into action again, he struck out. The ball went straight for the cup and rolled in as an astounded gallery gasped—a birdie three without seeing the fairway. And the little amateur was one ahead.

15th Hole Is Halved.

Down the hill to the 15th, they drove together and it was a half. Jones shot his longest drive of the day on the next, but MacFarlane, fighting the uphill battle now, would not quit. He almost matched the distance of 300 yards Jones' pitch went beyond the green into the long grass and his next approach overran the cup by 20 feet. A five was his best. MacFarlane scored a four and the match was tied. So it remained for the 17th and the professional's miss on a three-foot putt at the home green made another 18 holes necessary.

The story of MacFarlane's play in the second 18 holes was the story of a man who came back with overwhelming odds against him. Both started away with par figures in the afternoon, and so they went for three holes, deadlocked. MacFarlane faltered on the fourth and lost a stroke. He dropped further behind when he missed a birdie on the fifth by two inches, on a two-foot putt. Jones was under par here.

MacFarlane Slips Behind.

MacFarlane was still weak on the sixth, having trouble with his drive and approach. After a par on the seventh, the count against him mounted to three strokes, with a miss on an apparently easy putt at the eighth green. His cause seemed hopeless when, at the ninth he lost another stroke. He was four strokes behind the brilliant Jones, who had reached the turn in par 35.

If MacFarlane was worried, he gave no sign of it. Coolly he pulled in over the final nine holes.

He was every inch a champion on that final trip in, as he played amazing, perfect golf that carried him home in 33, just three strokes under par for the distance. He scored three birdies—twice sinking his second shot for a score of two. Not once did he falter in these final holes. Always he played par golf or better.

And, in the end, he equalled his own record of 33 for those nine holes, made earlier in the tournament. He wrested back, one by one, the strokes that he had lost on the outward trip, taking advantage of Jones' few errors.

HOLE-BY-HOLE PLAY IN CLASSIC CONTEST

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Jones and MacFarlane returned to the starting tee at exactly 3:30 o'clock for their second play off round and the gallery was much larger with enthusiasts coming up from the city after reading the news of the morning.

Jones discarded his neck tie at the start.

He then drove straight down the middle and the mashie took him to the green 11 feet from the pin. His putt was short by three feet but he was down in par 4.

MacFarlane after driving close to the rough on the right, landed beyond the bunker to the right of the green. 30 yards short of his objective but an exceptional pitch left him five feet from the hole and he also made his par.

On the 565-yard second Jones got away with a beautiful drive down the center, but his second with a brassie found a trap just to the left of the green. Again his famous explosion shot came into use, and he was 20 feet from the pin on the third. He missed the putt, overrunning two feet, and dropped his fifth easily.

MacFarlane failed by 30 yards to equal Jones' drive, but with a brassie came up to within 20 yards of the green. His pitch struck five yards from the back of the green and rolled to the edge. Putting from a distance of 40 feet, he was wide by a full foot and a half, to be down in par-5.

Par play continued on the third. Jones sent another drive over the hill, as he did in the morning, and his approach was 20 feet from the pin. He missed his third by only six inches and was down in four.

MacFarlane again was several yards behind Jones on the driver, landing at the top of the rise. His approach was high, dropping dead 30 feet from the hole. He also missed his putt by inches and had to take a four.

Jones took the lead on the fourth with a par three. His iron landed 40 feet from the pin on the far side of the green. His approach putt stopped within a yard of the cup and he was down in three.

MacFarlane's iron was three feet from the edge of the green on the right. His chip was short 12 feet from the pin. He studied the green for some time but overran the cup four feet and had to be content with a four.

Jones added a second stroke to his lead with a birdie on No. 5. His drive went straight and true and his brassie lifted high, to drop on the green 35 feet in back of the pin. His first putt was two feet to the left of the hole and he was down easily in four.

MacFarlane also was exceptionally long on the drive, but fell behind Jones by six yards. He used an iron on the second and was dead on the pin, but stopped 15 feet from the cup. He missed his putt by a scarce four inches and rolled two feet beyond the cup. Even this two feet he could not negotiate and stopped on the lip for a five.

Both men went one over par on the sixth. Jones' drive bounced off the green over a knoll into the rough on the right, but he was back 12 feet from the pin on a chip shot. Here his putting failed, and he rolled four feet past the cup, but managed to sink the fourth shot.

MacFarlane also was in the rough with his iron and his pitch rolled across the green into more tall grass. Using a mashie, he passed the hole by 2 feet and then sank the putt.

Jones' drive carried 250 yards over the brook, and his approach left the ball 20 feet from the pin on the 7th. Again he missed by 1 1-2 inch and took a par 4.

MacFarlane's drive landed on the fairway about 15 feet from Jones. His pitch bounded onto the green. From 25 feet away he missed the cup by 10 inches and also was down in 4.

Jones' mashie dropped 6 feet from the pin and he missed a birdie 2 when his putt hung on the tip of the cup on No. 8.

MacFarlane was in the rough 2 feet from the edge of the green. His approach rolled to within a yard of the hole. Here he missed again, the ball stopping an inch from the cup. This gave Jones a lead of 3 strokes at the 8th.

Jones again was far down the fairway, 25 yards beyond MacFarlane on the 9th and was dead on the pin, 20 feet from the hole. His first putt stopped a yard away and he was down in 4.

MacFarlane's drive was close to the edge of the fairway, and his iron just reached the green. Again he took 3 putts, his second went within 3 feet of the pin.

Jones' score for the 9 was a par 35, while MacFarlane took 4 more.

Their cards for the first round in the afternoon were:

Jones ....454 344 434—35
MacFarlane ....454 454 445—39

MacFarlne gained back a stroke with a birdie two on the short tenth, his niblic shot laying six feet from the pin and his putt going down for a two. Jones tee shot rested on the green 25 feet from the pin and his putter ran the cup. He was down in par three.

Jones' drive was to the left of the fairway 15 yards beyond his opponent's on No. 11 and he reached the edge of the green with a mashie. His putt from 20 feet away was more than a yard short but he dropped the fourth for a par. MacFarlane's drive was into the edge of the thick grass and his second found a trap near the green. With an exceptional mashie niblic he was six feet from the hole and ran down the putt.

Jones shot a perfect 275-yard drive down the middle on the twelfth and his approach was just off the green 35 feet from the pin. His first putt fell short 2 1-2 feet, but his second went down after rimming the cup for a par four.

MacFarlane was on even terms with Jones in both drive and approach and came within an inch of dropping the putt from 35 feet away for a birdie. He went down in four.

MacFarlane came up to within one stroke of Jones with a birdie two on the 13th. He drove across the hollow to a position 18 feet from the pin and holed a beautiful putt.

Jones' mashie was only a foot off the green and he approached to within 2 1-2 feet of the cup. His putt, however, stopped an inch from the hole and he had to be satisfied with 1 over par.

Jones' drive traveling 270 yards on the 14th somewhat to the right fell on the fairway. A spade mashie took him to the green, 18 feet short of the hole. His putt was short by a foot and he took a par 4.

MacFarlane also delivered a good drive of fully 250 yards and his mashie set the ball down 15 feet from the pin. He putted down the line for the hole after much study, but fell short by 8 inches. He had no trouble in sinking his 4th.

Jones hammered his drive better than 285 yards down the middle and brassied over the tree tops into a trap in front of the green on the 15th. His pitchout barely reached the grass at the edge, and with a mashie he passed the hole by 8 feet. He missed his putt by 3 inches, taking a 6. MacFarlane also was straight down the fairway, and with the wood came within 50 yards of the green. His pitch left him 30 feet from the pin to the right and his putt fell 1 foot short. He was down in par 5. MacFarlane's 5 evened the play.

At the 16th they remained all even with par 4s. Jones' drive was safe a little to right and he was hole-high on his approach 30 feet to the left. Short on his putt by 3 feet, he sank the next one. MacFarlane also was down the middle and his mashie carried him to the left of the green into the short grass. His third rested within a foot of the hole and he was down easily.

Driving from the 17th tee, Jones slashed the ball nearly 300 yards down the fairway. His second was on the green—but to the left of the pin about 25 feet. His long putt veered a little to the left and missed the hole by two inches. He tapped the ball in for a birdie four.

The Tuckahoe Scot's drive was 50 yards shorter than his opponent's, but out in the middle. Left with a lie where he could not see the green well, he was three yards short of the edge on close-cut grass. With a beautiful mashie, he lifted the ball to within three feet of the cup. Then he dropped in the 3-foot putt for a birdie four, also.

The score all even at 68, Jones sliced his drive from the 18th tee and was in the rough on the right. His next was trapped in a sand bunker in front of the 18th green. Then he pitched onto the green, just eight feet from the hole.

At this point MacFarlane had sent a shorter but better drive down the middle of the fairway and had dropped the ball on the terraced final green, on the terrace above the hole. A beautifully-directed 40-foot putt carried the ball to the lip of the cup, where it hung. Then he tapped it in and he was down in four 72.

Jones had a chance to tie, but his 8-foot putt rolled by the hole and he took a 73.

Morning Detail.

Each took a four on the par four first hole. Jones' drive was straight down the fairway. MacFarlane's was five yards longer—and also straight. In his second, Jones was on the green 15 feet from the pin. His putt was one foot short and he dropped the next.

MacFarlane's second, a mashie shot, landed in a sand trap to the right of the green. His third brought him out beautifully and he was on the green five feet from the pin. He sank the putt.

Thermometer at 118 In Sun.

As the match proceeded the same broiling sun that had made the weather almost unendurable for two days sent the mercury mounting toward 90. A thermometer in the sun at the Worcester Country club registered 118.

Jones took a par five and MacFarlane a six on the second hole. Jones' drive was long and low. The ball was in thick fairway grass, but he took a brassie for a long shot to the rough at the right of the green. His third, a chip shot, overran the cup seven feet. His putt missed by two inches and cost him a chance of a birdie, but he was down in par on the next.

MacFarlane's drive was 10 yards shorter than the southerner's. A brassie stroke was trapped 20 yards short of the green. He pitched beyond the green to the rough near a stone wall. On his fourth, he cut through the grass to the green, eight feet from the pin. He failed to make his putt by a foot and took a six.

MacFarlane Squares It.

Jones took a four and MacFarlane four on the par four third. Jones was over the hill with a beautiful tee shot and a high mashie took him to the back edge of the green. He missed his putt by two inches and was down for a par four. MacFarlane's drive, with a bound, reached the top of the hill. His second was dead on the pin, but 40 feet away. He sank the putt from the edge of the green for a sensational birdie three.

Jones was 3 and MacFarlane 3 on the par-3 fourth. Jones used his spoon and was on the green, 30 feet from the pin. His put stopped a foot short and he sank the third for a par hole. MacFarlane also used the spoon, and was beyond the cup by 25 feet. He took a bad break when his long putt bounced out of the cup but sank his next.

On the par-5 fifth Jones took a 5 and MacFarlane a 4. Jones was straight down the fairway with his drive. His iron shot was trapped to the left of the green. He got out and onto the green with his niblick. A 35-foot putt failed by an inch, but he was down in 5.

MacFarlane's drive found the rough to the right. His mashie approach fell 40 yards short of the green. Another mashie shot brought him 15 feet from the pin. He sank the 15-foot putt.

Both took par 3s on the sixth. Jones used his iron on the downhill drive and landed in the rough, two yards of the green. He chipped to within four feet of the pin and rolled in a putt for a three. MacFarlane's iron landed him 60 feet from the pin. The putt rolled to within a foot of the cup and he was down with his three.

Jones shot a par 4 and MacFarlane a 5 on the seventh, making them all even with scores of 28. Jones' long drive went into the thick grass to the left of the fairway on the seventh. A tree, 20 yards ahead, lay in a direct line between him and the hole. He made a spectacular recovery and was on the green with his second stroke of 30 feet short of the pin. His putt stopped three feet short, but he sank the next for a par four.

MacFarlane's half slice carried him to the center of the turn in the fairway on this dog-leg hole. He bounded luckily off the edge of a trap onto the green. His first putt was eight feet short and he over-ran the cup a foot on his second, taking a 5, one over par, when he dropped in his last putt.

Each was one over par, taking fours on the eighth hole. Jones was in the sand to the left of the green with his drive. He was out on the second stroke, and landed four feet beyond the pin. His putt over-ran the cup by a foot, and he was down in four.

MacFarlane's drive stopped on the edge o fthe trapp in back of the green in heavy grass. He got out with an iron and was 12 feet short of the pin. On the down hill putt the ball rolled a foot away from the cup, but his next was in.

Jones took 6 on the par-4 9th and MacFarlane 5, making the score; Jones, 38; MacFarlane, 37, at the turn.

Jones' drive was straight out, half way up the rise on the 9th hole. His iron found a trap, the ball hitting the edge of the green and rolling in. He failed to get out on his third and used a fourth stroke, a niblick which just took him out. His putt was 2 feet short and he required another to get down in 6.

MacFarlane's drive was low and down the middle of the fairway, but 10 yards short of Jones'. His iron was 3 feet short of the green. An iron put him within a yard of the hole. He missed a putt and took another for a 5.

Jones took 4 and MacFarlane a par 3 on the 10th hole. Jones was trapped in front of the green on his drive at the 10th. The ball was on the green, but at the edge, in a shower of sand from the trap. His putt fell short by 4 inches and he took a 4 with the next.

MacFarlane's niblick went onto the green, 35 feet from th pin. His long putt was only 5 inches away from the hole, and he went down on the next for a par 3.

They both took par 4s on the eleventh. Jones' drive was straight over the rise just to the left of the fairway. With his niblick he set the ball down 25 feet from the cup. He missed sinking his putt by 4 inches and rolled in the next.

MacFarlane's drive, straight down the fairway, outdistanced Jones' by 10 yards. His second, a niblick shot, got him to within 40 feet of the pin. He missed the hole by 6 inches on the next putt and was down in a par 4.

Jones and MacFarlane reached one over par with a pair of 5s on the 12th hole.

On the 12th Jones' drive went into the rough on the hillside, 200 yards from the tee. He took a desperate chance and reached the edge of the green. An iron shot left him 2 feet from the hole. His putt overran the cup 2 inches and he took a 5.

MacFarlane sent his drive into almost the same position as Jones, but 5 yards behind. His shot for the fairway took him into tall grass at the left. A beautiful approach placed him 4 feet from the hole. The ball rolled away on his putt and he was forced to putt again for a 5.

On the 13th Jones' drive went into the sand to the left of the green. He got out, placed the ball 20 feet from the cup. He sank the long putt for a par, the gallery cheering as he cut MacFarlane's lead to 1 stroke.

MacFarlane's drive on the 13th reached the edge of the green, hole high. His putt was 8 feet from the cup. He missed one and then took another for a 4.

Holes Out Forty Yards.

Jones' drive on the fourteenth failed to reach the fairway, resting in the rough at the left and just missing a trap. A brassie took him into the rough at the right of a knoll, on which is the green. A beautiful chip shot, which carried a full 40 yards, rolled into the hole, giving him a birdie three.

MacFarlane was straight down the fairway. His second dropped dead, eight feet from the pin, but he missed his putt and had to take a par four, leaving him tied with Jones at 57.

Driving for the fifteenth, Jones sliced far into the rough at the right. He came out long and was even with MacFarlane on the fairway. The next shot dropped 25 feet from the pin. His first putt was off the line a foot from the cup, but he sank the next for a five.

The Scotchman's drive on the fifteenth was down the middle. A brassie shot stopped 20 yards from the green. His third was eight feet from the pin. His first putt was six inches short, but his next dropped in.

Jones' drive on the sixteenth was the longest of the day. It traveled fully 300 yards. The second was just over the edge of the green and, landing there, it rolled over. His third overran the hole by 20 feet. His putt was a foot short and he got a five on this par-4 hole.

MacFarlane's drive fell only 10 yards short of Jones'. He pitched to the edge of the green, 30 feet from the pin and then putted to within two feet of the cup. His next was in, giving him a par-4 and put him ahead. 66 to 67.

The Georgia amateur was long down the fairway of the seventeenth with his drive. He reached the green with his iron, eight feet from the pin. His putt overran the hole a foot and he dropped in his next for the birdie four.

MacFarlane's drive was off in the rough to the left, behind an apple tree. A mashie shot took him to the left—behind the green. His third reached the green but was 30 feet from the cup. He was a foot short on the long putt. His next went in and gave him a five.

Each took par-4's on the eighteenth hole, placing them in a tie at 75.

Jones drove to the top of the hill. His second was 30 feet away from the pin. His putt rolled a foot short and he took another for a four. MacFarlane was 30 yards behind with his drive. He dropped his pitch three feet from the pin, but failed to sink his putt, missing by three inches. Forced to take a four, he tied at 75.

Misses Title by One Stroke

Bobby Jones, Atlanta's entry in the national open golf tournament, who Friday failed to win the championship. He was defeated by Willie MacFarlane by one stroke, after playing 36 extra holes.

Former Seattle Pitcher To Arrive Wednesday; Star Jumped Without Notice

BY JULIAN GRIFFIN.

"Wheezer" Dell, righthanded pitcher, formerly of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league, has wired Cracker officials that he will report to the Atlanta club, and is expected to arrive here next Tuesday or Wednesday, Dell, who was obtained during the trading season last winter but did not report, now comes to take the place of Hugh Bedient, who jumped the Atlanta club to accept a position with an automobile concern in New York.

The records show that Dell last year, pitching for Seattle, worked a total of 183 innings, won 9 games and lost 14, for a percentage of .391. This is not the most impressive record in the world, but if Dell can come through in the same manner as the other Pacific coast contributions to the Cracker cause, he should be very satisfactory.

Announces Ready.

Although he has not played with any club this season, Dell announces that he is in condition and ready to go.

Other former Pacific coast players who have aided the Crackers this season are: Bagby, Murphy, Jenkins and—we don't know whether to say Bedient or not. He won some valuable games for the homelings, but deserting the club at this crucial stage of proceedings does not rate him as very popular in these diggings at present.

Bedient's motive for leaving the club in the manner he employed is quite a mystery to Cracker officials and friends of the players. It was known that he had been offered a year-round position with an automobile concern, but no one had an idea that he would sell out without even saying good-bye.

Seemed Satisfied.

He seemed perfectly satisfied with the club, climate, salary, teammates, etc. Officials of the club had offered to pay expenses of moving his family to Atlanta, which he declined to accept. He was worried, however, upon receiving word that his child had sustained a broken arm in a fall.

On the road trip, Bedient seemed perfectly satisfied with the world in general, taking his turn on the mound and turning out his usual good pitching, which gave him the reputation of one of the two leading pitchers on the staff.

But when the club reached Atlanta Tuesday morning, he packed up and left without saying a word to anyone relative to his departure.

His action places him on the ineligible list, and it will be necessary for a ruling from Judge Landis before he can even play in organized baseball again.

ROUND ONE.

ROUND TWO.

The men opened at a livelier clip in the second round and Tunney shot a series of short swings to Gibbons' body. Gibbons appeared content to permit Tunney to lead, boxing his man craftily and tying up his hands in the clinches. As they came to close quarters in the center of the ring Gibbons chopped Tunney with a short left to the jaw. They exchanged stiff rights in Tunney's corner. They were exchanging rapidly at the bell, but little damage was being done.

ROUND THREE.

Both men appeared willing to open up and there was a series of rapid exchanges as they fought at close quarters. Tunney sent over stiff rights and lefts to Gibbons' body and landed three lefts to Gibbons' head. Gibbons replied with two choppy lefts to the face. Gibbons grinned as he missed a sweeping left but leaped in again with another hook which went home to Tunney's face.

ROUND FOUR.

Gibbons went to the attack and landed stiff left and right to Tunney's chin. The men boxed cleverly, making each other miss many leads and repeatedly coming to clinches. Tunney forced Gibbons to the ropes. Gibbons landed two rights to the body and a left to the face. Tunney landed his best punch of the fight, a hard right to the chin, but Gibbons came back with a rally as the round ended.

ROUND FIVE.

Tunney shot over a left and right to the chin. Gibbons backed away and turned, running into the ropes. Tunney rushed at him and landed a volley before the St. Paul man could protect himself. Tunney outboxed Gibbons at long range. Tunney shot stiff lefts at the St. Paul man and compelled the latter to come to close quarters for protection. Gibbons jolted Tunney with short inside lefts and rights. Tunney appeared to be going strong in this round.

ROUND SIX.

Tunney rushed at Gibbons with a stiff left to the body. Another Tunney left to Gibbs' face partly closed his eye. Tunney chopped Gibbons with short jolts to body and head. Tom lashed out wildly with left and missed as Tunney ducked. Tunney landed a left to the jaw. Gibbons crossed over his right, cutting Gene's lip. Tunney shot a series of hard blows to Tom's mouth and Tom was bleeding as the round closed.

ROUND SEVEN.

Tunney led with a left to the body. The punch was a trifle low. Gibbons merely smiled, shook hands and they continued fighting at a fast clip. Tunney shot a stiff left to the head and brought over his right to the body. Tunney appeared by far the stronger of the two. He made Gibbons' head bob back with sharp jabs. The St. Paul man was forced to cover repeatedly as he retreated. Gibbons landed sharp right to the chin at the bell.

ROUND EIGHT.

ROUND NINE.

Gibbons followed up his advantage of the previous round, going to the attack landing two stiff lefts to the face. Gibbons shot over two rights to the face. Tunney came back with a heavy right to the stomach. Gibbons held up his hand and drew to one side, indicating that he had been hit low. After a brief rest they continued boxing. Tunney shot over a hard left, cutting Gibbons injured eye as the round ended.

ROUND TEN.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Tunney hooked over a left and a right to Gibbons' face. Gene followed up the advantage with a left hook to the body. Gibbons appeared content to let Tunney do the leading and the crowd began to clap for more action. Tunney landed left and right to the body. Tunney forced Gibbons around the ring, landing both hands to the face. He chopped Gibbons with short hooks as they came to close quarters for infighting. There was little real fighting during the round and the crowd hooed as the bell rang.

ROUND TWELVE.

Tunney landed two lefts to the body as Gibbons covered. Tunney backed Gibbons around the ring and floored Gibbons with a right to the chin. Gibbons went down under a right to the jaw for a count of seven. He was just up when he went down for the full count under another right to the jaw.

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE CLOSES AT MIDNIGHT

Tallahassee, Fla., June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—With the time of adjournment sine die fixed for midnight tonight, both houses of the legislature recessed at one o'clock. The house met again at 2:30 and the senate at 3 o'clock.

Upon reconvening the house took up the general appropriation bill for final disposition. The senate had disposed of virtually everything before it.

It was believed by some members that this measure would be passed within a short time after it again reached the floor of the lower house but its reception by the senate was uncertain. Some members of the upper house expressed themselves as being against taking "anything the house sends over" and giving it quick passage.

The tense situation in the house over the appropriation bill was believed to have been somewhat relieved by a "social session" that followed word from Governor Martin that unless the measure was passed he would hold the legislature together in extraordinary session until such action were taken. During the period of rest silver services were presented to Speaker Milam, a silver pitcher to J. J. Parrish, speaker pro tem, and a watch to Chief Clerk Meginniss. A reception by the speaker and speaker pro tem followed and general good nature permeated the house.

"Things come so hard in this life." "Do you object to putting your shoulder to the wheel?" "Not at all. That is at least a change from keeping my nose on the grindstone."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

AVERA MATCHED WITH BURRUS

TIGER FLOWERS BEATS MALONE

Chicago, June 5.—"Tiger" Flowers, Atlanta negro, tonight won a newspaper decision over Jock Malone, St. Paul middleweight, in a 10-round fight at East Chicago, Ind. Flowers had eight of the ten rounds, three by a shade.

PENN STATE ENDS SEASON

State College, Pa., June 5.—The curtain will fall on Penn State's athletic year next Saturday when the Nittany baseball team will meet Syracuse in the final commencement game. For the first time in many years, the University of Pittsburg will not be the graduation week attraction, the Panthers having called off baseball this spring because of the lack of a practice field.

With a record of five victories to eight defeats, the Lion tossers are anxious to win the final game to make their season somewhat more of a success. The outstanding game of the season is the shut-out victory over the University of Pennsylvania and this goes to balance some of the other losses, in the opinion of most Penn State students.

Winner Launches Furious Attack at Start of Bout; Scores With Right to Jaw

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Ringside, Polo Grounds, New York, June 5.—Tommy Gibbons, the only fighter who has been able to keep a pair of shoes beneath him in a fight with Jack Dempsey since Dempsey became champion, tumbled weakly to the mat in the twelfth round of his fight with Gene Tunney Friday night, got up and went down again for the full count.

He was put away in the end by slams to the jaw, but the real reason for his collapse seemed to be exhaustion from various causes. He was an old man for the rough, tough game of taking hearty young slams on his tortured frame; it was blazing hot in focused glare of some 30 funnel-shaped ring lights which poured a merciless flood of rays onto the arena, and he had been thumped and clouted on the head and ribs until he was worn to the point of collapse.

The finish of the fight, and in all probability the finish of Tommy Gibbons, who only took to the ring as a second guess in life, developed with startling quickness in the twelfth. Tunney had been corking Gibbons on the head with clouts that were not of the stunning, stiffening Dempsey sort, but dazzling, exhausting blows that must have made Tom's head resound like the act of a Swiss bell-ringer. Suddenly he got Tom with a particularly square shot on the side of the head, a short left with plenty of beef in back of it, followed by a quick and helpful right.

Gibbons Flops.

Gibbons swayed over to his left, tripped over his feet and slumped on his side. His hairy legs, stained green from the dye in his silk tights, lashed the air for a few seconds, and the knock-down timer, standing at the margin of the ring, bad boomed seven blows with his mallet before Tom could get up. He wobbled sidewise to his own corner and swayed there with his head lowered and his forearms half upraised in a weak effort to block off the hurricane that he knew would be coming in an instant.

Tunney, who had backed away, now rushed at him and smashed him on the lips with a right. That started Gibbons tottering again and an auxiliary punch to the left tipped him over, half on his back.

Tommy went flat for an instant, his wet shoulders gathering a coat of gray resin powder from the floor. He struggled to sit up. His left eye was half closed and the eye-brow was raw from one of Tunney's many pokes. Tom seemed to know perfectly well that he was on the floor and had to get up. He was not in the comatose condition that overtakes some fighers.

But he was all the way out for the technical purposes of the ring. He groped for the lower strand of the ropes at the count of seven and managed to get his straying feet beneath him at nine. At ten he was crouching to rise and an instant later he was up again, tottering on uncertain footing and facing about to withstand another collision.

Referee Interferes.

But Dick Nugent, the referee who was brought in from Buffalo especially, stepped in and told Gibbons he was out.

Both Gene and Tommy made rubber stamp statements after the bout. Gibbons was all in. He said he didn't even know what round was the last.

"I did my best," Tom said, "but it wasn't quite good enough. I have no alibi. I think Tunney has improved 100 per cent since I saw him last. He is a fast fighter, very clever and a good hitter. I wish him the best of luck."

Tunney said he wanted Jack Dempsey next.

"I did something that Dempsey couldn't do when I stopped Tom Gibbons," Gene said. "I was in command of the fight all the way. I think I have earned a fight with Dempsey."

Gibbons Falters.

In fact Gene was in front all the way. Those who had seen Gibbons fight Dempsey at Shelby where he blocked off Dempsey's furious rushes and popped him impudently on the jaw were struck by the change in Tom. He had aged and lost his science. Gibbons who used to have the finest precision in his fists, was swinging wild blows at Tunney and falling a foot short. He went back to the principles of the preliminary fighter before he was long in the ring, lowering his head and raising his gloves before his face to fend off as many smashes as he could. There were times when he stood spread-legged or stepped around weakly, intent only on getting out of the way or easing the shock of Tunney's punches, with no thought of sending anything back.

Only in the eighth round did Gibbons flash a reminder of the sharp, certain Gibbons who went through 104 fights without being knocked off his feet, including those 15 rounds with Dempsey in Montana.

King Solomon, sensational Panama heavyweight, outpointed Romero Rojas of Chile in a thrilling 8-round semi-final match. Solomon made the mistake of mixing it with Romero at the start of the match and in the first round was upset for a count of two when a wild left found its mark on Solomon's chin. After that, however, Solomon resorted to boxing tactics until the sixth when Romero's wild left caught Solomon off balance and he sank to his knees again but got up within a count. Solomon won the judges' verdict, however on his aggressiveness and his boxing ability.

Johnny Grusso, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., scored a technical knockout over Jack McDonald, of New York, in the third round of a four-round match, the opening preliminary. The referee stopped the match after one minute, 57 seconds of boxing in the third round. The men are heavyweights.

In the second preliminary Bud Gorman, of Kenosha, Wis., one of Gibbons' sparring partners, decisively defeated Jack de Mave, of New York, in a six-round match. Gorman won a unanimous decision. They are heavyweights.

Bob Lawson, of Alabama, claimant of the world's negro light-heavyweight title, outpointed Ray Neuman, of Jersey City, in a six-round match, the bout before the semi-final. Lawson forced the fighting all the way and inflicted more damage than his opponent. The unanimous decision of the judges went to Lawson.

STRIB BATTLE IS OFF AGAIN

Washington, June 5.—Warning by District Attorney Gordon that he would order the arrest of the contestants and promoter if the bout was held caused the National Capital Sporting club to postpone indefinitely the match it had arranged here tonight between Young Stribling of Georgia and Jack Stone of New York, light heavyweights. Mr. Gordon charged such bouts were in violation of the local anti-prize fight law.

CRACKERS LOSE TO LOOKOUTS, 5 TO 3, IN 11 INNINGS

Cunningham and McLaughlin Pitch Great Ball at Start; Visitors Pull Triple Play

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

What started out to be a pitchers' battle between Cunningham, of Chattanooga, and McLaughlin, of the Crackers, and which was just that for nine innings, Friday turned into one of the most startling mixtures of queer plays and episodes that baseball has produced in Atlanta for some months, to say the least. The final score, much to the disgust of Paul Fittery, of the home staff, turned out to be a 5-to-3 thing in favor of Chattanooga.

This left-handed flinger, famed in many ways, became even more famous when he took up the white man's burden on the mound, lost the ball game and contributed to the Lookout satisfaction by figuring in the first triple play recorded at Spiller field since 1919.

The triple play was the feature of the pastime, even though it was one of the kind that you could order knocked down from a mail-order house. Crossley, Bandrimer and Barnes probably could have executed it with one hand tied down, but its speed and perfection left the cash and free trade of the day blinking, for it nipped in the bloom of youth a Cracker rally which might have rushed the Tennesseeans off their feet.

Zoeller Shines.

Frankie Zoeller attempted a scintillating role for the Crackers, but his three-base whack with a pair of white-clad runners on the base lines and apparent victory in, only had a strong resemblance to another win for the Crackers. Fittery couldn't hold the advantage when he relieved McLaughlin, and he couldn't help it when he spoiled the rallying home stickmen.

Hits for both clubs were almost as scarce as potential recruits for the army on Forsyth street until the fifth inning, and searchers for them almost as numerous as recruiting sergeants. Uncle Wilbur Good had pushed one through for Atlanta in the fourth and both Barnes and Cunningham had hit safely for the visitors in the third.

In the fifth inning the first run of the game was scored by the Lookouts when, with one down, Barnes shot a single to right field. Crossley followed with a one-base knock to the same corner and Cunningham, the hitting pitcher, drove Barnes across with a similar safety to center.

Hurlers Tighten.

From this point onward until the fatal final innings, the game was mainly a contest of pitchers, but in the eighth a hair-raising rally brought the home guard out of their seats and apparently had iced the victory for Atlanta.

Two were down when Joe Jenkins, catching, stepped into a fast one and placed it safely in center field. McLaughlin forthwith was replaced in the Atlanta batting order by the well-known cripple, Nick Cullop. Nick swung heavily at a couple—so hard in fact he almost crippled his other leg, and then Cunningham dealt him a base on balls. Two on and two out. Frankie Zoeller advanced on the enemy. The crowd waited, but Zoeller didn't. Instead he also picked out a nice, fat, straight and fast one and shot it singing to the embankment in center field. Two runs had crossed the plate and apparently the ball game with it. Murphy lifted to left field, but it mattered little.

But wait! The villain approaches! He has not abandoned his fell purpose. Carroll started it when he singled and was forced at second by Bigelow. Burke singled through short, placing Bigelow on third, and J. Bates, a pinch hitter for D. Anderson, delivered a long fly and Bigelow scored after the catch. And there was much gnashing of teeth and great display of distress in the grandstand.

Intricate Tenth.

Then came the astounding and intricate tenth inning. The visiting firemen had nothing to offer in their half, so the Crackers started in to win the game and have it over with. They started when Krehmyer, the one-legged second baseman, drew a pass. Fittery also walked, and our young hero, Mr. Cullop, stalked to the pan. He had been sent up to bunt, to move those two runs closer. Once he tried and fouled. Twice he tried and accomplished the bunt. The hit and run sign was out. Krehmeyer and Fittery started with the pitch. Mr. Cullop's bunt sailed gracefully into the hands of Crossley, the Lookout third baseman, who shot it to Bandrimer, accomplishing a double play, and Bandrimer heaved it to Barnes at first. Fittery was too far off first and fell the third victim of a triple play. The silence in the stands was deafening for a moment, and then cheers for the triple play rang out. The Cracker rally had been throttled in cold blood, and apparently with premeditation.

The eleventh saw the final chapter to a sad story. Cy Anderson, of the visitors, touched Fittery for a double. Carroll made it to first safely when Cullop chose to get Anderson at third on Carroll's grounder, but Murphy dropped the ball and that was that, also an error for Murphy. Bigelow singled, scoring Anderson, Carroll moving to second, from where he counted on Burke's single, Bigelow taking third. He scored when Barnes delivered a one-base blow.

The cause of the Crackers seemed and was hopeless, although they struggled with courage sufficient to add another counter in the eleventh. Zoeller, hero of the original two-run rally, engineered the dying one when he led off in the last inning with a single. Murphy was safe on Cy Anderson's error and Good delivered a single which scored Zoeller. The rest of it was a matter of pitching the ball and getting the home boys killed off.

NEGROES TELL COURT OF POLICEMAN'S DEATH

Jacksonville, Fla., June 5.—Three witnesses, negroes, were introduced today by the state in the circuit court trial of Will Douglass, charged with the murder of W. J. Kelly, policeman, who declared that they were eyewitnesses of the crime. They testified that they saw Douglass fire a rifle at the patrolman who, they said, was standing at the door of the negro's house.

One of the witnesses said that he was in the house said to have been entered by Kelly while the other two negroes said that they saw the shooting from a distance. One of them, Mary Page, was wounded in the abdomen by a glancing bullet said to have been fired from Douglass' rifle.

CUBS MAKE TRIPLE PLAY.

Chicago, June 5.—Brooklyn defeated Chicago, 7 to 6, in a game featured by home runs and a triple play. Zack Wheat smashed out two consecutive home runs, the first in the third inning with two on bases and one in the fifth with no one on. Deberry and Brooks also hit four-baggers.

With men on first and second in the seventh inning, Zack Wheat lined to Friberg, who had replaced Gibson ta first base. Friberg stepped on first before Johnston could return to the bag and then threw to Maranville, who got Ford for the third out, completing a triple play. Grimm was ordered out of the game by Sweeney for disputing a decision.

GIANTS KEEP WINNING.

St. Louis, June 5.—The league leading New York Giants won their second straight game from the St. Louis Cardinals today, 11 to 5. Catcher Frank Snyder's two home runs, with two men on each time, accounted for six of the visitors' runs. Pitcher Charles Rhem, of the Cardinals, was carried off the field in the sixth inning with an ankle injury resulting from a batted ball. A superficial examination showed a possible bone fracture.

KNOXVILLE WINS SECOND STRAIGHT.

Knoxville, Tenn., June 5.—Knoxville's Smokies annexed their second consecutive game of the series from the Asheville Tourists here today, 9 to 6. Five runs garnered in the third inning salted the battle away for Eddie McDonald's nine. Manning and Peterson were touched freely by both teams, but Broadway Jones, who relieved Manning in the fifth inning with one man on base and none out did not yield a hit for the remainder of the game.

SPARTANS RALLY IN EIGHTH.

Spartanburg, S. C., June 5.—J. Boggs' double in the eighth with first and second occupied, which scored both runners, proved the winning lick today, the Spartans defeating Greenville in the second game of the series, 4 to 3. Llewellyn, after pitching great ball weakened in this inning. A close play at the plate in which Dudley was called out in the ninth prevented the Spinners from knotting the count. Smith's two-base blow as a pinch hitter in the eighth put the Spartans back in the game.

PECAN GROWERS HOLD MEET AT FITZGERALD

President A. Clarke Snedeker called the meeting to order yesterday with a splendid attendance on hand. After an address of welcome by J. H. Mayes and response by J. B. Wight, the business of the convention was entered into with a zest and spirit that bespoke the interest and enthusiasm of these growers of this wonderful southern nut.

The various reports, discussions and papers read by government and state experts evidence a remarkable growth of pecan growing throughout this section, together with an intelligent and cooperative effort on the part of growers and specialists in meeting and overcoming the few difficulties in the successful growing and marketing of pecans in this section.

Many instructive papers were read relative to every phase of the pecan industry, including control of diseases and pests, and almost every speaker was plied with pertinent questions, indicating the intelligent interest and study of their problems by the ever-increasing pecan growers of these two states.

In order that the members attending the convention might avail themselves of the hospitality of the city, the evening session was dispensed with. The visitors were taken for a drive over the surrounding country, with the beautiful pecan orchards near this city as the objective point, concluding the ride at the Country club, where a most delightful entertainment had been arranged, concluding with a sumptuous banquet.

Mrs. Geismer, Mrs. Armstrong Reach Nashville Finals

Nashville June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Breaking under strain of five days of strenuous golf and sweltering under the hottest midday sun of the season, Mrs. David Gaut, Memphis, three times southern champion, today was forced out of the finals in the battle for champion in the annual tournament of the woman's souhern golf association at Belle Meade.

She was eliminated by Mrs. John W. Armstrong, Jackson, Miss., champion of the far southern state, four up and two to go.

Mrs. H. S. Geismer, of Birmingham, defeated Mrs. A. D. Mason, Louisville, four and two. This leaves the battle for the championship between Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Geismer. They play 36 holes tomorrw.

The defeat of Mrs. Gaut was a decided upset of the dope. Pro George Livingstone remarked as the two started out that it would be an easy match for Mrs. Gaut.

But this seemingly good dope was upset almost from the beginning. While Mrs. Gaut jumped to the front by taking the first, she lost the second and third, halved the fourth and fifth, lost the eighth and halved the ninth. She reached the turn three down. The hot sun and the psychology of playing a losing game were telling on the player from Memphis. She took an easy chair and rested a spell before attempting the second nine.

This rest evidently helped some for she took the tenth, but lost the eleventh. The twelfth and thirteenth were halved. Mrs. Gaut then made a beautiful drive and a lucky dub and took the fourteenth, 6-8. She lost the fifteenth and coming to the sixteenth tee, she drove into the creek. This proved her finish. With a penalty stroke against her she made a brave effort to come back, but failed. Mrs. Armstrong took the hole, 5-4. The Memphian congratulated the Missisippian on the green and both started for the club house with the big gallery trailing.

Mrs. Mason Outclassed.

"I was simply outplayed," said Mrs. E. D. Mason, Louisville, in telling of her defeat in other championship match, by Mrs. H. S. Geismer, Birmingham. In this match the driving and approaching were about fifty-fifty, but Mrs. Mason was erratic on greens, missing short putts. She was in the water on the seventh hole, took three putts on the twelfth and was in the water again on the sixteenth, 4 and 2.

In the championship consolation semi-finals Mrs. Clarence Bradley, Atlanta, eliminated Mrs. B. C. Willard, Charlotte, 4 and 3; Mrs. L. J. Robinson, Atlanta, defeated Mrs. Frank Guthrie, Memphis, 4 and 3. Mrs. Bradley meets Mrs. Robinson in the finals Saturday morning.

In the Belle Meade trophy match Mrs. Helen Lowndes, Atlanta, defeated Mrs. J. M. Taylor, New Orleans, 3 and 2, and Miss Rosalie Mayer, Atlanta, eliminated Miss Dean Van Landingham, Charlotte, 2 up. Mrs. Lowndes meets Miss Mayer in the finals.

Mrs. T. T. Williams, Atlanta, and Mrs. C. A. Powell, Mobile, meet in the finals for the consolation Belle Meade trophy.

Mrs. Williams won this honor by eliminating Mrs. Karl Leibold, Birmingham, 1 up on the twenty-third hole.

Mrs. R. I. Morgan, Oklahoma, defeated Mrs. Mary Raney, Chattanooga, and won the president's trophy.

PLANTATION SELLS NEAR LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Announcement is made that the Key place, a large tract of land near here, in the Clark mill community, was sold this week to T. B. Kelley, a local lumberman, by Mrs. W. A. Stone and other heirs of the late W. A. Stone, a prominent merchant and farmer of Louisville.

The tract contains something like 1,100 acres and the price paid is said to be in excess of $15,000. Mr. Kelley was specially interested in the timber and bought the land primarily for the timber rights.

DRY WEATHER HELPS FIGHT ON WEEVIL

Louisville, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) The crops in this county are reported as being most promising. Cotton is doing well, especially where a stand was had from early planting, while younger cotton is small but in a healthy condition. The corn crop is needing rain, and farmers are anxious now for the showers after the recent hot and windy days.

However, these hot days have aided the farmers in getting the war on the boll weevil well started. All reports indicate that there is a heavy infestation of this pest this year compared with a year ago.

INJURIES ARE FATAL TO FLORIDA RESIDENT

Dade City, Fla., June 5.—Charles Sharp, a shoemaker, died here this morning from injuries believed by deputy sheriffs to have been received in an automobile collision with an unknown person early in the day. He was found lying near his car on the Trilby road with his skull fractured and other injuries.

His machine, purchased a week ago, was badly damaged.

He opened his shop as usual this morning, according to officers, but disappeared soon afterwards.

HELPED THROUGH CHANGE OF LIFE

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during this Critical Time

Baltimore, Md.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help me through the Change of Life and for a broken-down system. I had been complaining a long time and dragging along had tried other medicines which did not help me much. I read in the newspapers of the Vegetable Compound and after taking a bottle I felt better. I did not stop with one bottle, but took it through the whole critical time and am now practically a well woman. I have two daughters whose health was very bad before they married and I was worried about them. I got the Vegetable Compound for them and it helped them, and after they married it also helped them in bearing their babies. This is a great and good medicine for all complaints of women, and I recommend it to all."—Mrs. L. GINGRICH, 1375 N. Gilmor St., Baltimore, Maryland.

The Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for women of middle age. Let it relieve you of nervousness, that feeling of strain and those annoying hot flashes so common at this time.

BEAUTY CHATS

BY EDNA K. FORBES.

TAKING THINGS EASILY.

The trouble with more than half the young girls who are complaining of premature gray hair and early wrinkles is that they never learn to take things easily. The girl who gets up early and does a full eight hours in an office or shop, then rushes home to spend another five, or six in recreation is giving out more energy during her waking hours than she can make up while she is sleeping. In the old days they said that a fair division of life was eight hours play, eight hours work and eight hours sleep. The unfortunate part of modern life is that the going to work and returning and the crowded luncheon hour all come out of the playtime without being in the least enjoyable. If we have to earn our way we cannot take from our working hours, so we must take from our recreation and rest

Long ago Arnold Bennett wrote a book called "How to Live on Twenty-Four Hours a Day," which still contains a lot of useful advice. Its general message is make use of the waste moments. When you read books read improving ones, study your newspaper well so you'll know what's going on in the world. Listen to good music and go to see good plays in preference to trashy ones, etc.

Above all—this is my advice—plan your day so that brief periods of rest come into your working time. If you can lie down 15 or 20 minutes during your luncheon period, by all means do so. If you have even half an hour between your return from work and your dinner have a hot bath and lie down. Take things easily whenever possible.

May S.—White spots on the nails come from imperfect circulation under them, and they are really small deposits of lime. You can bleach them off by rubbing into them a salve made of equal parts pitch and myrch. The best time to do this is before retiring and then cover the finger tips with gloves. You can remove the salve in the morning by using an oily rag.

L. J. F.—It is evident that your hair is abundant and in a healty state, so there is nothing to be done to it to hasten its growth. You can wear a band of ribbon around your head to hold in the flying hair, and it would look very pretty on a 17-year-old girl. You could vary it by wearing a band of tulle or silk net in the evenings, and either with ribbon or net, you could choose a number of colors to match whatever you were wearing. In about six weeks you should be able to gather together enough long hair so you could do it up, but continue with the ribbon as long as there is enough short hair to fly about.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope (s.a.s.e.) and 10 cents in stamps.

WOMEN'S PARTY MAPS POLITICAL DISTRICTS

Detroit, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Casting aside man-made political subdivisions, the council of the national woman's party today took up the question of districting their organization into four sections, corresponding roughly, they declared, to the four sections of the United States in which different laws concerning women prevail.

The sections as described by Miss Margaret Whittemore, vice president, who presided, would be made up of the eastern sections of the United States where the English common law has been inherited, the western coast which inherited the Spanish community property law, the latter south from Louisiana to Texas under the domination of the inheritance of the Napoleonic code and the old south without its definite inheritance of laws but tending to the English common law.

The new plan of organization is the thought of Miss Alice Paul, vice president, at present in Europe, in the interests of a world-wide women's movement.

If the council adopts the new plan of organization, each one of the sections will be a power to itself, to combat its particular brand of "woman's disabilities" under the inherited laws, Miss Whittemore declared.

The council also had before it the plan to disregard congressional districts in its local organizations and make arbitrary divisions, the head of each division to be a "key city."

REUNION PLANNED FOR 1915 CLASS AT UNIVERSITY

Athens, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Unique plans are under way for the reunion of the class of 1915 at the University of Georgia. Dave Paddock, former all-southern football star; Clark Howell, Jr., of Atlanta, and Henry P. West, solicitor general of the western judicial circuit, now of Athens, comprise the committee in charge of arrangements, and they have developed a splendid program.

The program provides for a tacky-party straw ride on Monday night with a chicken supper, and Monday night the class will attend the Pan-Hellenic ball. Tuesday the reunionists will attend the meeting of the alumni society, when officers for the year will be announced. Gerrard Glenn, of New York, will be the alumni orator.

The class has arranged a clever program for the class banquet this year. Charles M. Davis, of Milledgeville, is the president. The committee urges that all "old grads" bring their wives with them, as the entertainment program is arranged to include them.

PLEA FOR COLLEGE BOYS IN BUSINESS MADE TO MASONS

That college boys should be given an opportunity to show their worth in the business world was the plea of Miss Josephine Williford, secretary of the college placement bureau, in an address Wednesday at the Atlanta Masonic club meeting. College boys want jobs with a future, she declared. Miss Lillian Mann, accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Thelma Mann, sang popular songs at the luncheon.

ROWSEY TO ACCEPT SUSPENSION ORDER

Emory University, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Frank Rowsey, ousted editor of The Emory Phoenix and leader in social and student activities of the university, who was suspended from the university last night, only four days before he was to have received his diploma, will accept the ruling of the authorities, he said today. He plans to return to secure his A. B. degree next year.

It was first rumored he would fight for his diploma, having completed all his examination with the exception of one, when he was told of the action of the faculty. He was to have taken the last examination today for his bachelor of arts degree, but was notified about 10 o'clock last night that he had been suspended and could not stand his final test today.

The order does not prevent Rowsey from entering school again next year and winning his degree, and he stated he will do this.

DRY WEATHER INJURES CROPS AT GRIFFIN

Griffin, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Griffin has been experiencing real summer-time the past few days and the drouth throughout this section continues. While sections around Griffin have had good rains recently, Griffin has not even had a sprinkle worth speaking of since May 18, when only .13 of an inch of water fell here. During the entire month of May there was only .47 of an inch, according to the local weather observer. It has not rained as much as half an inch since April 9, this being one of the longest dry spells in Griffin in many years.

Crops are suffering from the lack of moisture.

A QUEEN LOOKS AT LIFE.
By QUEEN MARIE OF ROUMANIA.

Chapter VI—My Experience With Men.

My experiences with men? Oh, they have been manifold. Since an early age I seem to remember them rather overmuch at my beck and call (I put it rather mildly, you will observe). They were always over-ready to do things for me but they were also over-ready when it came to asking, or taking.

This is a subject that would lead me far, too far. I cannot without being indiscreet enlarge upon it overmuch, but I for one would certainly consider life a dull business if there were no men.

Do I like taming them? Yes, decidedly yes. But I do not like them too tame. I like playing with fire, as does any real woman worth her mettle. But I always played fair, or tried to, and often made real laudable efforts to leave the matches alone!

I am no longer very young but this does not make much difference, I have discovered. I still find more inflammable stuff around than I have use for. But there is a special luxury in feeling that I could, but do not want to. I love looking on and I feel a naughty comfort to see others now making fools of themselves instead of me, having heartaches and all the rest of it, and God knows what dramas and complications while I, so to say, sit in a safe place with a knowing smile upon my lips and a twinkle in my eye.

My heart is not old, it never will be, and I love seeing others have a good time—yes, that sort of good time which love gives, with its thrills and excitements, its doubts and fears, I still have the feeling that it was well worth while.

Men, the dear things. Yes, I do like them: The eager boy with keen eyes full of confidence in you, a little shy, awkwardly "empresse," and who uses the word "awfully" much too often—awfully jolly, awfully glad, awful fun, awfully silly, awful rot. I can hear him now. I long to tell him to go ahead, that I adore that truthful look in his eyes. I remember a pair of velvety brown eyes, dark, dark brown, and it makes me feel all soft inside, even now.

Son Now Supplies Love.

Yes, I love youth—healthy, honorable, keen and ardent youth. In former days I loved to do things with him, loved to hear him beg me to come with him, to let him drive me, row me about, show me things, tell me things, all sorts of things. I knew he was feeling a finer fellow because I was listening, appreciating, enjoying, sharing.

Something of the child has remained in me. I have not grown too old for anything. Yet I do not sit and sigh and burn my heart out because it is no longer my time to be ardently sought after by a boy. But I still like to see the light in his eye, even when it is for another. I have had my fair share and it all goes for the secret treasure I hold in my heart of hearts.

Now my son Nicky comes to me with the same ardor: "Mama do come out! May I take you a turn in my new motor—my new boat—" It is "Mama this" and "Mama that," and I go with him with all my heart.

Another type of man I like is the tall, quiet, lean man, going a little grey at the temples. He is my contemporary. We understand each other. His eyes have seen such a lot—and so have mine. I feel like laying my hand in his, just for the strong, safe feeling of companionship, the feeling of trust, of being chums.

I like hard workers better than the man who is forever rushing about the place trying to have a good time. But I do think that Americans exaggerate the other side. Work! Business! There is hardly anything left of him to be fond of. He is all business, rush and efficiency—so his wife goes abroad.

What sort of man do I like best? Well, having lived in many lands I have met all sorts of men, and being queen has widened my beat, so to say. I have been to some their ideal, to some their leader, inspirer, director; I have pointed them out their way, upheld and encouraged them, cried out a warning when I thought they were going astray.

Queen Is Idol of Army.

To my army I have been something like a flag. The attitude of my soldiers and officers toward me has been something apart. They loved my fearlessness, my iron health, my skill as a rider, my indifference to sun, snow or storm. And beneath it all they felt if war or sickness came again, the woman would be there too with tender hands and gentle words.

I have had to do with politicians, soldiers, learned men, inventors, kings, princes, with socialists, conservatives, fanatics and dreamers. But ever through life were they my friends. I have played fair with them and not one turned against me or bore me a grudge even if sometimes I had suddenly to put him out of my life.

Well . . . Even if I have to disappoint you in answering what sort of man I like best, I must come back to the type before mentioned—the one who decidedly (being born as I was in a time slightly romantic!) is my ideal: The big, silent, helpful, honorable man who wants women to be—how shall I put it—nice. Yes, that word will do as well as any other—nice.

I do prefer a man to be a creature I can look up to, turn to in trouble. I like to feel when it comes to a pinch that he is stronger, cleverer, wiser than I. This does not mean, though, that I have met him every day.

Man . . . Did I like to delude him? Mystify him? Make him jealous or unhappy? No, no, a thousand times no! I hated to make him unhappy—that was the worst of it, but there were always too many of them and they always imagined happiness could be found in my hands.

When I gave a little they wanted more. They were heartsick because I could not or would not give more, and then—my goodness.

Now I am a looker-on and it is restful beyond words. When they come now to see how much I have to give, I just laugh. I hold up both my hands to show that they are empty—all gone! But they don't believe it and neither do I—quite. But oh, it's such a rest being on the safe side.

In the Garden With Burbank

ROSES OF PEDIGREE.

"When were the hybrid teas produced, Mr. Burbank?" I asked.

"Nearly sixty years ago," answered Mr. Burbank, "the hybrid tea was produced from a cross between the tea rose and the hybrid perpetual. This last was produced over a century ago by crossing the Damask rose with the perpetual Bourbon or hybrid China.

"In the hybrid teas are generally combined with the hardiness of the hybrid perpetual and the foliage, perfume and free blooming qualities of the tea rose. From this hybrid have come many of the new roses of today, as it is only in comparatively recent times that growers have practiced hybridization.

"The old growers raised roses from seed and left variation to bees and the chance production of sports.

"The hybrid perpetuals, which are often called June roses, are supposed to bloom not only in the spring, but during the summer as well, although this rule varies with different varieties. They are very hardy, resistant to cold and thrive almost everywhere.

"They have long stems and erect flowers and lose their foliage and become dormant in winter. Some representatives of the hybrid perpetuals are: American Beauty, General Jacqueminot, Baroness Rothschild, Emperor of Morocco, Mrs. John Laing, Paul Neyron and others."

"Now for some of the hybrid teas," I asked.

"Their name is almost legion so many new varieties have been produced. They are usually very fragrant, some of them having the scent of the tea roses and others suggesting more the hybrid perpetuals.

"Their growth is slender and less vigorous than the hybrid perpetual although they will thrive in the more northern climates, but their foliage is glossy, and they bloom almost continuously. They require a great deal of pruning and are very responsive to good soil and proper care. The list of representative hybrid teas would be a very long one and only a few may be given. These are La France, Caroline Testout, the Killarney roses, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Sunburst and Ophelia, Lady Ursula and many others."

"In what class do the Burbank and Santa Rosa roses belong?" I asked.

"They were produced from the Hermosa, one of the Bourbon roses which was one of the ancestors of the hybrid perpetual, and it was as much the result of an accidental discovery as the Burbank potato.

"The Hermosa, like many other roses whose stamens have been transformed into petals is generally sterile and very rarely bears seed, but on one of the plants I found about half a dozen pods which probably had been produced by chance by bees bringing just the right kind of pollen to cause fertilization.

"These seeds were planted and selections made, and later generations were crossed with other roses and the tea rose, Bon Silene, and from these other new hybrids have been produced from the Burbank and Santa Rosa roses.

"They are of a beautiful shade of rose color easily grown even from root cuttings, ever blooming, vigorous and suitable for any climate, and their foliage is absolutely rust and mildew proof and the plants universally resistant to attacks of insects."

Beautiful Dinner Party Honors Payson Kennedy, Senior Chi Phi

The beautifully appointed dinner at which Mrs. Sherwood Hurt entertained last evening at her home on Woodcrest avenue was a compliment to her brother, Payson Kennedy.

Mrs. Hurt's guests included the senior members of the Chi Phi fraternity and as many young ladies.

The house throughout was beautifuly decorated in garden flowers, gracefully arranged in vases and bowls. The guests were seated at two large tables, both of which held as central decorations large baskets filled with sweet peas, roses, larkspur and gladioi. Soft-shaded green tapers burned in silver candle holders at intervals around the table. Monogramed place-cards indicated the places for the guests, and at each girl's place was a lovely shoulder spray of flowers.

Mrs. Hurt received her guests wearing a dainty flowered chiffon frock.

FALSE CONFIDENCE.

It was Weston himself who ordered Mansfield to leave the office after the discovery of half the stolen bonds in his safe.

"Go home," he told his son-in-law grimly, "and wait until I decide what to do. This man," indicating the detective, "will accompany you."

Mansfield controlled his fury with difficulty.

"Have you hand-cuffs?" he inquired of the detective.

"No sarcasm, Mansfield," Weston advised, "you are in a bad hole. If you were not my son-in-law and I hadn't Helen and the children to think of, I'd turn you over to the police right now and let the law take its course."

"You'd do that, sir, without investigating any other possible ways in which those might have been placed there?" Mansfield demanded.

"There are no other ways, and don't forget, Mansfield, that the case against you is made worse by the fact that everybody knows you are hard up in spite of appearances, that you are living beyond your means. You tried to borrow money from me and from a lot of your friends. I have been watching you. We'll say you were desperate for some reason or other and the bonds and the money proved too tempting a combination."

Mansfield made a gesture of hopelessness and turned to the detective.

"Are you ready?"

At the door he turned.

"What about Helen?" he demanded, "what shall I tell her when I return home in this man's keeping?"

"Tell her the truth," his father-in-law advised.

"She will know it, I think, without being told," was Mansfield's confident reply. "She trusts me."

Half an hour later he realized that he had never spoken less truthfully in his life.

When he arrived home, Helen was just preparing to go out to a luncheon-bridge. At sight of him, she stopped on the stairs and called out.

"Why, Hal, what are you doing home at this hour? Are you ill?"

"Helen, may I detain you a few minutes?" Mansfield asked. "Will you come into the library?"

She glanced at her jeweled watch.

"Only a few minutes, Hal, really, I'm late as it is."

"Helen, this is vital. You must come and I think you'll want to break your luncheon engagement after you hear what I have to say."

"But what is it, Hal? You frighten me."

"Come," he pleaded, and opening the library door, he stood aside for her to enter.

She came hesitantly and glanced back at the detective who waited in the entrance hall.

"Who is this?" she whispered. "Why don't you introduce him or ask him to be seated?"

"Oh, he can take care of himself, all right," Mansfield replied airily.

The morning sunlight, shining through the mullioned windows, flooded the library. A cheerful fire burned in the grate; there were flowers on the table.

Helen, smartly gowned, stood waiting impatiently, drawing on her gloves. Her manner suggested that she was being detained much against her will.

Mansfield, facing her in the center of the room, told her the story without preamble, thinking to hear her laugh and scoff, and hoping to feel her arms around him.

"I'm home, Helen," he explained, "because your father sent me here to wait until he makes a decision. It seems that bonds disappeared from his safe last night. Only he and I knew of their existence. Half of the bonds were found in my safe this morning by that man waiting in the hall, who is a detective. Your father accuses me of the theft."

Helen uttered a little protesting shriek and shrank away from him as if he were a leper.

GRIFFIN TO FINISH PAVING SIDEWALKS

Griffin, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Work on the paving of sidewalks in Griffin, which was begun sometime ago, is progressing rapidly, and the job will be completed at an early date. The contract calls for an expenditure of about $40,000, and when all the projects have been finished, Griffin will have most of its principal sidewalks in all parts of the city well paved.

There is probability that considerable street paving will also be done soon.

FEDERATION COUNCIL INDORSES CHILD LABOR CAMPAIGN

Clubwomen Also Advocate Uniformity in Divorce Laws

By Bessie S. Stafford,
Editor Woman's Department, Atlanta Constitution.

West Baden, Ind., June 5.—(Special.)—After heated and lively discussion for and against the launching of a nation-wide educational campaign for recommendation of the child labor amendment which its advocates claim was defeated through misunderstanding and misrepresentation, a motion proposing the campaign was overwhelmingly adopted, 120 votes to 35, at the council meeting of the General Federation Women's Clubs Friday morning.

The minority report was made by Mrs. William F. Blackman, state president and director from Florida, who read a remarkable paper on why the child labor amendment should be indefinitely postponed and gave excellent reasons therefor.

The federation also voted for one uniform marriage and divorce law for the United States against the 48, no two alike, existing at the present time.

Mrs. Blackman advocated, as a reason for an indefinite postponement of the child labor amendment, that a campaign of education be started to induce the legislatures of states that have already refused it to reconsider the bill. This statement outlined her entire report for the minority committee. She regards this campaign of education along the lines of those who favor the bill as untimely, because the stage of national and congressional action is passed and the matter has been referred to the 48 sovereign states for consideration and action. Mrs. Blackman's second reason is that the effort proposed is hopeless, inasmuch as 12 states have already refused to ratify by such majorities that the General Federation of Women's Clubs could not hope to have their action reversed.

Thirdly, she believes that there is no imperative need for such an amendment to the constitution. Compulsory attendance school laws and laws regulating the labor of children in the several states take care of the situation without federal regulation and supervision. In the fourth place, the amendment is wrong in political principle because the federal constitution sharply separates the areas of political responsibility and authority, she said, and this matter clearly gives to the states full authority in matters of domestic and police concern. Her fifth reason was that the amendmen is a mistake in ethical, educational and social principles, as it is wrong in political principle. In the sixth place, she said, laws made by congress under the provision of this amendment would be difficult, if not impossible, to enforce. Mrs. Blackman added to these reasons her belief that the statement in the majority committee report, that the amendment had been defeated through "misunderstanding" and "misrepresentation" is entirely wrong. In Florida, she asserted, the amendment was defeated by the friends of childhood and for the reason which Mrs. Blackman gave.

Study of Red Menace.

Another important resolution adopted was one proposing a definite study of the danger of communism to home, school, church and state in the republic of the United States, and cooperation to the utmost to protect these insitutions from these attacks by enemies made from without and within the republic.

The text of other resolutions passed by the body included reaffirmation of confidence in the Sheppard-Towner bill; condemnation of beauty contests; preservation by conservation of giant redwood trees of California for a national park; that the general federation through education and legislation secure the establishment of proper preserves and refuges for the continuance of wild life of the nation; urging that Mammoth cave be acquired by congress as a national park; urging each state federation to promote state park systems and a county park system; indorsing the great Smoky mountain national park and pledging cooperation towards legislation to incorporate this area into the national park system; indorsing a campaign for legislation to preserve species of wild flowers and Christmas greens now threatened; that the general federation request council to create adequate machinery for a nationwide study of the water resources of the country in their relation to the nation and for the purpose of recommending a national policy under which plans may be made and carried out for the coordination of federal, state and local works affecting stream flow regulation, flood control and reforestation.

Mrs. Inman Presides.

American music literature and art was the keynote of the brilliant program on Friday evening with Mrs. Samuel M. Inman of Atlanta, chairman of fine arts for the general federation of women's clubs, in charge. Lorado Taft, the speaker of the evening, made a very brilliant address on "The Gospel of Beauty." He was gracefully introduced by Mrs. Inman, whose culture and enthusiasm for art as an essential of real education makes her influence felt throughout the general federation. Under the direction of Mrs. Marx Obendorfer, divisional chairman, the music division has featured gifted artists in song in English, and has brought forward the united effort of the general federation to cultivate and introduce this movement into community and home life.

Mrs. Rose V. S. Berry, divisional chairman of art, has called into service the past art divisional chairman for the purpose of forming disinterested units to work for American art. The Indiana women brought to the council a remarkable group of paintings by Indiana artists, among whom is Wayman Adams, who displayed his work in Atlanta recently, and painted at the Biltmore before a large audience a life study of former Governor John M. Slaton. The Indiana women are furthering their interest in art by presenting to Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the G. F. W. C., an Indiana scene done by T. C. Steele, one of the state's leading and most distinguished artists.

For the prizes offered by Mrs. William Brown Maloney, of The Delineator, Winifred King Rugg, of Arlington Mass., gave the best answer on how to spend $100 for reading matter for a family of five. Thirty-nine states had representation in this contest. The $50 apportionment of books for the average family was won by Miss Gladys Masdren, of Panora, Iowa, and Miss Elizabeth Preston and M. McCarty, of Owensboro, Ky., was given honorable mention. The Tourist club of Michigan won first prize in the $25 apportionment class, and Miss Elizabeth Hayhurst, of Portland, Ore., was given honorable mention. The judges were: Mrs. Samual M. Inman, Mrs. Charles H. Jacobson, of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. May Lamberton Jacobson, of Denver.

Mrs. Inman expressed Georgia's growing interest in the possession of the best in art, literature and music. She spoke of the continued demand for literature which tells how to buy and appreciate a picture or piece of sculpture, which is being stressed so prominently by the division of art in its "own a picture" movement. She is deeply interested in the service offered by the National Music league, of New York city, which is serving as an information bureau and clearing house to aid clubwomen to educate, place and engage young American artists, indorsing the plan of the league and pledging her part toward making its ideals and purposes known to American clubwomen.

Mrs. Inman is looked upon as a leader in general federation councils, and is ever on the watch tower to promote the advancement of general and state club interests. Mrs. Inman also introduced Mrs. Pearl Bennett Broxam, chairman of community drama, who has done remarkable work in this field and her advisor, Mrs. Byron D. Boyd.

The community drama committee announces a play writing contest for club women for the coming year. Prizes of $250, $100 and $50 will be presented by Samuel French, play publishers of New York. Judges, rules and regulations will be announced later. The dinner given by the art department preceding the council meeting was a brilliant occasion, with Lorado Taft and Mrs. Samuel Inman honored guests and Mrs. Rose V. S. Berry presiding.

Forum Committee Findings.

Business Methods.

1—"We recommend the rotation of officers but the retention of chairmen for a limited period who are doing their work satisfactorily.

2—"That emphasis be placed on the continuity of our work that card catalogues and complete records be kept.

3—"That old work can be completed as well as new work started; that a card catalogue or record be kept of our working members and their record of accomplishment for future; that every club print in their year books the names of the officers of the state and general federation.

4—"That the year books carry some mention of the state and general federation publications for the information of its members.

Publicity.

"1. Send club publications to the women's national magazines of the country.

"2. The development of plans to make it possible for every club woman to have a copy of her state publication possibly by increased dues.

"3. Work for 100 per cent state bulletin—only two states without them now. Close association with the press for publicity purposes.

"4. Development of clipping service and scrap books as a matter of record for the future and the keeping of club history.

"5. Each state to work out its own financial problems for publishing state organ.

"6. That each state president be on the mailing list of each state bulletins.

Politics.

"Discussion on the floor would seem to develop these points:

"A. That all sides of any political question be presented on our platforms.

"B. That principles and policies be indorsed, not candidates.

"C. That we stand for measures, not men; that we study politics as a science of government."

Saturday's session will complete the unfinished business of the federation and the last meeting of the executive board.

Loredo Taft Gives "Gospel of Beauty."

By Bessie S. Stafford.

West Baden, Ind., June 5.—(Special.)—"The 'Gospel of Beauty' is what some call my philosophy of life, and it is recognition of the importance of beauty in life in the history of the race," said Loredo Taft, distinguished artist, in his address before the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Friday evening.

"We don't know what we are on earth for; it's all a mystery, and the only thing that makes it reasonable is the fact that the race may progress. Be it language, be it literature, be it art, the best kind of recreation consists in doing something just as well as you can and taking pleasure in it. Something different from daily work is precious and valuable. Some find it in language, some in art. They brighten life.

"I am inclined to think that every American man ought to have some hobby that involves vigorous exercise if his daily work does not.

"We shall never have great art in America until many people are doing things with their hands. We should all try modeling and painting, not with the idea of becoming great artists, but to know some of the difficulties of the arts, and be able to appreciate it when we meet the triumphant achievements of the masters."

SCHOOL FOR DEAF REPORT DISCLOSES UNUSUAL RECORD

The annual report of the Georgia School for the Deaf, at Cave Spring, was submitted to Governor Clifford Walker on Friday, by Professor S. C. Harris, principal of the schoool.

It was pointed out in the report that Georgia appropriates less money per capita for the training of deaf children than almost all other states, but that despite this handicap the school at Cave Spring is one of the most modern in the entire country. Professor Harris stated that the Georgia school has successfully taught deaf boys and girls to talk, a feat unheard of before the case of Helen Keller attracted world-wide attention.

"But nowadays we have no difficulty in this achievement," said Professor Harris. "The school and all schools for the deaf have discarded the old sign language. By teaching lip reading and speaking, we have been successful in making a deaf person practically normal."

Each pupil at the school is taught a trade by which he may become self-supporting, it was stated.

The appropriation to the school is $262 per capita, the report shows, which compares with North Carolina, $340; South Carolina, $347; Alabama, $320; Florida, $475; Louisiana, $412.

Chicago, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Miss Miriam Burns, of Kansas City, and Joseph Francis Horn, of Wilmette, were still unmarried today, according to relatives and friends, who said it was a coincidence that a marriage license had been issued in their names yesterday. Miss Burns, a prominent golfer, was western amateur woman champion in 1923, and is visiting here.

The engagement of Miss Burns and Mr. Horn was announced some time ago and they had planned to be married in the fall, friends said.

A Rowing Reminiscence.

The regattas are and they bring the days when I used to be at New Haven perfecting the great Yale crews, said Dr. George A Baldplate to Lew A. Salzstein.

In '86 things had not been going so good and it looked as if we were in for a licking. On the eve of the race I sat on the float at Gales ferry wondering by what legitimate stratagem I could put our crew out in front. An idea slowly came to me.

I should explain that Harvard men of that era were austerely, almost snobbishly, exclusive. They never spoke to outsiders. I happened to know their stroke oar, Perkins, who had confided to me that he did not know the men who rowed bow and No. 2 on his own crew! "You see," he explained, "they are so far off, and I sit with my back to them." In spite of this aloof attitude the young men from Cambridge were scrupulously polite when the occasion demanded. It was upon their knowledge of what was the proper thing to do at any and all times that the success of my plan depended.

When the great day came and the race was on Yale exceeded my wildest hopes by making a game fight up to the last quarter-mile flag. But then she began to sag badly. Foot by foot Harvard crept away. Now was the time to act!

I stood up in the bow of the coaching launch, raised my megaphone, and said very distinctly: "Mr. Perkins, I should like to have you meet Mr. Gordon." True to the courtly Harvard tradition, both Perkins and Gordon instantly stopped rowing, rose in the speeding shell and exchanged ceremonious bows. By the time they had resumed their oars the boat had "checked" badly and Yale had crossed the finish line, a winner!

All of which proves that there are more ways than one of skinning a cat!

BY JAMES B. WHARTON.

(Special to The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Hope of the safe return of the airplanes died here with the passage of the fourteenth day since their superb and courageous hop-off, although some of us still find it hard to believe that we shall never again see the N-24 and N-25 in the air.

The two mother ships, Farm and Hobby, will now undertake what all aboard consider a fruitless task. We shall end our stationary vigil here and forge desperately northward into the ice for four weeks of cruising. The Hobby, it was decided today, will go eastward; the Farm westward, seeking clues to the fate of our missing comrades.

Search May Be Futile.

We feel that there is small likelihood of our meeting the explorers, as Amundsen never harbored any intention of fighting his way back to Spitzbergen if his airplanes foundered. The only possibility of his being on this route at the present time is the long chance that the unexpected occurred and the flyers were marooned close to Spitzbergen. In such case the Hobby is more likely to discover them, as the ice is smoother across the northeast coast of Spitzbergen, where it is protected from the boisterous winds of the Atlantic. This morning was marked by our first polar mist, which will be repeated at frequent intervals from now on, being a summer phenomenon in the Arctic. Dense streaks of heavy fog hung across the water and the mountains above the glacier beds, like an autumn mist in the valleys of any hill country. This polar fog is caused, our meteorologists told us, by the meeting of warm summer air with the chill of melting ice and snow.

Hear of Ellsworth's Death.

News reached us today of the death in Florence of James W. Ellsworth, father of Lincoln Ellsworth, Amundsen's partner in the polar flight. The elder Ellsworth was the financial backbone of the expedition and was regarded almost as an elder brother by all the participants in the great adventure. Perhaps nobody would have rejoiced more deeply and heartily than he in a successful outcome, although he had consistently opposed his son's ambitions to be an explorer. Himself a man who had won great wealth, the dream of his life was that his son should join him in the enjoyment of ease and luxury in the mellowed and peaceful centers of old world art and culture. Twice during the past three years the father had vetoed the young man's plans to undertake hazardous exploits of exploration in various parts of the world. On the present expedition he finally consented only after he had met Amundsen, capitulating to the latter's magnetism and enthusiasm.

Hopped Off During Storm.

From Spitzbergen daily reports have gone by wire and cable to the lonely father in Italy, telling of the preliminaries to the flight, of the start when it was finally made, and then of the slender news developments during the long period of vigil which has followed. His sudden death is an unexpected tragedy which has affected us all very deeply.

That a violent snowstorm was raging north of Spitzbergen on the day of Amundsen's hop-off, two weeks ago, was revealed to us today when the Farm took aboard two fox-hunters just returned from the Norwegian islands. It will be recalled that Amundsen made his start from King's Bay in weather which was apparently ideal as to temperature, wind and visibility. But arctic weather is extremely treacherous and local storms of considerable violence occur repeatedly throughout the area.

20 Miles From Base.

The two fox hunters on May 21, the day of the hop-off, were at Cape Barren, on the northern edge of Vogelsang island, more than 20 miles north of King's Bay. They told us that they recalled the afternoon distinctly on account of the sudden snowstorm which overwhelmed them in the midst of their trapping operations, blown up on a fresh northeast wind. It seems remarkable that we at King's Bay, only 20 miles away, had no slightest indication of such a storm. Our meteorologists are emphatic in their assurance that such a storm must have been purely local, but it is evidence of some of the dangers Amundsen and his five companions may have encountered repeatedly on their northward journey. Such local weather disturbance would undoubtedly necessitate the use of much extra gasoline as the planes would be forced to climb very high above the storm, possibly under adverse winds and with a load far heavier than the machines were designed to carry.

Cape East of Route.

Cape Barren, where the fox hunters met the snowstorm, is far to the eastward of Amundsen's northward route, and they naturally had no tidings of the flyers.

It is believed here that a four-sided series for the lost explorers will be organized by international cooperation within the next few days involving separate and distinct expeditions in the area north of Spitzbergen and east Greenland, in northwest Greenland, and at Cape Columbia.

The Spitzbergen area is already sufficiently covered by the Amundsen base party and the Norwegian naval airplane expedition which will arrive here next week. East Greenland will probably be handled by the French explorer, Charcot. The other two rescue routes will have to be arranged in America, probably with the cooperation of MacMillan and perhaps with the assistance of the American navy. One of these would be an ideal project for one of the American dirigibles.

NORWAY AERO CLUB ARRANGES EXPEDITION.

Oslo, June 5.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Norwegian Aero club was held here today to discuss preparation of a complete plan for the rescue of the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar fliers. The Constitution and other newspapers of the North American Newspaper Alliance were represented in the conference, and will be kept fully informed of any arrangements which are made.

Among the prominent Arctic explorers in today's conference were Captain Otto Sverdrup and Captain Gotfred Hansen, who placed the fuel and food depots for Amundsen at Cape Columbia, where the fliers probably will emerge if they are returning from the pole on foot.

The program for discussion concentrated about three chief points, a rescue from Spitzbergen; an expedition to Cape Columbia, and a relief party via northeastern Greenland. The first scheme would naturally be directed from Norway, the second from America, and the third probably through the French explorer Charcot, who has offered his assistance.

The Norwegian airplane expedition with two airplanes is leaving the naval station at Horten tomorrow and probably will reach Spitzbergen about June 15.

The Aero club today received news of the death in Italy of Ellsworth's father, the financial backer of the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition, and resolutions of sympathy were adopted.

MITCHELL NAMED SOLICITOR GENERAL

Washington, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—William D. Mitchell, of St. Paul, was appointed today as solicitor general of the United States.

Mr. Mitchell was recommended by William Brooks, republican national committeeman and by Senator Schall, republican, of Minnesota. Indorsements also were received at the white house from many others prominent in Minnesota political life.

He is expected to take office immediately. Mr. Beck's resignation was presented to be effective when a successor was chosen. He expressed a desire, however, to remain in office until the end of the present supreme court session next Monday. Mr. Beck has left Washington for a trip to Europe.

Mr. Mitchell, it was said at the department of justice, had been a prominent lawyer for 25 years and has been retained in many of the big cases of his section.

He is listed as a republican in politics but has shown a degree of independence in formulating his political actions, having in the past supported democratic nominees. He has never before held public office, although during the war he acted as counsellor for Governor Burnquist, of Minnesota.

HUNDREDS OF RIFFIANS KILLED IN OFFENSIVE

Paris, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Riffian forces of the tribal leader Abd-El-Krim took the offensive in violent manner on both sides of the fighting front in Morocco yesterday.

While Abd-El-Krim's choice storming troops were, according to an official communication, assailing in vain points along the Ouergha river, his sympathizers in communist circles in France, became extremely active in spreading literature inciting the soldiers to desert. In this connection several arrests have been made, and scores of persons were found with such documents in their possession.

While the news reaching Paris from Morocco indicates that the French forces had the stiffest fight of the campaign to push back the Riffians, confidence is expressed in official circles that the punishment inflicted on the tribesmen will be a most impressive lesson to the invaders, who in yesterday's fighting were composed largely of real Riffians.

The attack by Abd-El-Krim was so determined as to bring forth the opinion by French military authorities that he has not given up his original plan of reaching Fez.

SAFE LOCKED 30 DAYS YIELDS TO EXPERT

Americus, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The arrival of a representative of the United States treasury department at the local postoffice today saved Postmaster Davenport the trouble of blowing open the postoffice safe, which became locked 30 days ago and has since failed to yield to the nimble fingers of at least a half dozen "combination experts."

The treasury representative, who is on a tour of inspection, worked at the combination only only a very few minutes and the big door swung open. The postmaster had received orders from Washington to blow open the safe and he had already made preparations to follow out the instructions.

German Bankers To Loan Stinnes 40 Million Marks

Berlin, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—A group of the larger German banks, headed by the Reichsbank, has decided to come to the rescue of the Stinnes concern to the extent of 40,000,000 marks, because the banks fear that its collapse would adversely affect German economic life. The funds to be placed at the disposal of the Stinnes family, it is announced, will enable it to renew short time credits.

This action by the banks was reported by some newspapers this morning, following yesterday's conference between the members and friends of the Stinnes family, representatives of the Reichsbank, and various German banks and a number of industrial leaders at which the affairs of the Stinnes were discussed.

A communique issued at Stinnes headquarters denied flatly rumors that the family intends to liquidate its holdings. It states the exact contrary is the case and that a new program, under the direction of Hugo Stinnes, Jr., will devote itself to rational centralization of the various Stinnes enterprises.

The voluntary support of the Berlin banks is designated in the communique as a vote of confidence and an indorsement of the new organization decided on by Mrs. Claire Stinnes, widow and sole heir of the magnate, her son, Hugo, Jr., and the intimate associates of the elder Stinnes.

The family will continue publication of the Deutsche Allgemine Zeitung, which it views as a special legacy by the late Hugo Stinnes.

The present conflict in the family's affairs, says the communique, is the outcome of the "dualism," caused by conflicting views, which now have been removed through the withdrawal of Dr. Edmund Stinnes (oldest son of the late Hugo Stinnes).

Duvall To Lead Battle on Veto Of Money Sheet

A determined fight in council to override Mayor Walter A. Sims' veto of the June finance sheet, was assured Friday when Alderman W. B. Duvall, chairman of the finance committee, stated that he would lead the battle.

Dr. Duvall, who, as provisional mayor pro tem, occupied the chief executive's chair Friday in the absence of both Mayor Sims and Mayor Pro Tem Hartsfield, also predicted that the disapproval will be overruled by a substantial majority.

"Every member of the finance committee signed the sheet," he pointed out, "and every member of council voted for it. I see no reason for a change of opinion, as we all knew what was in the sheet when we cast our votes for it."

The mayor gave as his chief reason for vetoing the sheet that anticipated receipts are increased approximately $220,000 more than the actual revenue which the city will receive. He also denounced addition of any new city employes at this time and stated that in his message to council he will name several departments in which present staffs should be reduced.

SHOT-MARKED CAR SOUGHT BY POLICE

Atlanta police have been asked to look out for a big touring car that crashed into a buggy near Brookwood church, in Forsyth county, injuring five persons and which sped away. The machine was said to have been headed toward Atlanta.

W. A. Anderson, of Cummings, driver of the buggy, fired two shotgun charges into the car at it sped away, the report stated. As the shells carried No. 5 shot, police are searching for an automobile with a decidedly shot-marked rear end.

Edgar Anderson, also of Cummings and an occupant of the buggy, filed the report with Captain of Detectives A. J. Holcombe Friday morning. He stated that one of his companions probably suffered a broken leg and another had received a broken arm. The other three escaped with bruises and lacerations, he said.

Negress Believed Murdered in Home For Sum of Money

The body of Bertha Taylor, 45-year-old negress, was found shortly before noon Friday thrown across the bed in her home at 36 St. Charles way. She was employed by Mrs. F. H. Jones, 239 Ponce de Leon avenue, and when she failed to appear for work at 11 o'clock Friday morning, Mrs. Jones asked Courtney B. Cauble, of 12 St. Charles avenue, and Abe Pelot, negro janitor, to go to the negress' house and investigate.

The woman had been shot through the stomach with a shotgun and her clothes were saturated with kerosene. The lock on her trunk had been broken and a pocketbook, containing 15 pennies, was found on the bed. She is said to have had a considerable sum of money and the pocketbook is believed to have contained the savings of many years.

Detectives Fred L. Tippen and W. A. McKinney, who were dispatched to investigate the affair, were told by Mandy Spencer, negress, of 28 St. Charles way, that she had heard several shots early Friday morning and thought she heard a woman scream. She said she was afraid to leave her house to report the incident.

New York, June 5.—Realizing sales attracted by the advance from the low prices of last Tuesday were absorbed on very moderate reactions in the cotton market today. October sold up to 23.38 in late trading, or 42 points net higher, and into new high ground for the movement, closing at 23.35. The general market closed firm at net advances of 35 to 38 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 9 to 23 points, active months selling 24 to 32 points above yesterday's closing figures in early trading on continued covering and trade buying. This was promoted by reports of continued dry weather in the southwest, but the recovery of about 130 points from the low prices touched after the government crop report last Tuesday evidently attracted a good deal of realizing. Pressure of this sort made itself felt as soon as the early buying orders had been supplied and the market eased off after publication of the western belt forecast for showers in the Texas Panhandle.

July reacted from 23.80 to 23.38 and December sold off from 23.43 to 23.03, net declines of about 10 to 18 points on the active positions. Except for profit-taking, however, there appeared to be very little selling, while the market was far from sure that the shower predictions foreshadowed any relief from the south Texas drought and prices firmed up again.

Many early sellers for a reaction seemed to be rebuying on the late advance which was accomplished by talk of a broadening commission house demand and bullish spot advices from central and eastern belt sections. All months made high prices for the day and movement in late trading, July selling at 23.95 and December at 23.53. The close was within 3 or 4 points of the best.

NEW ORLEANS TREND GENERALLY UPWARD.

New Orleans, June 5.—The cotton market was fairly active today and prices fluctuated rather sharply. Although there were reactions, the general trend of values was upward. Starting out 19 to 25 points higher, the market continued to advance in the first hour of trading, until July traded up to 24.15, October to 22.92 and December to 23.02, or 29 to 33 points above the previous close.

A subsequent reaction carried July down to 23.76, October to 22.52 and December to 22.62, or 39 to 40 points below the early highs and 7 to 10 points below the previous close. Later a rally made new highs in the late trading, July advancing to 24.28 October to 22.95 and December to 23.05, or 43 to 50 points above the lows. The close showed net gains for the day of 38 points on July and 32 to 35 points on new crop months.

The initial advance was due to the continued dry weather in the belt, which induced further covering. Liverpool was closed, owing to the continued celebration of the Whitsuntide holidays. Later the market eased off, losing the entire early advance, and more, on the official forecast for showers in the western belt. This decline made the low points of the day.

The afternoon rally made new highs on all months, due to strength shown by the July positions and noon reports of continued hot and fair weather in the west. The firmness of July was based on the strength of spots and the rapidly diminishing supplies in the interior. Shorts who had been fighting the advance earlier covered freely.

Secretary Hester made the week's mill takings 183,000 bales, against 167,000 last year. Exports for the day totaled 21,117 bales, and for the week 111,308 bales.

UNDERWOOD BOOSTS COLLEGE TO WILSON

Valdosta, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Speaking before 200 representative citizens from 18 cities and three states, who gathered here today to confer on plans for erecting a national memorial to Woodrow Wilson, E. Marvin Underwood, of Atlanta, former assistant attorney general under President Wilson, sounded a ringing indorsement for Woodrow Wilson college, which is to be built in Georgia, the home state of Wilson.

"I have two great passions in my life," said Mr. Underwood. "The first is the growth and development of Georgia; the second is the perpetuation of the lofty ideals of Woodrow Wilson. Woodrow Wilson college is destined to forward both of these supreme ambitions.

Will Help Georgia.

"The memorial college, as planned, will be a wonderful thing for Georgia, for, in a most dramatic way, it will awaken in Georgia a widespread desire for the cultural things in life; it will direct the attention of the state to the task of more fully developing our educational facilities, and, above all, it will train Georgians for leadership.

"There is less competition in the field of leadership than in any other field, and, more than anything else, Georgia needs trained leaders, men who have instilled in them a sincere desire to serve their state and country and who, through thorough education, have adequate training to equip them to render such service.

"The great purpose upon which this memorial college is being built is the perpetuation of Woodrow Wilson's memory and influence, by inspiring and fitting men to carry on his work. It will be no ordinary college; it will be a distinctive institution, standing for the things Woodrow Wilson stood for, and seeking to train young men to be just such unselfish leaders as he was.

"The building of Woodrow Wilson college will be a real service to the nation. It is the most fitting thing a people could do, and I am proud that the people of Georgia are taking the leadership in erecting this splendid and lasting memorial."

Stovall Speaks.

Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, former minister to Switzerland and now state chairman for the movement to build Woodrow Wilson college, told of his boyhood days with Wilson in Augusta, and said that if Wilson had the opportunity to choose a memorial, he would have selected just such a college as Woodrow Wilson college is destined to be, for, whether as a college professor, president of the United States, commander of the army and navy, arbiter of the destinies of nations, he was ever teaching men to correct man's inhumanity to man.

Other speakers on the conference program were: Allen J. Strickland, president temporary board of trustees Woodrow Wilson college: Mayor W. D. Peeples and Judge J. F. McCracken, all of Valdosta.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Nettie Clements of Edison, and Mrs. Georgia Castleberry of Lumpkin.

He was a member of Christian church, in Richland, and was a Confederate veteran.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence Thursday morning, and interment was in Pleasant Valley cemetery near his home.

Sparta Highway Built.

Sparta, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The state highway department, under direction of Engineer H. H. Hendricks, is top-soiling the highway from Sparta to the Greene county line by Harris mill, and when completed this highway will be one of the best in this section.

MARINES WILL GUARD PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plans now being worked out call for the use of some of the marines doing duty with the Mayflower, the president's yacht, which will be anchored at Marblehead, near the summer white house, and for an additional detail made up of men who have distinguished war records of having served at American embassies or legations abroad.

White Court, the estate on the coast which has been placed at the disposal of President and Mrs. Coolidge by their friend, Frank W. Stearns, is situated on a neck of land in close proximity to half a dozen other summer home. There is no fence around this tract, and, in addition to the one-road entrance, which will be guarded, there are half a dozen or more trails and a quarter of a mile of coast to be watched if the president is to have seclusion.

Funds are not available to transfer any of the white house police to Swampscott for summer duty, so it has been decided to provide marines to assume part of the guard duty done here by them and secret service men.

Four or more posts will be established to provide protection on all sides of White Court. The marines will wear khaki and will carry side-arms only. A mess will be established near the president's house for the day's guard, but those off duty will be quartered and fed at some distance from White Court, probably in tents.

Offers have been made to the white house to use the Massachusetts state police, but it is believed the secret service-marine guard will prove sufficient. It is probable, however, that some assistance will be given by Lynn and Swampscott police.

Details of the president's plans for his vacation have not been made public, but there is little likelihood that he will find it convenient to journey to universities and colleges to accept any honorary degrees. It appears that Mr. Coolidge has no desire to possess the degrees, which have been offered by several institutions, including some of the larger ones.

Usually the offers are accompanied by requests that the president visit the institutions, and henceforth he will decline all such invitations.

WHITEHEAD LEAVES QUITMAN FOR MAINE

Quitman, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Howard R. Whitehead, vice president and general superintendent of the Western Reserve Cotton mills, Georgia company, has resigned to accept the management of the Pepperell Manufacturing company, of Saco, Maine.

Mr. Whitehead and family came to Quitman two years ago when Mr. Whitehead assumed the general direction of the Western Reserve company, which has a close relationship to the Mason Tire and Rubber company, of Kent, Ohio. Soon after coming to Quitman Mr. Whitehead's company established mills at Millen, Ga., similar to the mills here and these have also been under the direction of Mr. Whitehead. These mills produce fibre for automobile tires and their conduct has been successful.

News, Views And Reviews

Stock Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, June 5.—With little interest the market acted quite well during the afternoon. About the same stocks that were strong yesterday afternoon were strong today. Lehigh Valley made a new high for the year and D. L. & W. was in demand. Coca-Cola got above 120 on reports stock would be split four for one with a $3 dividend rate on the new stock. Remington Typewriter continued in demand. Steel failed to respond to the statements that for the first time in some months Carnegie Steel was ready to increase operations. A run up in the call money rate to 4½ per cent was somewhat of a drawback to bullish operations. The general run on stocks does not act as though the reaction were over but at the same time there is a fairly good demand for good stocks.

Prices of gasoline and thin oils explains prices in the oil group. April consumption exceeded estimates of even most optimistic. Domestic demand of 207,030,000 gallons daily was largest of any month in oil history.

FENNER & BEANE.

New York, June 5.—The stock market today again opened somewhat mixed and better prices were recorded by American Ice, Foundatioin, Remington and a few other specialties while the main list was practically unchanged. The bears continued to work for lower prices and today seemed to be more successful in gaining their object. The market, however, was gradually changing its appearance and with most of the day's losses made up and profits accomplished in some issues, closed the day's business with a strong tone. It was the oil group which stopped the decline and brought about the recovery. The advance in oils was led by Pan American and the advance was at first slow and gradual with the public looking on somewhat skeptically due to recent false starts in the oils. The report of the bureau of mines which, indicated that in April 800,000,000 gallons of gasoline was consumed for domestic and export purposes, leaving but 58 days' supply on hand, together with the almost country-wide heat wave, which is going a long way to reduce gasoline supply, was some news for the bulls to work on.

JOHN F. CLARK.

New York, June 5.—Demand for oil stocks and certain specialties was good today but the general list was under professional pressure. The professional attack was furthered by a rise in call money rates this afternoon to 4½ per cent after standing call loans had renewed at 3½ per cent this morning. The market all along has been sensitive to changes in the money situation and proved no exception to the rule today.

As if by common consent the cliques which have been bidding up prices of diversified list of industrial shares the last two months relaxed their efforts and left them to the tender mercies of floor traders who were bearish on the general principle that a reaction was over due. Most of the selling in the last two days has emanated from that quarter.

Cotton Letters.

H. & B. BEER.

New Orleans, La., June 5.—The cotton market ruled higher in early morning owing to no rain of consequence in the cotton region over night, but values dropped thereafter because of the weather bureau predicting probably showers and cooler for Oklahoma and the Texas Pan Handle, part cloudy for other sections of Texas, but recovered in the afternoon. The continuance of generally fair weather was the forecast for the eastern half of the belt.

A general heavy rain is needed in nearly all districts of the cotton region for both early and late cotton and for germination of that which is not up. In some places in south Texas planting is not finished at this late date, and will not be completed until it rains.

While the average condition of the plant for the belt as a whole is higher than the 10-year average, as noted by last Tuesday's government report, 76.6 against 72, Texas figured 70 against 72.

The average condition of south and central Texas, which produced about 40 per cent of last year's crop of Texas, or about 2,000,000 bales, had an average condition on May 25 of only 56 and was 24 to 26 days later than usual and about one week later than last year. In some places cotton was dying. There has been no rain of consequence in those sections or in other parts of the belt.

PYNCHON & CO.

New York, June 5.—Despite the selling and general heaviness in the industrial issues in the early trading, the oil stocks were conspicuously strong. We see no reason to change our opinion as previously outlined, that is to say liquidate the general run of industrials on strength and maintain a constructive position in the oils and rails.

POST & FLAGG.

New York, June 5.—Although under some pressure from realizing and from selling by speculative operators feeling for the top of the advance the market has given a very good account of itself on the whole although hardly as yet possessing the degree of resistance necessary to withstand without yielding any sudden aggressive selling that develops at times as for example during the last few minutes of trading yesterday. Both the spot situation and the technical position leave little to be desired from the standpoint of strength and it will be a good many weeks yet before shorts can hope for any material assistance from selling against the crop, while on the other hand, the scanty stocks of goods imply a continued if only hand to mouth demand against which mills hold inadequate supplies unless those are to be used up to the last bale. Cotton from the next crop will not move in any volume before October and a much more general and drastic curtailment will have to be adopted if mills are to get through to then without slipping into an uncomfortable not to say dangerous condition as to supply. In actual trade circles it is held that the process of discounting a superabundant crop has been carried to extreme lengths and that nothing short of a miracle will serve to pull the chestnuts out of the fire. Advances from this level are chiefly contingent on how far the covering movement goes but if the present position is to be reversed prices will go at least temporarily far above anything the actual trade can afford to pay.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, June 5.—A further advance to 23.25 for October, making a recovery of 138 points from the low level of bureau day was checked by week-end realizing in the cotton market this morning. Quite a reacticnary sentiment developed which became a little more pronounced following the western belt forecast for showers in the Texas panhandle and prices broke to 22.84 for October, under these offerings. Local map readers thought there was little prospects for the showers to spread into the drouthy sections, however, and the market on the whole showed pretty steady undertone around the 23-cent level for October deliveries. The immediate future of prices probably depends almost entirely on the Texas weather. With any relief from drouth in south Texas, it is likely the market would be sold back pretty sharply, as the end May condition figures were probably not lower than anticipated when the market was being sold early last month. Week-end figures were without any particular effect but while July was in less urgent demand today, the recent tightening up of the old crop positions has had some influence on sentiment.

FENNER & BEANE.

New Orleans, June 5.—The cotton market was a two-sided affair today with good trading opportunities in both sides. It opened strong and sold 32 to 33 points higher during first hour. The buying was resumed in the afternoon after reports from all parts of Texas and Oklahoma had been received, showing it was still hot and dry at most places and no rain in prospect. The market recovered all it had lost and few points more as a result of this buying and ended the day with a net advance of 28 to 36 points.

A good many unfavorable reports came in from central, south and west Texas. west Texas is claiming that recent high winds have been quite unfavorable. Points in Georgia and South Carolina also sent in reports of need of rain and the Greenville, S. C., section reports a shortage of 10 inches in rainfall during the three months. The public is taking an interest in the market and values are apt to keep on the upgrade until general rains occur. Most map readers take the view that rains are not likely over the week-end.

PYNCHON & CO.

New York, June 5.—The government report showing cotton condition as of May 25, seemed to have been the week's outstanding feature, though to many, progressive development in the spot cotton situation is extremely significant and obviously not lacking in importance.

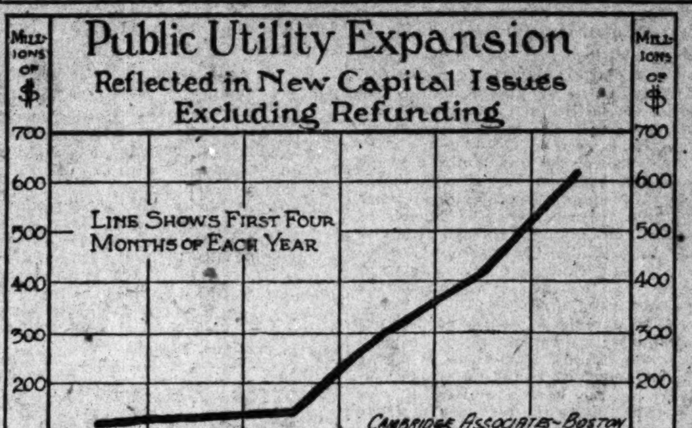
The condition of growing cotton given as 76.6 per cent of perfect on May 25, closely harmonizes with the opinion of several observers, who consider the conditions 77 per cent or even higher. However, views differ, as usual, with the average guess of cotton exchange numbers 74.6, and one of the important commercial papers, whose sources of information are widespread, give as their estimate a condition of 73. An extremely strong and internationally prominent cotton house, having headquarters in the cotton belt, give as their estimate a condition of 72.3.

We have seen no estimate as low as the 10-year average of 72, and all are, now in rather striking record of a general outlook vastly more favorable than was the situation last year on the corresponding date, when 65.6 was reported. In 1913, the condition was 79.1 and the final crop slightly over 14,000,000 bales. The next year, on a slightly reduced acreage, the initial condition was 74.3 and a bumper crop was harvested of 16,000,000 bales.

The last year that the May condition equalled that of this season, was in 1918, when 82.3 was recorded and on an acreage very nearly that of 1914, a harvest of but approximately 12,000,000 bales was gathered.

The acreage devoted to cotton and the early condition of the plant, are both of significance in their relation to the final result, though so many influences enter into the cotton problem later, unless the start be alarmingly poor, the beginning may not be of very great ultimate importance.

Investors Are Interested In Public Utilities



Marked speculation of late in public utility securities calls once more to the forefront of attention the tremendous expansion which the utility industry is experiencing and the genuine prosperity which appears to be in store. A long decade of somber outlook is apparently over. Many people realize this only with difficulty, for not so long ago it was hard to conceive a prosperous utility corporation. But the American public is coming to realize its utter dependence, under our modern mode of living, upon the utilities, and with this realization is growing a more generous attitude.

The extraordinary increase in the use of light and power since the war has allowed utility corporations to improve their earnings greatly, despite limitations placed upon charges for service, which have prevented an increase in charges comparable with increases in material and labor costs. Expansion in producing facilities has become necessary and this has required capital. The growing call of utility corporations for new capital is illustrated in the above chart, which shows total new utility capital issues during the first four months of each of the past several years. Refunding issues are not included in the chart. But new capital is not being sought entirely for the purpose of increasing plant capacity. Much of it is desired and being used to consolidate independent companies into fewer and larger groups. The reason for this trend lies mainly in the fact that it means great savings in operating costs. Consolidations have presented great opportunity for speculation—and the opportunity is being fully seized. The utility industry in itself is sound. But there is always the danger that expansion may be overdone or may not be accomplished in the soundest way. There is danger that resultant speculation in the securities involved may be excessive.

JNO. F. CLARK & CO.

Chicago, June 5.—Another day of extreme heat, drought and high winds over southern portions of the winter wheat belt gave renewed strength to the market. On the advance there was considerable realizing because of the extent and rapidity of this. Weather conditions over the spring wheat territory and in Canada are considered as favorable but the news from the winter wheat belt remains of a discouraging sort. The great heat, together with the lack of moisture bringing reports from some points in th eOhio valley of firing. Harvest is under way in southern Oklahoma and first threshing returns from there show yields of 14 bushels as against eight to ten expected. Threshing returns are not yet sufficiently numerous to permit any definite ideas of ultimate yield, on the contrary there are so many claims of unfilled heads that there seems to be a possibility of a realization of the estimates made during the week by three local authorities. The indicated small yield of winter wheat gives basis for the belief that purchases on depressions are still the order of the day.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, June 5.—A sharp upturn on the opening took place this morning in view of the early weather reports showing clear, hot weather over the belt. On the upturn, a moderate amount of profit-taking took place which caused prices to ease off somewhat from the high. The official weather map posted later in the morning showed low barometer over the northern part of Texas with lower temperatures and expert map readers said that the map has shown more indication of rain than for a week past. However, as yet no showers have materialized there. Unless the drouth is broken in Texas very shortly, we feel that the market will have another sharp upturn.

C. P. ELLIS & CO.

New Orleans, June 5.—A continuance of dry hot weather in Texas, and for that matter in practically all sections of the belt, furnished the inspiration for additional covering and an actively higher market during the early trading today, but the advance was checked and reselling precipitated by the forecast for thundershowers in Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. In turn, the appearance of a demand of substantial character in July imparted fresh stimulus. Short covering has been extensive during the past several days and should the predicted rain for Texas materialize, reselling and a lower market would follow, whereas its failure to develop would doubtless furnish the basis for a further advance. The strength of the old crop position serves to render would-be sellers timid and the market would quickly reflect any concern about the crop.

ORVIS BROS. & CO.

New York, June 5.—The covering movement in cotton continued throughout today's trading because of no prospect for rain, especially in central and south Texas. Demand has broadened and sales in volume are uncovered only through bidding prices up. Furthermore very much better dry goods business has been done on cotton's strength. To what extent the swing will go is anybody's guess but it is certain the appearance of it having culminated that developed at one time today proved false as new and more vigorous demand came in on and just after the weakness than was the case before. We believe it advisable to follow the strength with sales because of the market's technical weakness through the cotton that has been bought.

Grain Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

Chicago, June 5.—Wheat: Realizing sales continued throughout the session and prices worked gradually lower. The decline was not particularly rapid, being retarded by further increase in outside speculative support but the new buying was neither as aggressive nor voluminous as the preceding day and the downward trend from early top was fairly consistent. It looks to us as though wheat bought on the sharp breaks should prove excellent property.

Corn: Trade fairly active and action again centered in December: That delivery reached 102¼ and then had a setback to around the previous close. Late weakness was due in large part to the reaction in wheat. Receipts were estimated at 180 cars. Crop prospects in northwest reported generally excellent. Rains needed elsewhere.

Oats: Fairly active trade with general commission house buying early followed by scattered liquidation through the same houses on account of the setback in wheat. Locals also reduced their holdings. There was no appearance of distressing weakness, however, and market had a healthy appearance.

Rye: Broader speculative trade in deferred futures and some buying of July that was suggestive of export business, although no actual sales were reported. Cash barley steady with sales 86 to 89 cents.

Provisions: Fairly active in lard through commission houses. Early bulge brought out realizing sales and there was selling also by an export interest. Hog receipts estimated 24,000, market steady to five cents up, top 12.40.

Cottonseed Oil.

New York, June 5.—The cottonseed oil market was generally steady today, the decline in lard being offset by buying by refiners. Profit-taking resulted in a partial decline, however, and the close was 2 points higher to 10 points net lower. Sales, 29,000 barrels. Prime crude, $9.50@9.75; prime summer yellow spot, $10.60@10.90; July closed $10.86; September, $11.28; October, $11.19; December, $10.30, all bid.

Chicago Cotton.

Chicago, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Cotton prices here today closed at 20½ points higher. Offerings were light and there was scattered buying on account of dry weather in parts of the belt.

Liverpool Exchange Closed.

MILLER HEARING STILL UNDERWAY

Hearing before the Georgia securities commission on the rule nisi requiring G. L. Miller & Company to show cause why its license to sell bonds in Georgia should not be permanently revoked, will be continued in the office of Secretary of State S. Guyt McLendon this morning at 9 o'clock.

Two mornings already have been devoted to the hearing and it appears probable that it will continue for several days. G. Lloyd Preacher, Atlanta architect; A. V. Gude, of Gude & Company, contractors, and Morgan T. Wynne, of the Wynne-Claughton company, testified Friday in regard to finances and building of the Wynne-Claughton structure. It is in regard to financing and handling of this project, through an issue of $800,000 in Miller bonds, that the charges of misrepresentation and fraud are based on which the commission temporarily revoked the Miller license for Georgia.

Inasmuch as hearing on a petition by the state asking a receivership for all assets and records in regard to the Wynne-Claughton building and the St. Andrews apartments, another Miller financed project, is set in Fulton superior court for Monday, it is probable that the securities commission, if its hearing is not concluded today, will adjourn until after the court hearing is concluded.

Testimony of A. V. Gude and Morgan T. Wynne, given before at the investigation conducted by T. B. Conner, chief examiner for the commission, has been read into the record at the present hearing, as well as minutes of the commission meetings dealing with the matter, correspondence, contracts, etc., between G. L. Miller & Co., G. L. Miller personally, Morgan T. Wynne, the Wynne-Claughton company, and others.

Witnesses are being examined, and their testimony and examinations will continue this morning. An imposing array of counsel for both sides is present at the hearing.

Attorney General George M. Napier, member of the securities commission, is disqualified to sit in this case as he is counel for the state in the receiverhip proceedings. Hearing is before the remaining two members, S. Guyt McLendon, secretary of state, and Hal M. Stanley, commissioner of commerce and labor.

New York, June 5.—Continuation of the recent buying movement caused a further advance of 27 to 50 points in coffee futures at the opening today, September selling up to 17.40 in the early trading. At this price there was a good deal of realizing and September sold off to 17.00, but reports of continued steadiness in Brazil had a sustaining influence and it closed at 17.20. WEATHER DAMAGE ADVANCES GRAINS

Chicago, June 5.—Scorching weather and reports of widespread damage to crops hoisted the wheat market today to a new high price record for both September delivery and for December as well. Heavy profit-taking sales, however, wiped out most of the gain. Wheat closed unsettled at 1-4 to 1 1-2c net advance, July 1.68 1-2 to 1.68 5-8 and September 1.64 1-2 to 1.64 7-8, with corn ranging from 3-4c decline to an equal upturn, oats 3-4 to 1 3-4c higher, and provisions varying from 32c setback to a rise of 10c.

A general rush to buy wheat as soon as trading here opened. Fever for ownership was noticeably heightened by evidence that the European trade, especially at Liverpool, had for the first time of late become responsive in earnest to reports of severe crop damage in the United States. The rapidity with which prices here were advancing, though, led to a display of conservatism on the part of a majority of commission houses. Late selling was further stimulated by some promise of rain over sections of the west and southwest.

Despite the heavy load of profit-taking sales, the wheat market at no time today reached to more than 1-2c below yesterday's finish. On every fraction down the buying increased, and according to some observers showed more or less the persistent character which for a time accompanied the extraordinary fluctuations of the May delivery of wheat.

In this connection, emphasis was laid on talk which was current that much of the damage already done to wheat is irreparable.

Corn followed the trend of wheat. Corn buying was based largely on the ground that a short crop of wheat would necessitate substitution of all other grain. Oats developed independent strength owing to increasing reports of hot weather damage to the oats crop.

3 ATLANTANS DRAW FEDERAL PEN TERMS

Harry J. Rogers, Charles Wilson and R. M. Daniel, three white men of Atlanta, entered pleas of guilty before Judge Samuel Sibley of the federal court on charges of violating the Harris anti-narcotic act and were sentenced to terms in the federal prison here. Rogers was sentenced to nine months, while the others were given sentences of one year and one day each.

MERCER DEBATING HALL USED AS COURTROOM

Macon, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The Ciceronian debating hall, of Mercer university, has for the last week been a temporary court room. Yesterday it was learned that the lawyers in the case, which was one of arbitration between the Atlantic Ice and Coal company and the Peach Growers Association of Georgia, and was held in the society hall on the Mercer campus, had given the society $50 for the use of the hall during their sessions there.

The case was tried with Dean W. H. Fish, of the Mercer law school, as arbitrator.

It is a signal honor to Dean Fish that he has been chosen to act as arbitrator in the case. He was for 18 years chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia and since his retirement from the bench in 1922, has been connected with the Mercer law school.

PRISON GUARDS HELD IN PROBE OF MURDER

Rocky Mount, N. C., June 5.—Two guards at the prison camp of the Rocky Mount district, near here, were held in jail today awaiting the outcome of a coroner's inquest this afternoon into the death of Joe Armstrong, negro prisoner.

Armstrong died yesterday after he is alleged to have been administered a severe flogging by R. V. Tyler and W. C. Gulley, prison guards. Physicians who examined the body declared it bore evidences of severe whipping and that several blows had been struck about the head.

New York, June 5.—A sudden revival of activity and strength in the oil shares after midday checked the decided reactionary tendency and turned the course of prices upward in today's stock market. The heavy buying of the oil shares received its stimulus from the publication of government statistics showing record-breaking gasoline consumption.

Pan-American "B" assumed the leadership of the oil group, climbing nearly 3 points to 59 1-4 and then easing slightly to profit taking. Mid-Continent Petroleum moved up over a point to within a small fraction of the year's high in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends. Net gains of a point or more also were recorded by Barnsdall "A," General Petroleum, Atlantic Refining, Middle States common and preferred, Phillips, Sinclair, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Tidewater and White Eagle.

Standard industrials were under pressure from the start, breaking below their previous resistance points, but they received strong buying support when the turn came in the oils and closed generally higher. United States Steel common rallied from 113 5-8 to 114 1-8, off 1-8; Baldwin closed 1-2 higher at 112 3-4, after selling as low as 11 3-4, and American Can closed nearly a point higher at 188 3-4 after touching 185 1-2.

Bullish operations were successfully conducted in a number of specialties. Further accumulation of Cushman's Bakery sent that stock up three points to a new high record at 85 on reports of an early merger with the Purity Bakeries companies. Hot weather continued to provide the stimulus in the demand for American Ice and Coca-Cola which attained new peak prices at 114 3-8 and 120 3-4 respectively. Remington Typewriter, Moon Motors, American Type Founders, Tobacco Products A and Mack Trucks first preferred also advanced into new high ground. Bethlehem Steel and Pressed Steel Car sank to new lows.

Except for the establishment of a new peak price by LeHigh Valley at 82 7-8 there was little interest in the rail shares which moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent but advanced to 4 and thence to 4 1-2 in the afternoon. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Weakness of French francs, which broke below 4.70 cents to the lowest rate since a year ago March, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Selling of the French currency was inspired by reports of another financial crisis as a result of the heavy increase in note circulation and advances to the state. Demand sterling ruled fairly steady around $4.85 5-8.

Most of the continental rates reacted in sympathy with French francs.

Bears, Despite Heavy Selling, Fail to Make Much Headway in Campaign on Stock Market.

New York, June 5.—Despite continued excessively hot weather, activity and strength continues in the stock market, with trading however largely professional. A large number of professional traders on the floor and throughout the financial district here, believing that the market is technically overbought, continue to sell stocks shortly without making any headway. Interest in the stock market plainly is still on the conservative side.

Oil shares were again leaders in the market on the up side, with motors again following closely behind. Today's government report shows that during April the country's supply of gasoline, which had been showing monthly increase because of the over-production of crude oil, dropped 50,000,000 gallons. This is the first time since 1920 that a monthly decrease has been reported in the supply of gasoline before May, or when the spring automobile season usually begins.

Daily average domestic consumption of gasoline for April is given at 27,030,000 gallons, a new monthly high for all time. The previous monthly high was 26,400,000 gallons last August. Oil men here predicted today that May domestic consumption of gasoline would average 29,000,000 gallons, with over a billion gallons used a day on the average when the summer automobile season arrives.

France made a new low for the year, following the overnight news of yesterday's renewed efforts of the socialists to impose a tax on capital as a substitute for the plan to further inflate paper currency to take care of maturing government obligations. The decline in the franc has been due to the fact that unlike England, France has been unwilling to tax her people to balance her budget and deflate inflated war-time currency. In any continued decline such as has been witnessed in the franc there comes a time when the mere extent of the decline causes a fresh flight of capital which in turn further depresses exchange. That is what happened in Germany.

TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS AT BARNESVILLE

Barnesville, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) Griffin District Leadership Training school of the Methodist church will open here next Monday, June 8, and continue for a week, the buildings of the sixth district A. & M. school being used for the school.

It is expected that a large number of people from all over the district will be in attendance, as the teaching force will be a notable one, and the reasonable expense for the superior advantages will be an inducement to many of the young people who desire to train themselves for usefulness.

Dr. Homer Thompson will be in charge and he will be assisted by Dr. A. M. Pierce, Dr. J. C. Adams, Dr. J. H. Eakes, Dr. W. A. Shelton, Dr. W. L. Pierce., Bishop James E. Dickey, Mrs. W. J. Culpepper, Miss Little, Rev. Marvin A. Franklin, pastor of the First Methodist church here, all of whom are widely known and able teachers, making a notable faculty.

CONGRESSMAN CRISP VISITS HAWAII ISLAND

Americus, June 5.—(Special.)—Congressman Charles R. Crisp, accompanied by Mrs. Crisp, left here today for San Francisco, where they will join five other congressmen who have been designated by the government to make a trip to Hawaii and inspect the island regarding the possibilities of converting it into one of America's largest strongholds.

While in the western part of the world the congressional party will visit the Philippines and several cities in China.

PRIVATE VOTING PLAN TO BE USED IN BROOKS

Quitman, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) Two consecutive grand juries having so recommended, Brooks county will vote under the Australian ballot system after this. The stock law election to be held the first Wednesday in July will be the first election under the new system.

Ordinary May has bought the necessary booths this week and they will be installed at the 12 voting precincts in the county, with the necessary instructions in regard to their use.

SCHOOL TERM IS INCREASED

Quitman, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) The county school board has recommended to the board of county commissioners the levy of one mill additional school tax, making six mills county-wide school tax for next year. It has also added one month to the school term, making seven months instead of six and has fixed the salary schedule for teachers at the same figure as last term.

This is regarded as a distinctive victory for school progress in Brooks county. The rural school system has a debt of about $15,000 and the added millage is designed to clear this.

EPPS SERIOUSLY HURT IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Athens, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—Ben T. Epps, who was severely injured when the airplane that he was piloting Thursday afternoon crashed near the Clarke county landing field, killing Otis Camp, Jr., of Winder, continues in a serious condition at a local hospital. He is suffering from a bruised leg, a broken arm, lacerations and bruises on the face, a punctured ear-drum and what is believed by physicians, a fracture at the base of the brain. Hope is held out for his recovery, but his condition is serious.

Funeral services for Camp will be conducted from the Winder Christian church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Rev. J. H. Wood officiating. The youth was 17 years old, a junior at the Winder High school and a member of the athletic teams of that school.

He is survived by his father and mother, Sheriff and Mrs. Otis Camp, and two elder brothers, Hope H. and H. C. Camp.

JACK WHITE GIVEN SENTENCE ON GANG

Jack White, 18, was sentenced Friday to serve six to ten years in the state penitentiary, after he had entered a plea of guilty to an attempt to rob the safe of Cooper & Duke on Broad street. He declared it was his "first job" and that he became disgusted after several minutes of unsuccessful work on the safe and left the store. He entered through a skylight.

Decision Is Rendered By Judge Searcy In Monroe School Case

Forsyth, Ga., June 5.—(Special.) In the school litigation begun some weeks ago by County School Superintendent T. D. Thurmond in mandamus proceedings against the board of education and Tax Collector Searcy, a decision was made today by Judge W. E. H. Searcy at Griffin, to use the available funds of 1924 taxes in paying the teachers, who are three months behind in their salaries, and to pay to the Citizens' Bank of Forsyth out of this fund $3,800.

The indebtedness to this bank is around $75,000 and they sought to collect all the available funds now in the tax collector's hands on this debt. The court also ruled that the board had no legal right to close the schools nor to direct the funds in hand paid on the bank debt.

The board was ordered to rescind its resolution offering the bank 1925 or 1926 taxes as collateral.

While the board of education ordered the schools closed, Superintendent Thurmond instructed the teachers to continue their duties guaranteeing them their pay. This they did, though all the while drawing no salaries.

As Monroe county is in the Flint circuit, Judge Ogden Persons was disqualified in the case.

REV. BROWDER'S BURIAL HELD AT BARNESVILLE

Barnesville, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The funeral of Rev. L. W. Browder, 64, pastor of the Methodist churches of the Barnesville circuit, who died at a hospital in Atlanta Thursday evening, was held from the First Methodist church here Friday afternoon. Dr. J. H. Eakes, presiding elder, Griffin district, and Rev. Marvin Franklin, local pastor, conducted the services, which were attended by many Methodist preachers of this section and a vast concourse of people. He was greatly loved as preacher and citizen.

He is survived by his widow; three sons, George Browder, Rome; Robert Browder, Bradenton, Fla., and Hanson Browder, Barnesville, and two daughters, Mrs. Dewey English, Monroe N. C., and Mrs. C. F. Kuck, Roanoke, Va.

New York, June 5.—MOON MOTORS: Present indications are that Moon's earnings for the first half of this year will cover the full year's dividend requirements, $1 per share having been earned for the first quarter of 1925 as compared with $1.12 per share for the corresponding period in 1924. The company has recently introduced an eight-cylinder car to be marketed under the name "Diana" and results from this product are expected to add substantially to earnings.

VANADIUM CORPORATION: For the third consecutive year this company reported an increase in net earnings. For the year ending December 31, 1924, its net equalled $2.31 per share, which compares with $2.39 in 1923. Under the present management, progress has been made in reducing production costs and adjustment of export tax differences with the Peruvian government. The company entered the current year with a strong treasury position so that common dividends can be resumed as soon as earnings warrant.

Portrait of E. T. Ware Presented by Alumni To Atlanta University

A special feature of commencement week at Atlanta university was the presentation by the alumni to the institution of an oil painting of President Emeritus Edward T. Ware. The artist was Edwin A. Harleston of the class of 1905. Professor George A. Towns presented the portrat on behalf of the alumni, and it was received by President Adams.

At the last accounts President Emeritus Ware, who is at a sanatorium in Colorado, was slowly improving.

Atlanta university graduated 25 from its college course and 37 from the normal course. This is the largest number of graduates in the history of the institution. The commencement address was by Dr. Frank R. Shipman, president of the Atlanta Theological seminary.

The summer session will begin on June 8.

New York, June 5.—Bond trading was restricted in volume today by the absence of many investment bankers and bond dealers on their annual outing. The market, as a result, assumed a sluggish appearance and prices turned mildly reactionary.

Foreign developments were decidedly unsettling and prices of European bonds were depressed an average of a point or so. The sharp break in the French franc to the lowest level in more than a year, below 4.70 cents, which accompanied reports of a threatened financial crisis in Paris, contributed to a decline in the French obligations. The allied charge that Germany has failed on 13 counts to live up to the disarmament terms of the Versailles treaty, also spoke confidence in the foreign situation.

Oil company liens gave the only outstanding exhibition of group strength in the day's dull market. In company with the petroleum shares, the leading oil bonds, including Pan-American, Skelly and Sinclair issues, responded readily to reports of record-breaking gasoline consumption. Little buying support developed for the railroad issues and, as a result, prices throughout this list eased off. St. Paul, Frisco, Delaware & Hudson and Chicago & Eastern Illinois bonds were among the heavy spots. A sudden demand for Norfolk & Southern 5s lifted the price of this issue 3 points to a new high for the year.

An offering of $10,000,000 6 per cent notes of the Schulte Real Estate, Inc., recently formed by the Schulte Tobacco company, will be made next week.

Postoffice Receipts Show Tremendous Business Increase

Tangible evidence that Atlanta's business interests are sound and that commerce and trade is expanding at a greater rate than ever came Friday with the announcement of Postmaster Edwin K. Large that postoffice receipts for the month of May this year amounted to $292,388 shattering all previous records of the Atlanta postoffice for that month.

Receipts of the postoffice for May this year were greater by $15,399 than receipts for the same month last year. Not only did the May receipts smash previous records but they brought the receipts for the first five months of this year up to a figure greater than for any similar period in the history of the office.

Receipts for the first quarter of this year amounted to $891,970 as compared to $885,578 last year. The total for April this year was $300,366 as compared to $297,358 in 1924.

The steady increase in receipts of For the first five months of this the postoffice this year indicate a corresponding increase in general business as the postoffice records are considered by business experts as one of the best barometers of business conditions.

year the total receipts amounted to $1,484,725 as compared to $1,459,936 last year.

CURB OILS WILD ON GAS FIGURES

New York, June 5.—Publication of a government report showing a reduction of fifty million gallons in the storage stocks of gasoline, was the signal for a wild outburst of buying in oil shares in today's curb market, checking a reactionary tendency in other sections of the list. Magnolia Petroleum jumped four points to 149 while net gains of 1 to 3 1-2 points were recorded by Standards Oil of Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Humble, Sun, Vacuum, Ohio, Continental and others.

Public utilities developed considerable irregularity. Lehigh Power securities broke from 144 to 132 1-2 and then rallied to 141 for a net loss of one point. American Gas and Electric, American Power and Light, American Super-power A and Commonwealth were among the many issues to fall back one to two points.

In industrials, Universal Pictures touched a new high record at 30. Trading in Chrysler quieted down somewhat, the stock closing half a point lower at 112 1-2, after selling as high as 115. Pathe Exchange was run up early five points to a new top at 67 3-4.

The new St. Paul issues were moderately active the preferred ranging between 27 1-8 and 28 1-2, closing near the top.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

New York, June 5.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

High summer temperatures have variously affected crops, trade and industry. Where, as in the west these have been accompanied by rains, benefit to crops, especially corn, and a stimulation to buying of light summer goods have followed. In the central and lower Mississippi Valley and southern Texas, however, where rain was needed, the high temperatures alone have dulled trade and prevented best crop development.

In the country at large, high temperatures have tended to slow down industry and temporarily retard buying. Taken as a whole, the arrival of seasonable weather has probably helped more than hurt final distribution and fill-in trade with jobbers. Wash dress fabrics certainly seem to have been definitely helped. Weekly bank clearings, $9,406,579,000.

Garage at Louisville.

Louisville, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The Standard Oil company and local citizens have purchased a prominent uptown corner upon which a modern filling station and garage will be erected, it is said, to represent an investment of about $10,000.

Sugar.

New York, June 5.—The raw sugar market was firmer today with spots now being quoted at 4.46. Sales reported were 13,000 bags of Porto Rican, for prompt shipment at 4.43; 20,000 bags of Cuban, early second half June shipment and 75,000 bags of Cuban July shipment at 4.46 and 21,000 bags of Philippines, due the end of July at 4.49.

Raw sugar futures were higher on covering and Cuban support, influenced by the firm tone in the spot market and reports of continued good inquiry for the refined. Final prices were 3 to 4 points net higher. July closed 2.74; September 2.86; December 2.91; March 2.93.

Refined sugar prices were unchanged, but a continued good withdrawal demand was reported. Prices ranged from 5.50 to 5.70 for fine granulated.

Dry Goods.

New York, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Cotton goods market today were quiet in all divisions except wash fabrics where considerable activity prevailed, on printed lines in fine combed stock, and in silk and cottons. Spinners were asking higher prices for yarns but merchants offerings showed many price irregularities. Raw silk was steady. Silk prints were active for quick delivery. Raw wool markets showed definite improvement in the volume of sales and to a lesser extent in price firmness. Worsted dress goods in staple and semi-staple lines were sold under pressure to move lots at low prices.

Rice.

UNUSUAL HEALTH RECORD AT FORSYTH

Forsyth, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—If any one doubts the health of Monroe county, they have only to investigate the family health record of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martin. Mr. Martin is 81, his wife 81, they have 10 children all living, the oldest being 66 and the youngest 35. There has been no death in the family not even among the grand children.

LACK OF RAIN AIDS MOSQUITO FIGHT

Americus, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—The scarcity of rain, although threatening the life of the crops in this section, is playing havoc with the mosquito, and aided by a rigid health enforcement campaign, nature has just about eliminated the disease-breeding pest in this city, according to the health department.

Typhoid fever has been held in check, there being only one case reported this year, and the dreaded malaria, which this time last year was reported thriving in every section of the county, has not yet made its appearance. The county and city have spent considerable money in fighting the fly and mosquito this spring and have two policemen on duty in the residential sections of the city to inspect homes at least twice a month.

EFFECT OF HEAT UPON BUSINESS DIFFERS WIDELY

New York, June 5.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"High summer temperatures have variously affected crops, trade and industry. Whereas, in the west, these have been accompanied by rains beneficial to crops, especially corn, and a stimulation to buying of light summer goods has followed. In the central and lower Mississippi valley and southern Texas, however, where rain was needed, the high temperatures alone have dulled trade and prevented best crop development.

"In the country at large, high temperatures have tended to slow down industry and temporarily retard buying. Taken as a whole, the arrival of seasonal weather has probably helped more than hurt final distribution and fill-in trade with jobbers. Wash dress fabrics certainly seem to have been definitely helped.

The Bathing Beauty Contests

Who Is the Real Miss Atlanta?

Recently, a young people's magazine said, in substance:

"The youth of today are much berated by their elders for alleged moral looseness and carelessness. But let it be remembered that in every instance it is the money of mature people, not the money of youth, that establishes every form of commercialized moral menace. If any of the picture shows or straight theatricals are sex-mud, it is elder people that own them and put them before us. If the public dance halls are a danger, at least it is not our money that establishes them. If gambling dens and other resorts are pestilential, it is not our greed that maintains and finances them—but older people's."

Our generation may well bow in shame before this just indictment. And it may well be added that it is the money of the mature that exploits the exposed forms and figures of our dear young girlhood in the pernicious bathing beauty contests that head up in Atlantic City.

Blasting at Civilization.

What a fearful price to pay for a few dollars, to coax our own girlhood into the utmost limit of daring in costume, parade them before the camera, and then flaunt their half-clad forms across whole pages of our leading dailies! The Evangelical Ministers' association rightly declared that this was "blasting at the finest of our civilization."

Incidental pictures of bathing scenes are bad enough, for such costumes are designed for going into the water, not for exposing the person to the eyes of the multitude. But when, as in these contests, they are made the means of flaunting forms in public prints, not in the water but out of it, everywhere opportunity offers, no thoughtful man or woman can fail to see that we are plucking at the finest in womanly character, and rubbing the blush of maidenly reserve from the cheeks of the future motherhood of this nation.

Let the Thoughtful Consider.

Exploiting these pernicious contests, headlines have been strung across the pages—"Don't Be Afraid Girls, Come on and Get Before the Camera." Close-ups are blazed in full page pictures, and our young womanhood is appealed to in many ways to shamelessly participate in all this.

Where do these pictures go? Into the homes of the good and the bad—everywhere—sometimes to be plastered on the walls of young men's and boys' rooms, white and black, there to do what evil they may.

The Religious Forces Protest at Last.

The ringing resolutions of the ministers mean simply that at last somebody must protest, and that it is time to say that some things are too precious to make money out of, and some things too sacred for civilization to permit, if it is not to go up in smoke.

Getting Moral Sentiment to Function

There is enough of moral sentiment to prevent these things if only it can be gotten to function. The ministers, and those allied with them in this, believe that there are thousands of mother whom these contests grieve, thousands of fathers who feel "not for MY daughter," and thousands of young people who feel that it is a reflection on the youth of this generation. If all these will protest, we will wake a moral sentiment in this nation that will give pause to all those who ask first of such things: "Will it pay us money?" Thousands of country homes resent this in their hearts—let us hope that they will put their resentment to voice and pen.

It is time some better ideal were set forth before Atlanta's girlhood than that which this folly expounds.

The Real Miss Atlanta.

The other night, at one of our high school commencements in our great city auditorium, 227 young Atlanta women with roses in their arms, stepped upon the platform, eyes flaming and hearts high with the glory of four years of duty well done. Their frocks of snowy white were simple and modest, and the words their bright-minded girl leaders spoke rang with high purpose to love and serve and bless. Five thousand or more Atlantans applauded as they marched upon the stage, a picture of Atlanta's best glory.

Who is the real Miss Atlanta, for whom every Atlanta should have a place in his heart?

Why, that girl who best epitomizes the spirit, beauty, modesty and high resolve there displayed. And it is unjust to the generation which it is given us to shepherd, lead, and love, to set before them instead an ideal that is cheap, paltry and unworthy.

He is the enemy of the youth of any day whose voice calls them away from the best.

Medals and Scholarships Awarded High School Boys

Elaborate exercises at the city auditorium Friday night marked the graduation of 95 members of the senior class of the Boys' High school.

Professor Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, presided and delivered the principal address. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. C. W. Daniel, of the First Baptist church, and diplomas to the graduating class of 1925 were delivered by Dr. R. M. Eubanks, a member of the board of education.

Special prizes and scholarships were delivered by Professor H. O. Smith, principal of the school.

Jacobs Valedictorian.

James Asbury Jacobs was valedictorian, speaking on "Boys' High School Studentship," while John Slaughter Candler II delivered the class oration on "Our Objective."

A feature of the program was the music by the Boys' High school concert orchestra. This organization probably has achieved a greater degree of musical excellence than any orchestra in the school history of Atlanta, and their performance Friday night caused most favorable comment.

Scholarships were awarded to various universities and colleges, and special awards made for general excellence and records during the four-year term.

The scholarship to the University of Virginia was awarded to Robert W. McCullough, who completed the four-year course in three and a half years.

The scholarship to Emory university was given to James A. Jacobs, highest ranking student in the class.

The scholarship to the Georgia School of Technology went to William J. Martin, who completed the four-year course in three years.

Tulane Scholarship.

The scholarship to Harvard, given by the Atlanta Harvard club, was given to Herbert A. Tripp.

The scholarship to Mercer university was awarded to Troy Woodbury.

The Atlanta Journal cup, awarded annually to the best all-round student, was given in duplicate this year, as the result of a tie vote by the senior class and the faculty. The two winners were Joseph H. Boland and David Dean Rusk.

The cup awarded by the Little Theater Guild to Boys' High Dramatic club, as winners in the recent high school dramatic contest, was presented to the club through Robert W. McCullough, president.

Special mention was made of the fact that two members of the class have gone through the entire four years of the scholastic course without missing a day. They are Jordan Bottom and Troy Woodbury.

Professor E. L. Floyd, chairman of the faculty athletic committee, made the awards for athletic excellence during the year.

Gold footballs were presented to two members of the football squad who made the Atlanta "All-Prep" team. They are Joe Boland, center, and Red McCleskey, right end.

Gold basketballs were awarded to two "All-Prep" basketball players, Malon Courts and John Stovall.

Gold Baseballs.

Joe Boland, captain; Red McCleskey, Joe Madden, Guy Henry, Pete Ford, Ike Turner, Darrell Ayer, John Stith, William Leide, Samuel Fincher, Newman Corker, Malon Courts, W. H. Dulaney, Breezy Winn, S. Wood, John Harper and Charles Miller.

Basketball letters were awarded to Malon Courts, captain; John Stovall, Willie O'Connor, Joe Boland, Harvey Hill, Albert Wynne and Park McGinty.

MARYLAND VILLAGE IS RAZED BY FIRE

Mount Airy, Md., June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—For the third time in 20 years this village of 1,000 inhabitants was swept by a disastrous fire last night. Eleven buildings were destroyed with an estimated loss of $200,000. The flames consumed a fourth of the town including one of its two banks and both of its flour and grain mills, its principal business enterprises.

Firemen sent from Frederick, Ellicott City, Kensington and Rockville were forced by lack of water pressure to carry water from tanks of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. With the temperature for the vicinity reported at 102 during the afternoon, the heat developed during the fire was terrific. Explosion of several thousand cartridges in a hardware store and ignition of two gasoline stations added spectacular and hazard effects. Several heat prostrations were reported but no serious injuries were known to have resulted directly from the fire.

Ten years ago a $250,000 fire wiped out a third of the town and 20 years ago the principal section of the village at that time was lost in a $50,000 fire.

HEAVY WITHDRAWALS CAUSE BANK'S CLOSING

Jackson, Tenn., June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Peoples Savings Bank of Jackson in the accounts of which an alleged shortage of $342,000 was discovered several days ago, was closed this afternoon under orders of the state banking department and its affairs taken in charge by H. B. Oliver, state bank examiner.

"The bank was closed this afternoon because it was unable to meet its obligations in the regular procedure of business," Mr. Oliver said. "Excessive withdrawals or withdrawals of large amounts were responsible for the closing.

"The bank is protected by a good and solvent bond of $350,000 of the directors and also by T. B. Carroll making over property valued at $100,000 or more, making protection to the amount of some $450,000."

T. B. Carroll, cashier, tendered his resignation when the shortage was said to have been found and announcement was made that he had assumed responsibility for discrepancies discovered in its accounts.

The last official statement of the bank issued at the close of business April 6 showed that the bank, capitalized at $200,000, held $1,900,205.10 in deposits at that time, a surplus fund of $100,000 and undivided profits of $21,287.69. Loans and discounts were given as $1,402,608.25; loans on cotton $49,729.92 and cash on hand and due from other banks $398,983.30. Other resources brought the amount to $2,346,582.79 and total liabilities were the same amount.

One report current today was that Mr. Carroll had made a statement to the bank examiner. Mr. Oliver declined to comment on the report today. Another was that Mr. Carroll was preparing a statement to be made public probably tomorrow.

Meanwhile, rumors were plentiful, but no authoritative statements were given other than that the bank's affairs had been taken over by the state examiner for the reasons given in his brief statement.

Announcement was made yesterday, however, that the shortage reported was actual and was not due to bad loans.

The applicant's counsel began the examination of witnesses preparatory to finishing their case.

New Orleans, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The modified pari-mutuel system of betting on horse races used at the Donaldsville, La., fair grounds in May was declared legal under Louisiana law in a decision rendered today by District Judge Samuel Leblanc at Donaldson. This was regarded as a test case.

It was reported that the pari-mutuel system may be adopted at the local track if finally approved.

Griffin, Ga., June 5.—(Special.)—James M. Kimbrough, 81, of Hamilton, passed away at the home of his son, Colonel James M. Kimbrough, Jr., whom he was visiting, Friday morning at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Kimbrough had been in failing health for some time and had been confined to his bed for a month. He was born June 3, 1844, in Harris county, Ga., and came to Griffin in 1889, where he became associated with the Georgia Experiment station as agronomist. He rendered most efficient service for 25 years, aiding greatly in the agricultural development of the state.

After retiring from this position, he returned to Hamilton, where he has been making his home. He was a Confederate veteran, having been a color-bearer in the 31st Georgia regiment. He was also a prominent Mason and devout worker in the Methodist church.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the home of Colonel Kimbrough, conducted by Dr. J. H. Eakes and the Rev. John F. Yarbrough. Members of Meridian Sun lodge of Masons will take charge of the services at the grave in Oak Hill cemetery.

FIVE ARE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Five persons suffered bruises and lacerations about the body Friday night as the result of a crash between a sedan, owned by Miss Ethel Dull, and driven by Frank Lackey, a negro chauffeur, and a touring car, driven by Leon Nixon, at the intersection of Peachtree and Eleventh streets.

Those injured were Miss Maoime Zittro, of 575 West Peachtree street; Miss Dull, and the chauffeur. In the touring car with Nixon was Miss Hollifield, of 55 Boulevard drive. Both received bruises in the crash.

The accident was investigated by Patrolmen J. M. Austin and H. W. Armstrong. The cars were only slightly damaged. No case was made.

Henry Lewis, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis, of 178 Bass street, Friday night was struck by an automobile driven by Dr. W. A. Selman, whose business address is 77 Forrest avenue. The accident occurred on Washington street near Bass street. The boy was only slightly bruised and stated that he was not hurt.

Dr. Selman reported the accident to M. L. Holcombe, clerk in the chief of police's office at police headquarters. According to Dr. Selman the child ran in front of his machine from behind a parked automobile. He said the accident was unavoidable.

A bulletin by physicians attending Mr. Weeks said there had been continued improvement in his condition in the past 12 hours.

Avondale Sale Success Shown At Willis Dinner

At a unique and elaborte banquet, G. F. Willis, owner and developer of Avondale estates, was honored Friday night at the Atlanta Biltmore by the Avondale Estates sales organization. The occasion marked the return of Mr. Willis from a ten-day vacation during which home sites in Avondale Estates aggregating $74,200 were sold, bringing total sales to date in Atlanta new suburb, nearly to the $500,000 mark, it was stated.

All previous records for sale of residential property in Atlanta or Georgia have been shattered by Avondale Estates, according to speakers, who quoted records of other real estate developments.

As a mark of esteem and affection, Mr. Willis was presented with a handsome loving cup, appropriately engraved.

Tributes Paid Willis.

Tributes were paid to the achievements of the honor guest by Clark Howell, Jr., business manager for the Constitution; John S. Cohen, editor of the Journal, and F. A. Wilson-Lawrenson, president of the Georgian.

John S. Owen, general sales manager for the enterprise, introduced in turn the members of the sales force, each speaker dwelling on a particular feature of the noted residence section. This series of two-minute talks constituted a comprehensive description of Avondale Estates and its location, surroundings and advantages as a place to live.

Presentation of prizes to winners in a recent sales contest were made by Mr. Owen. Charles Paschal was awarded a handsome gold watch as first prize and J. M. Sanders and Tom Owen, who tied for second place, were presented platinum cuff buttons.

In a short talk Clark Howell, Jr., business manager for The Constitution, declared that in his opinion it is the unanimous wish of every Atlantan that Avondale Estates will continue to be a tremendous success. He praised Mr. Willis for his foresight and courage.

"Phenomenal Success."

Mr. Wilson Lawrenson felicitated Mr. Willis on the phenomenal success of the undertaking.

"I understand that Mr. Willis had considerable acreage in Florida, and instead of spending money to develop it he disposed of the acreage and turned his attention to the development of Avondale Estates," said the speaker. "When we get more such men in Atlanta we will keep money here instead of sending it to other states."

"He is doing something besides selling lots in Avondale Estates," he said. "He is selling Atlanta to Atlantans as they never have been sold before."

Talks on Avondale.

The short talks on the various home advantages of Avondale Estates and the salesmen delivering them were as follows:

"Approach and Geographical Location," Mrs. Kingsberry; "Elevation and General Topography," J. M. Sanders; "Architecture," H. W. Dews; "Restrictions," Paul Byrley; "Business Area," G. G. Rogers; "Paving and Sewers," Turner Powell; "Water," A. H. Wilson; "Sales Office Down Town," Jack Byrley; "Advertising," E. M. Moffett; "The Lake," Mrs. A. R. Dowe; "Tennis and Golf," V. R. Smith; "The Swimming Pool," Dan C. Clarke; "The Nursery," Tom D. Owen; "Parks and Playgrounds," C. M. Paschal; "The Founder and Owner," J. H. Owen.

"George Francis Willis; presented as a symbol of affection, esteem and admiration by the sales organization of Avondale Estates, June 5, 1925. We love to be associated with and led by a man of vision, industry, achievement and success."

ITALY HELD UNABLE TO FUND WAR DEBT

Rome, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Finance Minister de Stefani announced in the Italian senate today that Italy at the present moment was not in a position to consider the funding of war debts.

"No systematization of the interallied war debts can be accepted," he declared, "unless subordinated by the possibility of payment and such possibility can only be offered by the financial situation of a state and by the budget of international payments, which budget today cannot support any further burdens."

Referring to the credit of $50,000,000 which the government had arranged with the American firm of J. P. Morgan and company the finance minister asserted that it was not a debt and could not be transformed into a debt, as he added, the officials of the banks of emission handling the credit were governed by rigid instructions not to use more credit than can be covered immediately to avoid the risk of needing gold covering.
